A week or so ago some one claiming to be an old soldier, well acquainted a card in the Inter Ocean of the 22d the Omaha Republican with the information that Hancock at a certain battle, acted cowardly or was drunk. We did not publish the charge, and none of the Republican papers that we remember, repeated the story. Since then another soldier, writing to the Republican from Republican City, claiming to be a Republican and also to have been under Hancock, denies the charge of the first named writer, saying that Haneock on the occasion referred to did nothing that a good and brave officer should not have done. There are enough legitimate and historical reasons for defeating Hancock and the Democrats without making the ridiculous charge of cowardice, which history will say, and does say, is false. There is not the least doubt in our mind that Hancock was a bull-headed stubborn fighter.
