

THE ADVERTISER.

THURSDAY, FEB. 7, 1878.

John B. Gough is lecturing in Chicago.

Omaha is going to have white lead works.

The Popes health is just middling, thank you.

Gold is worth only 1 1/2 cents more than greenbacks.

A proposition to restore the death penalty in Iowa, meets with strong opposition from the people.

Frank Leslie was arrested a few days ago in Philadelphia for libel, and placed under $10,000 bonds.

A farmer named M. A. Johnson, of Cass county, Neb., committed suicide on the 31st. He resided near Factoryville.

Gov. Garber has recently appointed Dr. J. G. Davis, physician, and Rev. C. C. Harris, chaplain, of the penitentiary.

Ex-Gov. Wells, of New Orleans is now in prison, waiting trial for assisting to cast the vote of Louisiana for Hayes.

Nast's cartoons these times, on the silverites are pretty thin, because untrue to the subjects they are intended to illustrate.

Hon. Jno. W. Foster, U. S. Minister to Mexico, arrived in Washington last week. We'll hear something more about the greasers now.

The French Academy of Sciences at Paris, awarded the Lalande prize of astronomy to Prof. Hall, an American, discoverer of the satellite of Mars.

The flouring mill of J. H. Catron, near Nebraska City, was destroyed by fire on the 23d inst. Loss estimated at $15,000. Insured for $8,000. 4,000 bushels of wheat were destroyed.

Hon. N. K. Griggs, ex-President Nebraska Senate, now Consul at Chemnitz, Saxony, is giving readable extracts from European Guide Books in shape of letters to the Beatrice Express and Lincoln Journal.

New York and New Jersey are the only two States that show a solid front against the silver bill. These States are the homes of two prominent Democratic Presidential candidates—Tilden and McLellan—and they can explain to the Democracy of the West at their earliest convenience.

Senator Blaine gives notice that he will offer a bill, as a substitute to the Bland silver bill, to pay the interest on the national debt, half in gold and half in silver. This will not suit the silverites. Senator Jones indicated the correct principle when he said, "If silver money is fit to be a legal tender it should be unlimited in character."

The Postmaster General instructs the Postmaster of New York city that trade dollars are not a legal tender, and therefore he need not take them for postage. We have been under the impression that trade dollars were legal tenders on sums of five dollars and less. The law, however, or its interpreters, excepts postage stamps—so it appears.

The New Orleans Times informs President Hayes that interference in a moral and physical impossibility, and adds: "The situation may be disagreeable to Mr. Hayes, but the logic of events is superior to his wishes at this time, and he can do nothing but let the law of the State take its course, whatever may be the consequences to the men who placed him in office."

D. H. Hill, of the Confederate army, teaches a Bible class, 200 strong, at his residence in Charlotte, N. C.—Neb. City News.

Being "of the confederate army" is proof of his piety and ample qualification, to teach the young idea how to follow their rebel ancestors in paths of treason. Hill can greatly interest those 200 youngsters telling them how many forts they held, and how much property, and the millions they plundered from the treasury, etc. No doubt Hill is a splendid Democratic Sunday School teacher.

A thief was recently caught in a very singular manner in Dubuque. His name was Webber and he had formerly been an employe in the hardware store of Westfall Hails & Co. After entering the store in attempt to get through the trap-door of the upper floor the door caught him by the neck, while the ladder on which he stood slipped from under his feet. Some men coming to work in a cooper-shop near by shortly after midnight heard his groans and went to his relief. He was nearly dead when rescued, and is partly paralyzed now. A few more moments would have suffocated him. A barrel of scrap iron stood on the door through which he tried to enter. He had been in the warehouse a few nights before and robbed the money-drawer.

Ex-Senate Senator Spauld, who left Omaha some two years ago with the "Lady in Black," and who led an abandoned life in Chicago, who was divorced by his wife, and who was converted by Moody and Sankey and then re-married to his former wife, has decamped, having forged the name of his wife to several drafts. He is now in Cuba.—Exchange.

