Blowing Bubbles. As I loitered through the village, I saw children at their play, Blowing bubbles in the sunshine

From a penny pipe of clay. I had passed them with a greeting, But their gladness charmed me so, That I turned to watch the bubbles Sailing through the summer's glow.

Though they seemed not half so brillian As in boyhood I had blown, When the smallest of my bubbles Heid a rainbow of He own, Yet my little friends grew merry As each tinted, air-blown toy

Chapped its chubby hands for joy. And the girl-her arms outstretching, As if begging them to stay-Said, "I'm sorry, oh, so sorry, They so quickly fade away!" But her brother looked right manly

It is easy, very easy, To blow others just as bright!" And he blew with such good fortune That, before his task was done, You might count a score of bubbles

Floating gally in the sun. Then her eyes with pleasure sparkled, As the crystal phantoms played, And she quite forgot her sorrow That they each so quickly fade.

And she paused where I was resting In the shadow of a yew, And in tones of laughing wonder cried, "Can't you blow bubbles, too?" As I knew not how to answer, There I left them at their play,

From a penny pipe of clay.

THE GIRL MUTINEER Lands on Commission, examines Titles, in 1777, a vessel sailing in a southwesterly direction crossed the fiftyseventh degree of north longitude. Her keel plowed the waves of the North Atlantic, and her destination seemed to be the Azores. She was sailing before a strong wind, and the arrangement of her sails indicated flight. If flight, from whom? The naked eye could perceive no pursuer on the bosom of the ocean; but the sea-glasses leveled by a number of British officers, who graced the clean decks, revealed a dark speck on the watery rim of the Northern horizon. This distant object occasioned no Paid-up Capital, $50,000 little anxiety among the officers. A silence which had reigned among 500.000 them for many moments, was suddenly broken by a man whose bearing might have proclaimed him an triumph were on their lips. The British vessel was the Meteor, fast sailer, whose armament consisted of twenty-eight guns. She was a well-built double decker, and had seen much service in the war which had raged almost three years between Great Britain and her American colonies. Her speed and her formidable armament had made her a te for to American vessels in European waters. Her commander, a sea-born Englishman, named Guilderoy, was an officer of undoubted courage and cupping, to which he added a vindictiveness that
