Very Respectfully Yours,
E. H. WILCOX.

MR. AND MRS. M. M. CONNER.

The Golden Wedding.

According to cards issued, and previous arrangements made by the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Conner, about 8 o'clock on the evening of the 23rd of October, 1881, a respectable company of the relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Conner were gathered in the opera house to witness, or participate in, the proceedings of their Golden Wedding, this being the 50th anniversary of their married life.

The marriage ceremony was preceded by fifty gentle taps of a bell behind the scenery, and from whence emerged the groom, bride, minister, and several accompanying old friends, immediately upon the conclusion of the ringing of the bell. The bride and groom standing in the parquet, just in front of the stage, attendant lady and gentlemen friends on either side, the Rev. H. O. Scott, of the Presbyterian church, stepped to the front and delivered the following beautiful and appropriate ceremony:

One of the most solemn and interesting scenes that can be witnessed is the joining of two lives in one; for when two hearts beat in unison, the happiness that follows can only be surpassed by that of the worlds above; but if they be not in harmony, no real joy can be experienced. Believing that during half a century of wedded life you have had abundant opportunities in health and sickness, in labor and rest, in joy and sorrow, for knowing the strength of your love for each other and your ability to be true and faithful, I shall ask you to join your right hands in token of your desire to continue the golden bonds and to make them even stronger.

"Do you, Moses, renew your covenant vow to take this woman whom you hold by your right hand to be the companion of your life? Do you promise to bestow upon her the same love and care which has heretofore made you happy in each others society? And as you have walked hand in hand with her up the flowery hillside in your younger days, do you promise to still cling to her, down the way strewn with the leaves of autumn until at the river the angel boatman shall call to take one or the other over?"

Mr. Conner—"I do."
"Do you, Ann, renew your covenant vows to take this man whom you hold by your right hand to be the companion of your life? Do you promise to bestow upon him the same love and care which has heretofore made you happy in each others society? And as you have walked hand in hand with him up the flowery hillside in your younger days, do you promise to still cling to him down the way strewn with the leaves of autumn until at the river the angel boatman shall call to take one or the other over?"

Mrs. Conner—"I do."
You are a husband and a wife whose lives have long since been made one, by the mutual plighting of your love, by marriage vows, and by sympathy in the trials and labors of a long life. May God's blessing rest upon you through many happy days to come. ♦
Allow me to congratulate you most heartily upon growing old in each others love.

Then W. T. Rogers approached the happily wedded, and in a few well chosen words formally presented to each of them a beautiful gold jewel, received from Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lett, of Lincoln, Neb., a correct idea of the workmanship and design of which will be gathered from the following accompanying letter:

MR. AND MRS. CONNER,
We send you two emblems, as a faint expression of our esteem. The one marked Mr. Conner, emblematic of a banner with colors floating, and principles of fidelity, inscribed upon its azure folds.

You for fifty long years as a husband have lived with your banner of true devotion manifest to the world, your fidelity inscribed in characters brighter than gold. And may you when this earthly tie is dissolved, have an eternal union with your devoted wife in that celestial land where day is one bright morning, and the sun never sets.

The second, marked Mrs. Conner, a neck-yoke in two horse shoes. The yoke, emblematic of the burden you both have borne so long. And the horse shoes, "Good Luck." As God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb, may he cause the yoke to rest easy and make your burdens light in this world, with "good luck," so that your separation may be only mystic, and your reunion real, over the river in the Paradise of God.
Yours,
H. C. LETT AND WIFE.

Then were called out Dr. Holladay, ex-Senator Tipton, W. T. Rogers, and others who have been friends and neighbors of Mr. Conner for many years, and with brevity referred happily to things and happenings, and customs and scenes of days long gone by. Then there were more presentations, principally in small gold coin. A fine and much appreciated gift, however, we must not omit to mention, was made by our old jeweler Mr. Joseph Schutz, in the shape of a splendid pair of gold framed spectacles worth $12. Besides the things mentioned, Mr. and Mrs. Conner received $100.00 in gold coin, the donors of which we would be pleased to personally name did our space permit. We will mention however, that $20 were received from their son Jacob, of New Mexico, and $10 from their daughter in Cincinnati. After all the friends had taken the joyous aged couple by the hand, and all the girls had kissed Uncle Mose—the old gentleman blushed like a rose under the trying ordeal—the chairs were set back, the fiddle tuned, and old and young, whose conscience and church discipline could at all be stretched to grasp the exhilarating amusement, danced and danced until they tired. For the sake of history we note that Mrs. Hellen Robison, nee Holladay, had the honor of dancing one set with the groom, the only one that he could be coaxed to participate in. The whole affair was a happy success and made our old friends feel young again.

"Wine is a mocker, and strong drink is raging." Take PRICKLY ASH BITTERS. It is not a beverage, but a remedy for all ill effects of an excess of intoxicating stimulants. Don't take a drink before breakfast "just to wake you up," because you feel so stupid and languid. You are sure to feel worse as soon as the effect wears off. Take a half wine glass of PRICKLY ASH BITTERS. It will brighten you up for the whole day.

There never was a convention held in Nemaha county that was more absolutely run and controlled by the people, independent of rings and factional combinations, than the last Republican convention.

Now it remains to be seen how well the people will sustain at the polls their own action.

It was the farmers, principally, of Nemaha county that took the nominating business in hand—they united against other combinations and by nearly two to one named the men for the ticket, and any charge that the nominations were made by this or that ring or faction, is utterly unfounded.

This was supposed to be a reformation in conventions. How much of a success is it going to be? The Republican farmers of Nemaha county will answer at the polls.

Two years ago the factions had control of the convention, every delegate belonged to either Daily, Majors or Howe, a bitter fight was waged; and every candidate nominated was easily distinguished as belonging to some one of the above named gentlemen. But the result at the polls was a grand success for the whole ticket.

This year the "leaders" stood back, seeming to make no special effort, leaving the people to manage the matter themselves.

If the Republican people's ticket next Tuesday shall overwhelm the mongrel hermaphrodite animal, then will be proved that conventions and elections may be conducted successfully independent of factions. But if otherwise, and the Republican ticket comes out by a meagre majority—by the skin of the teeth as it were—we can but humbly call upon the factional leaders to put on their war paint and take charge of their battalions again, as we the people are not capable of running the machine ourselves.

Andy Skeen is making himself so conspicuous in his opposition to the Republican nominee for county clerk, as to make it a personal matter deserving attention from us as a faithful defender of our men and principles. Ordinarily a private citizen's opinion or preferences are not subjects for personal comment from the ADVERTISER. But Mr. Skeen has emerged from the ranks of the private citizen and become a candidate for deputy clerk, under Mr. Docker. This fact with his fretful anxiety for Mr. Docker's success makes him fit game for an occasional shot from us. Andy goes around traducing the character of Dr. McGrew, and expressing great pity and sympathy for Docker. But that is all hypocritical, for there is no motive moving Andy in this campaign but a purely selfish one. Andy will be deeply chagrined when he learns that he is exposed, for he was playing it very fine indeed. But we have it from an authentic source that Andy is promised the deputyship if Docker is elected. But that crowd stands forty chances of being struck by lightning to one of coming in possession of the clerk's office.

I. O. G. T.

The Nemaha county district lodge I. O. G. T. will meet with Brownville lodge No. 69, on Saturday Nov. 12, '81, at ten o'clock a. m. G. W. C. T., J. B.