Good and honest men and women came into the world as such—Nature stamps them as genuine right in the start, without the aid of Moodys and Sankeys. If they are bogus when they leave the molds, they are always bogus. A Moody may polish them up a little and pass them upon credulous people as pure gold, but it will not stick—they are counterfeit of the worst kind, in spite of preachers, prayers and bibles. When the God of nature fails to make an honest man, none of his most enthusiastic blacksmiths can work him over and make him honest. The stuff isn't there to work on. They may, by a good deal of hammering and tinkering, improve the job to all appearances, but like Spain, the novelty of the new way soon wears off, and the first thing you know they have fooled you.

A Nigger in the State Grange Woodpile.

On the 21st ult. the State Journal contained the following: A farmer who knows the State grange of Nebraska to the tune of several dollars, desires to know whether the corporation is responsible or not. We cannot answer the question knowing-ly, but haven't committed ourselves as yet. But we do know of several unpaud bills against the grange, which have been running for years, and still remain uncollected. From the way the grange is run, it is rotten from stem to stern. If our rural friends are a member of the grange he had better call for a committee on investigation. There is "a nigger in the woodpile," and perhaps if our long-handed grangers can poke him out. In the meantime, the Journal will appoint itself a representative of the grangers, and if it can dig out a few items of fraud and "snitch" will gladly lay it before its readers. In and on the 1st inst. the Journal had the following: Another farm-er of an inquisitive turn of mind desires to know whether the bills against the State grange which we referred to yesterday were made before or since the administration of Porter, Palster and Mc—We answer, since. The bills against the rotten concern are large and numerous, and in all but one probability will never be paid. The secretary of the concern informs us that he has a claim against it of $300, which he cannot collect. We forgot to ask him whether it was for money loaned or for services rendered. At all events it looks as though the grange was something very rotten in Denmark, when the secretary cannot collect what he claims. Perhaps Hon. Church Howe can enlighten the grangers of Nebraska as to how they are run. In the meantime who shall continue to poke for that nigger in the woodpile.

When that "nigger" is energetically poked out of the woodpile, it will be found that he parts his hair in the middle. But what honest granger will have the backbone to go to punch-round after that cunning colored gent, who lies low among the fact?

We made brief mention last week of the murder of a woman named Mrs. Smith—wife of A. C. Smith, near Council Bluffs, and that it was supposed a half breed Indian named Chas. Fisher was the murderer. Since that time the dead body of Fisher was found in Smith's well. The coroner's jury on Fisher's case rendered a decision that he had "committed suicide by jumping into a well." The theory set up is that he ravished Mrs. Smith, and then through remorse and fear, that his crime would be found out, threw himself into the well, 60 feet deep.

Mrs. Smith when found was lying dead in a little cellar leading from her kitchen on a pile of hay, her throat cut, her babe unmolested, with her. There were no evidences of a struggle. The Indian corpse, says the editor of a Council Bluffs paper, who was there shown a wound on the head clean cut, four inches in length, and into the brain, looking as if done with the bit of a hatchet. It doesn't seem probable that he could have received such a cut on the head by throwing himself into the well, walled as it was with brick, and his position in the well indicated that he had gone down feet foremost, as his head was down. The Bluffs papers very truly declare the murder of Mrs. Smith is now, since Fisher is found, more of a mystery than ever. The matter of at least second importance now is the question: Who murdered the Indian?

A man named Fitch, in New York, tells a Chicago Tribune reporter all about the origin of the Colorado stoneman. According to Fitch's expose, he and a man named Hull, who perpetrated the Cardiff Giant swindle, made the "petrified man," with a tail, at Elkland, Pa., out of cement and shipped it to Colorado springs where one of Barnum's old employes took charge of it and carried out the humbug to its discovery. Barnum furnished the money. It is possible that Fitch's story is a bigger swindle than the stoneman. Singular that a Chicago newspaper reporter should succeed in advance of any of the New York papers in inducing one of the parties to the swindle to turn traitor, and in pumping him so thoroughly dry without an apparent effort. Fitch was seemingly just waiting and anxious for somebody to ask him something so that he could talk, and the Chicago Tribune's man was the lucky one. How had the sleazy reporters of the Tribune, Sun, Times, etc., must feel about it.

