We have had plenty of rain this spring, and now the farmers want some dry, warm, bright weather, so that corn will grow.

Uncle Moses Conner has received a letter from his son Aaron, who arrived in the Black Hills country all right after a tedious journey.

The May term of the District Court for Nebraska County has been adjourned to the 5th day of November, 1877. By order of Hon. S. B. Pound, Judge.

The Lincoln Globe says: "Mr. S. McCaig twice tried living in Nebraska City, but wasn't satisfied. So he has broken up housekeeping again, shipped his goods to Lincoln, and will hereafter reside at the Capital City."

On Tuesday morning of this week another light frost was visible in this locality. This is the third frost since the 23rd ult.—since the fruit trees have been in bloom—yet, so far as we can learn, the fruit buds are still uninjured. It is sincerely hoped that our frosts for this spring are all over. There never before was such an admirable prospect for fruit of the various kinds.

The auditor of the B. & M. railroad company, representing the Nebraska Railway, called on our county treasurer a few days ago, and tendered the tax due on the Nebraska Railway, less three items of tax, which they refuse to pay. That which the company refused to pay was the school bond tax, $34.49; county railroad bond tax, $30.00, and precinct railroad bond tax, $25.00. The amount of tax assessed against the road is $1,070. The treasurer, of course, being governed by the law, could not accept a less amount than that assessed, and refused to receive the $1,594.53 tendered.

The Nebraska City News says coal oil will not kill grasshoppers, and says it can prove this so by J. Sterling Morton and Robert Hawke. "These gentlemen," says the News, "from practical tests personally observed by them, are satisfied that the hopper cannot be killed by the application of coal oil. In the above test the hoppers were given a good soaking in the oil, and taken out, to all appearances as dead as a stone. They were then laid by in a case or box. In a few hours some of them were hopped about, and before the day was gone all, or nearly all, of them had, as it were, been resuscitated."

The Nebraska City coal oil must be bad, for we, too, have applied good coal oil to thousands of hoppers, thoroughly tested the matter, and seen it tested, and know that coal oil is sure death to all hoppers that touch.

— When we quote from the House Organ we always give due credit. But the Organ steals local items from THE ADVERTISER's local columns. This it does frequently, but we have not heretofore complained, knowing the editor of that worthy sheet has common editorial honesty nor the common instincts of gentlemanly courtesy. The Organ would be very scant in local matter did it not each week steal its local news from us.

— The Western Rural gives the following recipe for cooking rhubarb:— Make a sirup of sugar and water as rich as you please, or as thin, only sirup it must be; skim, and add the rhubarb, cut in inch pieces without peeling, and stew slowly till tender. Beware of adding lemon, ginger, eggs or butter, to qualify the flavor of the pie-plant. When cold, it is almost a sweet meat, with the full and proper flavor of the stalks, and the skin has disappeared.

— R. A. Stewart and A. Fry, who have heretofore shipped their cattle and hogs from Humboldt, last week made a shipment from Brownville, claiming they can get better rates to Chicago from this point over the Nebraska Railway than from Humboldt over the A. & N., besides saving one day in their transportation. Other farmers on the Muddy, whose note of this, and wher they have a shipment to make get rates from Brownville.

— R. A. Hawley, who has recently visited a considerable portion of the county, says: "I find the small grain, such as wheat, rye, oats and barley, in the best possible condition, and so far exempt from any indications of the grasshoppers, except in one instance, which was a piece of new breaking soil early to wheat; but the damage is small, and at present they are seemingly stupid and inactive. Corn is being planted extensively, and some is already up and can be seen from the road. The people generally begin to feel safe, but some chronic grumblers are determined to be eaten up by something."

At the conference of the Governors of several of the Western States, held at Omaha in October last, to consider the grasshopper problem, scientists present—Prof. Riley, Thomas and Wightman—who had given the matter years of close attention and study, together with their entomological knowledge, stated as a theory, upon which they all agreed, that owing to the fact that this region was not the home of the hopper, and being so far and long from their natural habitat, as a consequence they had become so enfeebled and degenerated in constitution, as to be little feared in the future, even the coming spring. Prof. Riley was particularly pointed in advocacy of this idea. Prof. Aughey, of our own State, has often asserted the same. Those less informed who were present, were disposed to ridicule the theory, and not a few of the newspapers in the west followed suit. What we are now pleased to note as the "mysterious disappearance" of the hopper is simply in verification of this theory. While they may yet do us damage, thus far the fact is that they are in a nowise destructive as compared with those heretofore among us.

