Water for Babies.

I was one day called upon to visit a sick little one in a family residing near my office. The babe I found in apparent good health, but crying and struggling in its mother's arms as though suffering excruciating pains.

The mother informed me that the child seemed desirous of nursing continually; and that, to quiet it, she had given it the breast as often as the crying commenced. When this did not soothe the little one, a dose of Mother Somebody's cordial had been administered.

"My good woman," I inquired, "when did you last give your babe a drink of water?"

"I don't remember," replied the lady; "I seldom let him drink water. Does he need it?"

"Need it? Why should he not need it as much as you? This child is suffering from thirst—nothing more."

I called for cold water, gave the infant a few teaspoonfuls, and it was relieved of all its troubles, stopped crying and sank peacefully to sleep in its mother's arms.

Let this be a reminder to mothers and nurses. Infants who nurse at the breast may often suffer as much from want of water as adults who eat more solid food. Often when a child cries, it is only thirst which causes it.

Do not, then, dose it with the poisonous 'soothing syrups' or nursing cordials, or press it to the breast, which it will eagerly grasp, expecting to satiate its burning thirst; but, filled to the brim with its natural food, it cries on harder than ever.

Use a little discretion. The poor little one cannot tell its wants: if it could, it would often cry, "Water! Water!"

Reciprocal.

Scene the first—Cow-boy and farmer standing on the prairie in August, 1876, when the grasshoppers were flying so thick as to almost obscure the sun, and the destruction of the crops was inevitable. "Let them come," said the herder, "they will rout some of these d-d 'sorgum-lickers,' and we will have a larger range."

Scene the second—Same parties standing in the door of a dug-out in Custer county, in February, 1881, when the snow was flying so thick that one could scarcely see ten steps. "Isn't this fearful," said the man in cow skins. "Let it storm," said the man of the plow, "it will rout some of those d-d 'cow-punchers,' and we can farm in peace next summer."—Loup City Times.

NEMAHA CITY.

Nemaha City is situated in the south-east corner of Nemaha county, and is the present terminus of the Nebraska Railway, and the eastern terminus of the R. V. R. R. The latter road is completed to Blue Springs, coming in this direction, and nearly to Culbertson on the west, about 300 miles from this point. Work is being pushed forward from this place west as rapidly as it can be done, and the gap between Nemaha and Blue Springs will be closed during the coming year. Nemaha will have in a short time a railroad bridge machine shops, etc., and will be the most important town in the county. Our natural advantages are unequalled. The town is beautifully located on a gently rising foot-hill or table land overlooking the bottom lands and the Missouri river, and in point of beauty or location it cannot be surpassed. Good business openings are presented here, and any one coming west with the view of locating, either in business or agricultural pursuits cannot do better than to settle in Nemaha or vicinity.

This is the great shipping point for grain and live stock, it being so easily reached from all directions with heavy loads, making it the favorite town of the farmers.

Nemaha has good schools, churches, Mason and Odd Fellow and temperance organizations. Several fine stone quarries are found near the city. Timber and fuel is cheap and plenty.

There are good openings here for the following, in particular: A bank, another hotel, a steam flouring mill, and in fact, there is not a better town in the State for men who desire to enter into business of any kind. Come and see us and be convinced.—Nemaha Times.

A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment, and radical cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrhea, induced by self-abuse. Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally: Consumption, Epilepsy and Pits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, etc.—By Robert C. Newell, M. D., author of the "Green Book," etc. The world-renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of self-abuse may be effectually removed without the resort to surgical operations, bladders, instruments, rings, or other devices; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself privately, cheaply and radically.