The Matthews resolutions passed the House by an overwhelming majority. An Inter Ocean special says this vote "indicates as plainly as can be indicated what the result will be when the Bland bill comes there again, if it ever does, saddled with a veto. Excessions from men who voted to-day are that President Hayes dare not, should not, and will not, refuse to accept such an overwhelming veto as the will of the people, and act accordingly. The seventy-nine men who voted against the resolutions represent not producers, but speculators and money-lenders; and, as General Butler says, they have ruled the country long enough. No important measures ever passed by such an overwhelming majority. The silver men could have lost thirty votes, and still had a two-thirds majority, and yet several of their strength were absent without pairs."

The editor of the Saline County Democrat says he would vote for George L. Miller or U. S. Tilden in preference to either S. S. Grant or George Washington, thus evincing that he is a thoroughly soaked Bourbon, and is consistent in preferring either one of the two most soaking rebels he could think of, to either one of the two great patriots. That's unadulterated Democracy.

The editor of the Omaha Bee has commenced suit against A. P. Nichols, who recently "did violent assault, cut, beat, bruise and wound" the said Rosewater, and estimates his damages, physically and mentally, at $10,000.

The Citizens Bank, Topeka, Kansas, closed its doors last week, but will it be thought, be able to resume business again within ten or fifteen days.

The fight between Secretary Schurz and the Indian Bureau as it existed under Commissioner Smith, is beginning to get interesting. Smith is a gentleman of considerable resources, and he doesn't propose to be portrayed as an incompetent, who permitted the government to be robbed by his negligence, while he is personally such a very honest and conscientious man. It is due to every public servant that he be allowed to show that he is not a fool, and Smith in making a fight against the wily Schurz, will certainly demonstrate his intellectual ability before the matter is closed, if he has any to show. He has called two pretty able witnesses—Gen. Sherman and Prof. Seeley, late M. C., who was on the committee of Indian affairs—and they both back him in considerable energy.—State Journal.

The more we hear of Schurz the more we are convinced that he is a consummate spider legged old demagogue.

Ex-Gov. Hendricks of Indiana recently wrote a letter to August Belmont, N. Y. city, which is published. It concludes as follows: Should silver money be restored I have thought the pledge of 1829 of payment in coin, and assurance in the act of 1870 of payment in coin at our standard value, would seem to authorize, almost to require compliance with that contract. It cannot be a breach of public faith. Our country is a large producer of silver. As to its value I think that when restored silver will approach and perhaps reach gold in value, but should express no anxiety that it must remain below gold because of greater production. Congress has ample power to provide against any evils likely to follow.

Mr. Hendricks is right on this silver question, it seems, and to be right upon that matter at this time may be an important item in making up the list of those who have a longing to be trotted out upon the next Presidential race course.

To show the ruinous effect of emigrant tampering with the money of the country; immediately after the demonizing act, failures to business firms and men, suddenly sprang up to a ratio of 1 to 108. It has continued to increase until in 1877 the ratio was 1 to 73. In the Eastern States the ratio is 1 to 58; Middle States, 1 to 73; Southern States 1 to 85, and in the Western States about 1 per cent. The West seems to stand up as well, or better than any other portion of the country. Her products, beef, pork, corn and wheat will enable her to hold her own, notwithstanding the repeated threats of the East to crush her. With these elements of power, and sufficient in her hands she will stand the pressure about as long with them as the East can without them.

The rebel General, Joseph E. Johnson, is going to be a candidate for Congress in Virginia. Of course he will be elected.

Philip Watson, colored, who killed his wife, at Lexington, Ky., was hanged the 1st inst. in presence of 5,000 spectators.