Col. Furnas, in a letter to the Omaha Republican on the grasshopper prospect, encouragingly says: "One week ago to-day, on invitation of Prof. Riley, I visited his premises, where it was reported newly-hatched hoppers were abundant. While my faith had been strong that we would not be injured by the pest this season, I confess it was well nigh extinguished after this visit. I never have seen such a quantity of hoppers on the same extent of ground! It was alive with them! Every spear of grass, every shrub, tree and vine was loaded down with them! The fence was black with them. He has a beautiful blue grass lawn, and it is surrounded on all sides by fertile hatching grounds—clear, hard, dry surface. They had all centered in on the tender grass, and were making away with it almost as rapidly as the mower whirled. Yesterday I again visited the same grounds, and not a hopper, dead or alive, was to be found there, or any where about! I was informed that they mysteriously disappeared the third day after I saw them! Hon. H. C. Lett, of this place, informs me of another instance on his own premises, of similar disappearance.

Our observation accords with the above. Millions disappeared mysteriously. There were no rains or dews, and they were too small to hop away rapidly as the mowers whirled. We have heard reports of this character from various persons in the county. The hoppers come, and then suddenly disappear, no one knows whether. Confidence is being restored and planting goes on. The acreage of corn will be greater than any former year.

Self Vindication. Editor Nebraska Advertiser. Some time ago a scandalous story appeared in the Omaha Bee, written by some person from Brownville too cowardly to sign his real name to the article, although an "Irish peddler" being robbed or relieved of his money by me or by others, at my place of business. I not knowing the writer's name, could not obtain it by application to the Bee publishers, and the man said to have been so badly treated by me being gone, and I not knowing where to find him, I had no means of redress or exoneration, and had to let the matter rest until such time as I could prove the Bee correspondent a liar and clear myself of the charge. That time has now arrived. The "Irish peddler" visited Brownville again last week, and upon being informed of the story about his being robbed by me or in my saloon, voluntarily presented me with the following, which I have published in justice to myself and the city council which entrusts me to carry on a licensed business:

Brownville, Neb. May 4, '77. I am informed that it has been said that I lost money in William Stevens' saloon. I wish to state that all reports of the kind are false. William Stevens has always treated me well. I was well used in his saloon by all parties. I never eat a meal of victuals in his house, and never played a game of cards in my life. I am the person known as the "Irish Peddler."

THOMAS CROSBY. This demonstrates the Irish peddler story to have been a malicious fabrication; and that several other allusions to me and my saloon by this cowardly and lying Bee correspondent, are equally false and unjust, and I defy any of anyone else to substantiate any of his charges. I do not permit gambling to be carried on in my house or anywhere under my control; and although I am sometimes imposed upon and led into making mistakes, I am a law-abiding citizen, and have the right of protection as such.

The Best. All kinds, and the best, of Brandies, wines, gins, alcohols and whiskeys, kept by Ted. Huddart, at Red-Street No. 49. Opposite Sherman House

"I Gave her a Fudge with the Toe of My Boot!"

That's what Esau Smith, who lives up near the cannon house, said he done to his wife. As Mr. Huff came down town Tuesday morning, he saw Mrs. Esau Smith outside her door crying. She told him her husband had been abusing her, and asked him to see for her if something could not be done for her protection from such abuse. Mr. Huff related the matter to Marshal Lannon, whereupon Marshal Lannon made complaint under the ordinance forbidding the disturbance of the peace by loud quarreling, threats, etc., and went up an arrested Mr. Smith, and took him before his honor Judge Ebricht, where he was tried for talking louder to his wife than a reasonably affectionate man ought to talk and for assaulting her with hand and foot. The principal witness against Esau was his injured wife. She testified that just after breakfast, wanting to do up the work, requested her husband to take his harness out of the house. He told her he would take them out just when he got ready, and not before; and if she wanted them out worse than he did she could take them out. She then gathered the harness, when Esau, who had let his passion get away with his sense, went for her, and choked and pushed her out of the house, and kicked her twice, and whipped the little child which cried at seeing the mess between his parents. She had a knife and threatened to cut her throat rather than endure such treatment; then Esau took the knife from her and looked the door, telling her not to come back any more. He had then whipped her.

Esau was then sworn, and corroborated his wife's testimony, excepting the choking; saying he only caught her by the back of the neck and shoved her out of the house—didn't think he hurt her, but being angry might have squeezed harder than he thought for.

"Well, what about the kicking?" asked the Judge. "Did you kick her?" "Yes," answered Esau. "I'll tell the truth—I did give her a fudge with the toe of my boot!"

The Judge fined Mr. Smith $5.00 and costs, amounting in the aggregate to $10.50, which he was required to pay, or in default go to jail. Esau said he hadn't any money, but would go and try to raise it among friends out in the country, and, by securing the Marshal, was permitted to go and make the effort.

Neighbors of his say they fear that when he gets out of this scrape he will beat his wife nearly to death. This should not be permitted. Any one of them would have the right to have him arrested for any act of violence; and again he come before Judge Ebricht again for a similar offense, he certainly will be "stuck" for the full penalty of the violated law. Wife-beaters should have very little mercy shown them.

