A Quiet Bit of Scandal.

When cannibal savages after a fight Make a feast of the bodies of those they have beaten, The grisly repast yields a keener delight From the knowledge that every unfortunate victim Would have deemed it the deepest disgrace to be eaten.

Though the custom is fast dying out in Fiji, As the influence of Western example increases, In civilized countries you often may see A circle of friends, in the highest of places, All busily picking up some neighbor to eat.

And the best of it is, that the neighbor is not, As in lands barbaric, a person deceased; His death has been harked in no crowd nor pot; They don't even trouble to serve him up hot, For the victim still lives in the midst of the feast.

Some good-natured friend, perhaps, may make him aware Of the nature of these hungry monsters' employment; And, though in reply he may stoutly declare That such vivisection won't hurt him a hair, Yet he writes as if the thought of their fiendish enjoyment.

Still one comfort remains. In the Isles of Fiji, No possible vengeance is left for the victim; He's cooked and defunct. But in Europe he's free To seek satisfaction; and sometimes we see That he wounds in exchange for the wounds which have prick'd him.

Then beware, Mrs. Smith; and you, lovely Miss Brown; Young Jones, whatever nothing that isn't Be a little more careful of other's renown— For Thompson in your recess has sat down With Miss Green, and is quietly cutting up you.

LOVE AFFAIR

OF TWO BOYS OF THE PERIOD. BY EBEN E. REXFORD.

"By George!" exclaimed young Tom Gordon at Mrs. Fetchemot's party, last spring, "if there ain't the noblest looking girl of the season. Who is she, Wayne?"

"Which girl? Where?" asked Wayne, looking at half-a-dozen pretty young ladies, and then inquiring at his friend Gordon.

"That one in blue silk, with the white lace thing-un-a-jin on," answered Gordon, "sitting over there in the corner talking with old Harshaw."

"Ah, that's Miss Perry, from Rochester," returned Wayne; "rich as Croesus,