The admirers of Thomas Paine who reside in Council Bluffs celebrated the anniversary of his birth on the 30th inst.

Joseph Woods was hanged at Malone, N. Y., on the 1st for the murder of a relative named Stephen Woods.

Hon. Benjamin F. Wade, Ohio, is lying ill, and there is scarcely a hope of his recovery.

The Situation Still Serious.

LONDON, February 4.—A correspondent at Vienna telegraphs: The situation is still regarded here as serious. It has transpired that Russia is concentrating troops in the interior of Roumania, and 120,000 men will be massed towards the west and north, evidently for defense against Austria.

AUSTRIA'S OPPOSITION TO RUSSIA. LONDON, February 5.—A Times St. Petersburg dispatch says: It has been assumed until lately that England would interpose principal obstacles to a Russo-Austrian alliance. It is believed that Austria has completely changed her attitude, and serious doubts are entertained even concerning Germany. A Vienna special says the Mountenegro seem inclined to resist a alliance, which was concluded just as they were meditating attack on Scutari.

SESSION OF BESSARABIA. RICHMOND, February 4.—The cabinet deliberated four hours Sunday upon General Ignatieff's formal proposition for co-signing of the Russo-Austrian alliance. Nothing was decided, but there are indications that Romanoff will categorically refuse.

As regards this Chandler-Burke business: Mr. Chandler asked Mr. Burke by telegraph if a memorandum of agreement regarding the president's affair was not made at Wornley's Hotel in Washington pending the electoral struggle, and placed in his hands for safe keeping. Mr. Burke responds by telegraph that he knows of no such thing, and that the man who claims to have done so is a certain rascal who has done certain disreputable things (naming them). If he is, Burke won't say anything; if he is not, Burke thinks he will reply. Of course Burke knows very well what Chandler's acts in 1872 has to do with that memorandum anyway. No matter if he be the biggest rascal in the world that does not prove that the memorandum alluded to was not made. If Burke won't answer the question, why don't he say so flatly. There's no law to compel him.—Inter Ocean.

We are authorized to state that a young farmer residing a few miles from the city, who never appeared in public except two or three times, and then at country school exhibitions, is willing to meet Gen. F. W. Butterfield at the opera house in Lincoln at any time within a few weeks, and read for the door money. The decision is to be left to a vote of the audience. Will the General measure swords with the young granger? The novelty of the thing would certainly draw a house.—State Journal.

The Russian papers are opposed to that country having anything to do with a conference of the other empires. They argue that as it was exclusively Russia's blood and treasure which subdued the Ottoman, to Russia should belong the spoils.

Another horrible steamship disaster occurred off Kitty Hawk, N. C., on the evening of Jan. 31st. The steamer Metropolis was wrecked by being driven on the beach, with 245 souls on board, of whom only about sixty were saved.

An international conference has been agreed upon in Europe, which will probably meet in Brussels, to carve that Turkey, but in all probability it will break up in the biggest kind of a row.

It is a good time now to have men define themselves on this issue between the masses and the money-lenders, and the views will be convenient for reference in the future. Smoke them out, and when they have expressed themselves, put their names down where they will not rub out. If a measure like this, supported by a three-fourths majority of the people of this country, shall be defeated, then representative government is sadly lacking in representative qualities.—Inter Ocean.

The fluctuations of gold, under the manipulation of the opponents of the remonetization of silver, does not scare the silver men any. It is no doubt within the power of the gold ring to push it up a few cents; but, gentlemen, don't equal if you catch 'Black Friday' in return.—Inter Ocean.

The Athlethion & Nebraska and other railroad officials held a "mum sociable" somewhere up a road—it is rumored—to talk over the completion of the Nebraska Railway, which is graded to Falls City. This the Nebraska City Press hints, would mean a through line from Omaha to Athlethion by way of Nebraska City and Plattsmouth.—Omaha Republican.

Ooman Pasha, it appears, was ordered to abandon Plevna and retreat to Orhanie immediately after Lovatze was captured by the Russians.
