The wife of Fred. Beyschlag, the Nebraska City brewer, suicided by taking chloroform, 18th inst. The Press says the deceased lady had been subject to attacks of insanity, at which times she made attempts upon her life, and was only prevented by the watchfulness of friends. She was 47 years old. She was a sister, we believe, to the Deusers of this place, and Rock Port, Mo.

Miss Katie E. Johnson, of Plattsmouth, has brought suit, for breach of promise of marriage, against Frank J. Maddaner of Kansas City, formerly of the firm of Maddaner & Herman, Plattsmouth. The young lady alleges that her heart, reputation, etc., has been torn, lacerated, etc., to the tune of about ten thousand dollars' worth.

Ed. Maxwell, the outlaw, of whose capture near Grand Island, we gave a brief account last week, when he arrived at his destination in Wisconsin, was taken by a mob of citizens, whose vigilance and laws he had so long evaded and defied, and hanged unceremoniously to the limb of a tree, until dead. His brother and companion in crime has not yet been captured.

Mrs. Lucy D. Fisk, widow of the well remembered "Jim," publishes a card, suggested by late assaults on Jay Gould's charity. She says she personally knows Mr. Gould to be a man whose hand is open to the deserving needy. Such we understand Mr. Gould's reputation to be amongst those who know him best; but that he does not herald his alms-giving from the house top.

The amount of cotton goods manufactured in the United States this year is larger than ever before, and the time will come when the mills of this country will absorb the entire product, and our manufacturers will send the manufactured article instead of the raw product abroad. But this can never be done without a protective tariff. The Northern cotton mills have increased their consumption from 391,914 bales last year to 344,489 bales this year, an advance of 15 per cent.; but the greatest increase was in the South, where 45,000 bales were used this year to 35,000 last year.—Inter Ocean.

Austin, Texas, elected a Republican Mayor.

The Missouri River Improvement convention meets at St. Joseph, 20th and 30th inst.

Pinchback pops to the surface again. He had an interview with the President the other day.

Bismarck is desperate to strike something that's popular. He now advocates minority representation.

Judge McCrary has appointed Elmer S. Frank clerk of the United States Circuit Court, vice Watson B. Smith, deceased.

The fact that the feeling in favor of annexation to the United States is rapidly increasing in Canada, excites much concern over the water. It is only a question of time.—Inter Ocean.

An unfinished report of the census of the United States shows the population to be 50,155,783. This statement shows Ohio to have 115,191 more people than New York, and 917,170 more than Pennsylvania.

An Indiana paper nominates Voorhees for President in 1884. That gentleman recently declared in favor of a protective tariff. His occupancy of a prominent plank in the Republican platform is a little late, and creates the suspicion that it is a bid.

A Sunday School teacher was explaining to his class about the penalty inflicted on the serpent for the hand he played in the garden, when a curious little boy wanted to know how the serpent "walked afore that." The answer is not recorded so far as heard from.

Gov. St. John, in answer to an inquiry regarding the alleged decrease in population in Kansas on account of the prohibitory law, says: "The only place where there has been a decrease of population is the penitentiary, where there are sixty-six less now than there were six months ago."

A Royal Gentleman.

Is the title of another book from the graphic pen of Judge Tourgee, the famous author of "A Fool's Errand." It is to be sold by subscription.

In point of romantic interest, "A Royal Gentleman" is undoubtedly the strongest of Judge Tourgee's novels, for the threads of love, mystery, adventure, crime, and war, and the play and interplay of personal forces and passions, form the whole warp and woof of the tale. Of political discussion there is little or none. And yet the underlying causes of the state of mind which brought on the war, so persistently and with wonderful audacity striven to secure to the Southern Whites in the political field what they lost on the field of battle—these things are made so simple and clear by the development of character and plot, that we wonder we had not known it all before.

Certainly it is a book that no educated or intelligent man or woman can afford to leave unread. It gives with wonderful power the very color and air of that sweet Southern land; the bright and sunny pictures of plantation life; the pleasant relations of white and black; the generous, impulsive, wayward character of the "young Southern blood;" the quaint, queer, and yet unmistakably accurate portraits of the Poor White, the old Lawyer, the antique County Clerk, the other local personages; the growth of the little quadron darkey into the beautiful woman; the quick blast of coming battle; rapid pen-pictures of war and hospital scenes, with actual incidents in which Abraham Lincoln, Sumner, and other men of note figured during that grand period—immense elements beside, go to help form this brilliant and instructive picture of an era in our country's life that has now passed away forever.

It is the strongest presentation of the blighting effect of Slavery upon the master race that has ever been penned. And it takes its place among Judge Tourgee's striking historical pictures as a worthy peer of the best of them, destined to hold his name in remembrance forever.

The book is brilliantly illustrated. Price $2.00. Where there is no agent for the work, it will be sent, post-paid, on receipt of price. As it is to be sold by subscription only, Book Agents had better make a note of it. For particulars address Weston Hulbert, 328 State Street, Chicago, Ill.

