The story is told of Mr Sessions that once, before a legislative committee of investigation, he disclosed the rule of his life in diplomatic politics. "At an early period of my career," said he, "I learned when I went to suck eggs to hide the shells."-Buffalo News. It seems that he didn't hide very well when he undertook to bribe Depew's way into the Senate.

Prof Draper, of New York, in answer to a question if a comet would be likely to destroy the world this year, said:

"A comet is of such subtile consistency it would probably be dissipated by the atmosphere before it reached the earth. The nucleus might possibly make a little splash when it struck but there is not the faintest danger to be apprehended. Mother Shipton doubtless selected 1881 at random. It is the opinion of physicists that the matter of which the earth is composed is eternal."

Nebraska is now in the height of its beauty, and if the reader has a friend in the east or elsewhere who is contemplating a visit to this State, let him or her come now and take a look at the tinest country on the globe. If they don't conclude to remain the reports which they will carry back will be the means of inducing thousands to turn their faces toward this young giant State of the west .- Omaha Republican. And before locating they should not fail to see Nemaha county the "Garden County of the State.

ing Senator Conkling, said of him "It is notorious that he treated General Garfield with gross discourtesy during the campaign and after the election. His omission of any illusion to the presidential candidates from his New York speech was a deliberate insult, and the shaft was barbed and pointed by extravagant eulogy of Mr. Arthur's character and public services in the same connection.'

On the 18th of September last the Tribune referring to Senator Conkling's great speech at the Academy of Music, N. Y., had the following:

"Mr. Conkling's speech at the academy of music yesterday was altogether in southern Missouri, south Arkansas the most brilliant performance of the campaign.

The republicans of New York and the country, notwithstanding their exceived at New York from August to travagant anticipations, will not be May, not one piece was British. The disappointed by the address, which is fertile in information, convincing in argument, adorned by learning, illunaalthough Japanese yens were well rep-casionally spiced with Mr. Conkling's characteristic sarcasm. It is a speech which was sincerely designed to promote the republican cause in the approaching national election, and it will not fail of its purpose.

The supporters of General Hancock need no longer be in any doubt of the attitude occupied by Senator Conkling, and his friends in this campaign. It Senator Coukling should not say another word before election, he will have contributed in this single speech his full share to the renewed success of the Republican party, which that speech fully foreshadows by the appeal it to imprisonment in the penitentiary makes to the intelligence and justice of the American people.

There is one part of Mr. Conkling's address which will greatly trouble the democrats who have been smiling sardonically at his silence. We refer to his eulogy to General Garfield, which he held for the close in order to make it more impressive."

The following is the portion of Conkling's speech which was to"greatly trouble the Democrats" to which the Tribune especially alluded on that occasion, as appears above:

"The candidates we support, besides being Republicans, are largely fitted

The Beatrice Express speaks of Senator Van Wyck as "the artful dodger from Nebraska and New York." As everybody knows that General Van Wyck is the very opposite of a "dodger," but exceedingly straightforward and outspoken on all subjects, and ambiguous about nothing, that's not what's the matter with the Express. Perhaps the nourished chagrin of the Beatrice editor over hopes of patronage that fell with Mr. Paddock are becoming chronic.
