If the Sewardites will lend a helping hand to the amount of $4,000, said mill to operate from 200 to 300 spindles and three to five looms, and be capable of turning out 1,500 yards of flannel, 600 yards of jeans, 1,000 yards of cloth and 1,500 pounds of yarn per month.

The writer of an article in the Western Rural says: As a general thing my experience tells me that if hired men are well treated they will do a fair day's work, and will do more than if they are made to feel that they are simply laboring machines and nothing else.

Of course hired people should be well treated. If employers cannot treat them well because of noble and humane principles, those of a selfish nature should lead them to do so.

Under an act of Congress of March 9, 1875, widows of soldiers of the war of 1812 are entitled to a pension without regard to the date of their marriage, provided they have not been remarried. There are a number of widows in this county who will be entitled to a pension under this act at the rate of $8 per month. The act also restores to the pension rolls such as have been suspended on account of participation in the rebellion, and also grants pensions to such soldiers, or their widows, as were in any engagement of the war of 1812, without regard to the length of the service.

The Nebraska City News of last Saturday says: There was considerable loud talking and excitement yesterday at the court house, when the petty juror, who had been discharged, stepped forward to the clerk's desk, and asked for their certificates of pay, and who were politely informed by that gentleman that he had received orders through the county clerk from the commissioners, to issue no certificates, unless the applicant first presented a clear receipt from the county treasurer, showing that he, the applicant, was entirely clear on the treasurer's books, as regards back personal taxes. They will get credit on their taxes due for the amount of their fees.

We were informed that the grand jury of Nemaha county came near finding a true bill against Judge Pound and fining him $50, he having failed to open court on the day it was called. Our informant also says it was only by Judge Pound's promise not to let the thing happen again, that the fine was not made.—Nebraska City News.

If the grand jury took some action to correct this source of complaint—because of needless expense to the county, and inconvenience and trouble to litigants, witnesses and jurors—it certainly did a good thing. If court is not to open until Tuesday, it is best to make the order to that effect, instead of Monday, and then everything will work in harmony, and save a hundred or so of farmers from losing a day, grubbing and waiting for the judge to come.

HOW Is it that Lowman always has the largest and most complete stock of Dry Goods, Notions, Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps and Shoes? It is because he Buys for Cash and Sells for Cash.

We have heard complimentary remarks made about a very finely painted bus belonging to our transfer company. It certainly is a splendid piece of work, and was done by the Boss painter, Sam. Rich.

Between March 1st, 1877 and March 1st, 1878 there were born in Brownville 10 males and 20 females. There were 17 deaths during that period. In the precinct there are 119 more females than males between the ages of 15 and 25 years.

The Prairie Farmer speaking of the destruction of the fruit germ, says "The critical time is just at the blossoming season, then a white frost or a few unfavorable conditions follow the setting of the fruit. At this time a raw east wind is particularly fatal, even although no frost occur."

Mr. John Patterson, of Peru has a grievance. He has a "erow to pick" with one Morton, a neighbor of his. All purely a personal matter, and, we would think, not the slightest interest to our readers, not even those of Peru outside the circle of the said personal quarrel. Yet Mr. Patterson fills over six pages of legal cap paper regarding his feud, and an advertisement of the frailties and shortcomings of his old time friend, Morton, with whom in the halcyon days he has without doubt taken many a fraternal "nip."

It strikes us that John Patterson doesn't appreciate the situation clearly, and has lost sight of the fact that the advertisement he proposes is a dozen times larger than the subject to be advertised demands or deserves. The fact that he offers to subscribe for our paper and become "a live worker for it," gives us to understand that he has some sort of instinctive idea that his article is an advertisement, or should be regarded as such; and he is right so far as that idea has obtained with him, and had he further considered the expense of 10 cents a line he would have comprehended full justice to us, and no doubt reconsidered the size and cut down his advertisement of Morton to probably eight or ten lines, which space would be ample for Mr. Patterson to say every pertinent thing contained in the seven pages written. And had he sent us such an item simply with the view of setting himself right before his neighbors, we should have published the same without charge.

Now, while we decline, most respectfully, to publish Mr. Patterson's article, for either love or money, or his patronage—not that it would seriously injure Morton or any one else; but because we will not allow the use of our columns for the ventilation of malice, spite or quarrels between neighbors—we proceed to say for Mr. Patterson sufficient to correct false impressions concerning him:

It appears that the J. B. Morton published a card in the Peru paper charging Patterson with having said that Morton had drunk liquor with Patterson since Morton signed the pledge. Morton denies, and Patterson denies having said any such thing. In his article Patterson says:

"Now I will tell you all I did say, and that is, that J. B. Morton refused to drink whiskey hot with me on account (as he stated) of having taken a resolve never to drink any more as long as he lived."

Now that is all there is of it and all that is necessary to print. These words of Mr. Patterson's exonerated Mr. Morton; they give Patterson the credit of candor, but do not relieve him of the blame of offering the intoxicating bowl to one trying to free himself from its bondage.

This must suffice, for us, on this matter, with both parties.

MONARCHS OF THE ROAD. Duprez & Benedict's Great Minstrels and Royal Brass Band. Charles H. Duprez and his world-wide famous, and refined Minstrel Troupe are spoken of as follows by the Logansport (Indiana) Daily Chronicle, of Jan. 29, 1878:

DUPREZ & BENEDICT'S GIGANTIC MINSTRELS!—Those who stayed away from the Opera House last night missed a rich and rare treat of minstrelsy. The audience was very large for a wet and stormy evening, and was composed of ladies and gentlemen who all testified their appreciation of a really meritorious performance by frequent bursts of applause. The very full new programme was fresh, original, brilliant and sparkling from beginning to end. Another commendable feature of the entertainment is the total absence of coarse jests and ribald jokes, so suggestive of the average minstrel troupes. C. H. Duprez is to the minstrel profession what P. T. Barnum is to the hippodrome, manager and circus. Call again, Mr. Duprez, with your Excelsior company. You will always be welcomed in Logansport with a rousing hosanna.

The above company will appear in this city soon. For full particulars see further announcement.
