A dispatch says, "C. E. Perkins, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, sees nothing encouraging in the crop prospects of Illinois and Iowa, although Nebraska and Kansas promise well.

Iowa reports regarding corn crop show largely increased acreage all over the state, but on this side of the Divide the plant is very backward, looking yellow and sickly. On the western slope, extending into Nebraska, the prospect is splendid for a big crop. In the eastern part of the state steady hot weather is needed to secure even a moderate crop. Wheat and oats are in splendid condition.

The President and his managers started out to punish the majority of the Republican party that elected Garfield, and it is systematically excluding from office all who are opposed to a third term for Grant, and who object to the Republican party being disfranchised by machine tactics. —Kansas Chief.

That is a low down lie, as any one conversant with the President's appointments, well know. Some conscienceless newspapers started out determined to find fault with the administration, and they mean to do so, if they never utter another truth during their existence.

A man named John Roach recently went to the chief police of Jersey City, and desired to give himself up. "I helped to commit a murder in Pennsylvania ten years ago," explained Roach, "and have suffered so much since that I've decided to put an end to it by making a clean breast of the affair and taking punishment." Roach's statement is that ten years ago there lived near him at Ursine, Somerset county, Pa., a man named Levi Holm, who did not like a neighbor named Mitchell, who was courting his (Holm's) daughter. Holm and Roach agreed to way-lay Mitchell, and met him one night as he was going to see the young lady.
They attacked him and killed him.
Then they laid his body across the railroad track, but the train only cut off one of the arms of the murdered man.
Holm and others were arrested on suspicion at the time, but not held.

EXECUTION OF GUITEAU.

The death warrant demanded that the assassin should be hanged between the hours of 12 m. and 2 p. m., on the 30th of June.

At 12:53 the trap was sprung and he was hurled into eternity.

Guiteau's last night on earth was a restless one for him, he not sleeping more than twenty minutes at a time.
His last breakfast was taken at 6:30.
He ordered his dinner to be brought to him at 11 o'clock sharp, which was done, and which he ate with a relish.

Rev. Dr. Hicks was his constant attendant and spiritual adviser, who spared no pains in getting him ready for glory, and was up and watchful with him all the last night. Guiteau requested Dr. Hicks to arrange with the warden to have the trap sprung as soon after 12 o'clock as possible.

He said his heart was very tender, if so, a great improvement since a year ago when he shot his inoffensive victim in the back.

He was thoughtful to order all complimentary illusions to President Arthur to be stricken from his book. This because Arthur refused to pardon or respite him.

At 10 o'clock he took a bath.

J. W. Guiteau and Mrs. Scoville were in the city. The former witnessed the execution. Mrs. Scoville went to the jail door and stood and wept, but was not admitted. She sent her doomed brother in a flower cross and anchor.
He wore a pair of navy blue pants, and at 11:30 had his boots shined. About 12 he gave way to his feelings and wept hysterically, but soon regained his composure. The jail was surrounded with soldiers and artillery, and the clatter of the butts of muskets on the pavement disturbed him greatly.

At 12:25 Guiteau was led to the scaffold by the warden and other attendants and officials. An account of this moment says: "His face was pallid, and the muscles about his mouth moved nervously. Other than this there were no signs of faltering. The procession moved quickly to the scaffold and Guiteau ascended the somewhat steep steps with as much steady-ness as could be expected from a man whose arms were pinioned. At the last step he faltered a moment but was assisted by the officers who walked on either side." Guiteau gazed upon the crowd looked up at the beam overhead, and quickly made a survey of all the dread paraphernalia. As soon as the crowd had gained access Gen. Crocker waved to them to uncover, and all heads were bared.

DR. HICKS THEN PRAYED

in these words: "Father, out of the depths we cry to Thee. Hear thou our supplication for the sake of Jesus Christ, the Savior, who has made full preparation for us. Behold thy servant. We humbly pray that thou wilt deliver him at this supreme moment of his life. Let thy light descend upon him. Liberate his soul from prison.
May he appear before absolved by thy great mercy from blood guiltiness. Deliver him and us. God have mercy on us. Christ have mercy. Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy. Amen."

Dr. Hicks then opened the Bible and Guiteau read the tenth chapter of Matthews, 28th to 41st verse inclusive.
During the morning he had written his last prayer, which now, as his arms were pinioned, Dr. Hicks held before him and the prisoner after saying "I am now going to read to you my last dying prayer," read with deliberation and emphasis the following tirade:

