Guiteau was buried in the jail in which he was hung. The brick floor was taken up, a grave seven feet deep dug, the assassin placed therein, covered up, the grave leveled and the brick replaced. This was done for safety of the body against vandalism.

Something more than the usual number of crimes and casualties occurred on the Fourth; but the most horrible was the sinking of the steamer Sciota, on the Ohio river near Mingo Junction, by collision with another boat. The Sciota had on board 500 excursionists many of whom were lost.

Take care of your Liver. A great number of the diseases to which mankind are liable arise from a disordered condition of this organ. Keep it in a sound and healthy condition and you can defy disease. Prickly Ash Bitters are especially adapted for this purpose, being composed of drugs which act on the Liver, giving it tone and strength to withstand malaria.

Miss Emma Bond taught school at Taylorville, Ill. Three men hid themselves in the garret of the school house until after school was dismissed in the evening, and the mistress was there alone, when they descended, and treated her in a most brutal manner. It is doubtful if she survives her injuries. The supposed villains have been arrested, and a company of militia guard the jail to protect them from the fury of the mob.

The Rev. George O. Barnes, the Kentucky evangelist, is now at Dayton, Ohio, for the purpose of holding a series of revival meetings. It is claimed for and by this gentleman that he has effected many very remarkable physical cures by anointment and prayer. In a recent interview he declared it was the Lord's doing, that he merely obeyed the dictates of heaven, and did not know how the cures were brought about. "I do not stop to inquire anything about that. The Lord bids me to anoint with oil, and I do it. I carry a very small vial of oil in my pocket, and just touch it slightly upon the forehead of the afflicted. I then pray with them earnestly in my simple way as best as I know how, and leave it all with the Lord, trusting Him for His word. And as my faith becomes simpler and stronger my success becomes more marked. I have never had a failure where unbelief did not interfere. The cures are not always immediate. In some cases they are instantaneous and in others they are not. I have had thousands of cases, and know of three or four hundred who have come to me to tell me they got well."

Guiteau's Body. Washington, D. C., July 5.—The Evening Star says: Monday night a wagon drove from the jail into one of the alleys through which the rear part of the army medical museum is reached. This wagon, without doubt, contained the body of Guiteau. At the army medical museum to-day none of the physicians or other officials would say anything about the whereabouts of Guiteau's body or what would be done with it. Dr. Lamb said very decidedly, "I don't know anything." Before it was decided to bury the body in jail, Warden Crocker had an understanding with Dr. Hicks that it should be removed to the army medical museum. Warden Crocker, when asked about this latest removal, seemed rather displeased that anything had been said concerning it. He said simply, "If the body is not at the medical museum it will be there in a day two." It was the warden's intention not to make the fact of exhuming public for some weeks at least. Rev. Dr. Hicks was at the office of the register of wills this morning with the will of Guiteau, making inquiry as to probating it, etc. He did not file the document.

Should Gladstone push forward to protect the interests of England in Egypt and the Suez canal with the vigor and promptness that his preparations would seem to indicate is intentions, he will fasten his party in power indefinitely. The manliness of his withdrawal from the cruel and unjust war with the Boers impressed every sensible and intelligent man with profound respect. If he will fight, when right, as readily as he refused to fight when wrong, he will show that diplomacy is a matter of principle and not of art, deceit and finesse. Such an accomplished fact would mark him a giant, even among Bismarcks and Gortschakoffs.

A traveler writing of the big trees of Mariposa, Cal., says: We took the trouble to measure one of them with a line drawn around it five feet above the ground, and found it to be a little over eighty-four feet in circumference, or more than twenty-eight feet in diameter. One of the trees has had a hole cut through it, and the big coach and four drives through it without the least hindrance, there being on each side of the drive way more than ten feet thickness of the tree. These trees are certainly wonderful in size and height, and can be fully appreciated only by being seen.

After a year of hard work some of the law-loving citizens of St. Louis succeeded in getting the leading gamblers of that city in the penitentiary, Governor Crittenden steps in and pardons them out. The pardons were offered for the reason that the gamblers promised not to "gamble any more." Such acts on the part of the executive of the great State of Missouri can be construed in no other light than lending aid to crime.—Rock Port Journal. Governor Crittenden in his efforts after train and bank robbers was gaining a good reputation, but by those pardons he kicks over his bucket of milk.