A Wonder-Working Remedy. No medical agent has ever been offered to the sick and debilitated at all comparable to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In cases of remittent and intermittent fevers, constipation, nervous ailments, rheumatism, and disorders involving constitutional weakness or physical decay. It literally "works wonders." The botanical ingredients which its scientific basis holds in solution, act like a charm upon the stomach, and through the stomach upon the brain, liver, bowels and nervous system. There is nothing in the composition that is not salutatory to the system. The Bitters are peculiarly adapted to those engaged in exhausting or unhealthy occupations, as by its use strength is sustained and the ability of the system to resist atmospheric and other influences prejudicial to health largely increased.

Pertils by Land. Within the limits of our own country are to be found almost all the varieties of climate known to the habitable globe. But extensive as our domain, the locomotive running at almost lightning speed, conveys the traveler in a few hours from the healthy mountain district to the agreeable plain and even from the sunny groves of the south to the ice-bound shores of the northern lakes. In making these rapid journeys the travelers are subjected to the most peculiar diseases, such as indigestion, nervousness, and general debility. It is therefore of vital importance that they should be provided with a remedial agent that will not only cure, but likewise prevent such ailments. The Serravallo's Tonic, or Golden Wine, which is a constant, a disintegrant, a diffusive stimulant, an anodyne, a nerve and a tonic, is a sure prevention of a no less effectual cure of fevers, ague, malaria, dysentery, and all other ailments to which travelers are especially liable. No traveler should fail to provide himself with a supply of this valuable remedy before starting upon his journey.

A Simple Bottle for Trial. If you are troubled with indigestion, dizziness, incapacity to keep nitro on any subject, nervousness, or nervous feelings, gloomy forebodings, irritability of temper, or a bad taste in the mouth, untidy appetite, sudden cessation of the bowels, pain in the side or about shoulders or back, coldness of extremities, etc., or in fact any symptoms of liver complaint, biliousness, constipation of the bowels, or dyspepsia, go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Serravallo's Tonic, or Golden Wine. No spirit is used in its manufacture except a pure article of Holland Gin. Ladies in particular will find it peculiarly adapted to their wants in all seasons of their life. The label tells all they contain, consequently physicians do not hesitate to prescribe them. Simple bottle for trial free. Regular size, $1.00. Serravallo.

A CARD. To all who are suffering from the effects and indications of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. It is a self-cured remedy, and is known as A. W. RICKELL'S, and get a bottle of Dr. Serravallo's Tonic, or Golden Wine, at your druggist. No spirit is used in its manufacture except a pure article of Holland Gin. Ladies in particular will find it peculiarly adapted to their wants in all seasons of their life. The label tells all they contain, consequently physicians do not hesitate to prescribe them. "Is the rainy season going to destroy most of the 'hoppers'?" is a question of still greater importance.

The work has again commenced with the paragon. When finished this will be a very neat and commodious house. A festival will be held there on the 17th to raise funds to complete it. Messrs. Dundas, Morgan, Reed, Hewitt, Wood, Freeman, Coultard and Skeen, the committee of arrangements, and a large number of ladies, have this enterprise under their management. They are very enthusiastic, and are determined to make it a grand success. They want the people of every part of the county to come and see what a rich entertainment they can give. Tickets, 50 cents. Glen Rock. Unfavorable as the weather appeared Saturday evening, the inhabitants of Glen Rock and vicinity turned out en masse. Flying clouds and falling rain foretold of a disagreeable night for Bright's concert. The closing scenes of Prof. Bright's singing school, with all the vocal talent he could possibly muster, was to give our people a grand jubilee from behind the curtain. Your reporter failed to get a ticket to the "green room," so I am ignorant of scenes while the curtain was down. First on programme was "Chirping," or girls grunting, behind the curtain. Next, Prof. Bright's nose was seen coming through an opening in the curtain, asking for the attention of the audience. The curtain was rolled back. There was the twice-beauty and Innocence. Four pieces were sung by the class, Miss Rosa Good at the organ. "Greeting Glee," by a trio, John Weeks at organ; good music and loudly applauded. Then the "Gushing Rill," very beautiful, followed by "Soft Floating on the Air," or the "Grasshopper Dirge," John Weeks playing accompaniment. Vocal music by a class. Miss Grace Winard sang "Mother in Heaven," with Weeks at the organ, and made music that carried our souls beyond the gloom of this life. "Hunter's Hora," sung by a trio, followed by "Hunter's Call," quartette.

Mr. Moeley mounted the stage, and striking the attitude of Richard III at Bosworth Field, he began his ditty. Failed—shut collar too tight. Second attempt—he shook himself, and a stream of music pealed forth. The Prof. is long winded; finally he ran down after considerable sighing on the ladies' side of the room.

Then followed the beautiful "Stars at Twilight," by Misses Winard, which made us think of Heaven and the Golden City.

Comic: Whisky and Gin, by Bel-Is-Burres; Love Letter, by Loy Hel-Is-Burres; comic song by Monroe Burres.

"Goodnight, Goodnight," was sung by the class. Miss Rosa Good playing accompaniment. A full house, filled with enthusiasm from beginning to end. WILL.