Father, now I go to thee, and Savior, I have finished the work that thou gavest me to do, and I am only too happy to go to thee. The world does not yet appreciate my mission, but thou knowest it. Thou knowest thou didst inspire Garfield's removal, and only good has come from it. This is the best evidence that my inspiration came from thee, and I have set it forth in my book that all men may read and know that thou, Father, didst inspire the act for which I am murdered. The government and nation by this act, I know, will incur thy enemy, as did the Jews by killing thy man, my Savior. The retribution in that case came quick and sharp, and I know the divine law of retribution will strike this nation and my murderers in the same way. The diabolical spirit of this nation, its government and newspapers towards me will justify thee in cursing. That divine law of retribution is inexorable. I therefore predict that this nation will go down in blood and my murderers, from executive to hangman, will go to hell. Thy laws are inexorable. Oh, thou Supreme Judge, woe unto the men that violate thy laws. Only weeping and gnashing of teeth await them. The American press has a large bill to settle with thee, righteous Father, for their vindictiveness in this matter. Nothing but blood will satisfy them, and now my blood be on them and this nation and its officials. Arthur is a coward, and an ingrate. His ingratitude to me that made him and saved his party and the land from overthrow, has no parallel in history, but thou, righteous Father, will judge him. Father, thou knowest me, but the world hath not known me, and now I go to thee and the Savior, without the slightest ill-will towards a human being. Farewell, ye men of earth.

He then read and attempted to sing some silly verses, of which the following is a specimen:

I am going to the Lordy,
I am so glad I am going to the Lordy;

I am so glad I am going to the Lordy,
Glory, hallelujah! Glory, hallelujah!
I am going to the Lordy.
I love the Lordy with all my soul, Glory, hallelujah!
And that is the reason I am going to the Lordy, Glory, hallelujah! Glory, hallelujah!

At the close of this performance Hicks gave Guiteau his final benediction and farewell, saying, "God the Father be with thee and give thee peace forevermore." The attendants then pinioned his legs and carefully adjusted the noose about his neck. Mr.
Strong pulled the black cap over his head, and as he did so Guiteau called out in loud tones, "Glory, glory, glory!" Instantly the spring was touched, the drop fell, and Guiteau fell into the air.
The body turned partly around, but there was not the slightest perceptible movement of the limbs. When the drop fell a yell was set up by some person inside the jail. This was re-echoed outside by thousands of people who hurrahed lustily.

The execution was a success. The body hung half an hour, and was then lowered into the coffin.

The autopsy revealed the fact that the assassin's brain was not diseased—that is if "experts" know anything about it. The opinion that his crooked nature was of congenital origin—that his crazy meanness was born in him—is confirmed.

GUITEAU'S WILL.

WASHINGTON, June 29, 1882.—To the Rev. Wm. W. Hicks: I, Charles Guiteau, of the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, now under sentence of death, which is to be carried into effect between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock on the 30th day of June, A. D. 1882, in the United States Jail, in said District, do hereby give and grant you my body after such execution; provided, however, it shall not be used for any mercenary purposes; and I hereby, for good and sufficient considerations, give, deliver, and transfer to said Hicks my book entitled, "The Truth and Removal," and the copyright thereof, to be used by him in writing a

TRUTHFUL HISTORY OF MY LIFE and execution, and I direct that such history be entitled, "The Life and Work of Charles J. Guiteau," and I hereby solemnly proclaim and announce to all the world that no person or persons shall ever in any manner use my body for any mercenary purposes whatsoever. And if at any time hereafter any person or persons shall desire to honor my remains they can do it by erecting a monument, whereon shall be inscribed these words: "Here lies the body of Charles J. Guiteau, patriot and Christian. His soul is in glory."

CHARLES J. GUITEAU.

Witnesses—Charles H. Reed, James Woodward.

Mr. Conkling and Ireland.

At the Land League meeting in Boston, where Davitt spoke, the following letter from ex-Sonator Conkling was read:

NEW YORK, June 1, 1882.—Dear Sir: I am honored by your invitation to speak in Boston on the 17th inst. for Ireland and against her wrongs and woes. Such meetings ought to be held and Massachusetts is a well-chosen place to hold one. The cruelties and oppressions which Ireland has endured disgrace this century; they would disgrace any century in which nations pretend to love right and hate wrong.
It is the affair of man everywhere, and Americans especially should have something to say and something to do about it. I could say much and yet not express my horror and indignation at events which must shock manhood everywhere. I could utter an earnest hope that wherever firm, plain vigor will or may do good there will be no meaningless, colorless motions. Wither it will be possible for me to attend your meeting is all uncertain, but be this as it may, I am heart and soul with you in making a protest which all may hear.

ROSCOE CONKLING.

One of Church Howe's organs down in Nemaha county insist that the Bee must come down with the facts to sus-tain its assertion against corporate monopolies, and especially against railroad cappers. —Omaha Bee.

The Bee has reference to an article of ours, a week or two ago, in which we denied that railroads are menacing the "liberties of the people," hence the Bee in the above clipping, lies in its assertion and assumption. We demanded facts and figures going to show that the railroads are a curse to the country as the Bee and its cappers assert, and the column and a quarter of lies about Church Howe in the Bee, doesn't touch the question at all. The article of the Bee is simply the conception of a demagogue and a deceiver, who has not the honesty to treat a subject fairly nor the ability to make its charges good.