Gen. Arthur has appointed Judge Folger because he was the original choice of Grant and Conkling, and leaves the public to infer that Gen. Arthur will be very apt to adopt many recommendations which were promptly rejected by Gen. Garfield.—New York Sun.

The above is a fair specimen of how the great papers create false impressions and mislead public feeling. The truth is that Judge Folger was the "original choice" of President Garfield for a position in the cabinet. Correspondence now published settles that fact. Judge Folger being a great lawyer, and a good man, was tendered the position of Attorney General by President Garfield, and declined it. He may, or may not have been the "original choice of Grant and Conkling." The Sun does not know whether he was or not, and the statement made that he was is not made by such papers as the Sun with other intention than to slur Grant and Conkling and poison the minds of its anti-Grant-and-Conkling readers against President Arthur. It is a fact, however, that Grant, Conkling, and Folger are all stalwarts and intimate friends, and Judge Folger, doubtless, while he was Garfield's "original choice" found no opposition from Grant and Conkling.

Work is progressing quite satisfactory on the Nebraska extension of the Missouri Pacific. The distance from Atchison to Pappillion, where it strikes the Union Pacific, is 146 miles. The grading from Pappillion to Hiawatha, Kansas, a distance of 100 miles, is completed with the exception of eight miles in Otoe county, which last section has just been begun. Tracklaying from Falls City to Hiawatha will be commenced in a few days. The yard tracks at Falls City are already laid.—Omaha Telegram.

The Inter Ocean strikes the Des Moines Register from its list of exchanges, with the anathema of pirate and thief. That is hard on the Register, as it will greatly reduce its chances for solid editorial and able special telegrams.

The Inter Ocean says, if Medill of the Chicago Tribune had the power to kill off all the statesmen whom he has accused of dishonesty, there would be nobody left but himself and C. Schurz.

Some Remarks About an Egregious Ass.

EDITOR ADVERTISER:—Now that the election is over, the miscigenation editor of the Granger handsomely doffs the sheep-skin from his recreant limbs and exhibits a profusion of wolf's claws and teeth and boldly assumes the arch-air which naturally belongs to one of the tribe when he has made more than a usually successful raid on some farmer's hen roost. As much as to say to every Republican, there's mischief and confusion in your party; big I and the little people did it, and "I respectfully ask Church Howe if he has learned who swept old Nemaha," seeming to assume that the main purpose of the whole election was to decide the question of superiority between the editor of the Granger and Church Howe. Hear him: "The Granger will fight the people's battles to the best of its ability," only asking in return, I suppose, that the aforesaid people will fall down and worship this self-constituted general, who thus volunteers to lead them to victory.

In proof of this proneness he goes on to state that either "the Republican papers, the leaders (and we suppose the party) were equally obnoxious to the people, or else the Granger has more influence than these four papers combined."

O yes, says the Granger, we and the dear people have come up through great political tribulations and sorrow, and by the powerful arm of the editor of the Granger, have snatched victory from defeat. Yet, he says that "the victory was not so complete as I wished, but it will do for the present." How kind of this would-be party leader, who thus encourages and stimulates his imaginary followers by saying to them, that you haven't come up to the wisdom of my counsels and did as complete a job as I could wish, but seeing it is the best you could do, I will have to put up with it for the present. Pating each one on the head, he wishes them, in future, to come up to the help of their lord against the mighty, and calls attention to the hosts that he has "licked," by stating that the Republican candidates, supported by four papers and a fully organized party, were in the field, and exclaims, "With what forces did we oppose them? Merely a few candidate's names and the war-like editor of the Granger, without any reinforcements in sight, thus making another plain case and modern instance of David and Goliath.

Thereupon the bold warrior unbuckles his military harness and proceeds to glorify and sanctify himself before his people the more fully to gather them under his wings, as it were. He says in a fatherly way, "What the Granger did in the campaign is before the people, and what our opposing papers did is also before the same tribunal. With the verdict (we suppose the editor of the Granger was foreman of the jury) thus far rendered, we are well pleased, and have no fears that it will be reversed or set aside."

Now, Bro. Moore, with all your bolting, ticket scalping Democratic proclivities, does it nowhere occur to you that you may be a trifle egotistical in this matter? Isn't it possible that you have mistaken the rear of what you are pleased to view as the people's forces for the head of their columns, and that while you are making powerful exertions to catch up with the said rear, you have from the violence of your efforts been led to imagine that you were leading the van? Isn't there a mistake somewhere?

Did it never strike you that perhaps in the eyes of the dear people you may not figure with all the significance and glory that you do in your own? That possibly you may be in the same predicament that the gnat was in the fable, who, when he lit on the ox's horn one summer day, said with a great buzz, "My dear fellow, pray excuse the liberty I take. If I am too heavy, only say so, and I will light on that tree yonder." "Stay or go, it makes no matter to me," replied the ox. "Had it not been for your buzz, I should not have known that you were there."

"PRUDENTIA."

Assistant Postmaster-General Hutton has decided that publishers of matter admitted to the mails as second-class may print upon the side of a postal card intended for communications, bills, receipts and orders for subscriptions to their publication or publications, and may also print the address of such publisher upon the address side of the card and enclose the same in the second-class matter.
