A German farmer named Beckler was drowned in Blue river last week, while seining near Dorchester.

Samuel Schneider, wholesale liquor merchant of Kansas City, has failed. Liabilities $50,000; assets $30,000.

The President has approved the act enabling national banking associations to extend their corporate existence.

A writer says "no man is fully understood until after his death." No one wants to die, however, for the purpose of explaining himself.

It has been remarked that a large nose is a sign of character. So is a red nose but it is a more brilliant sign, and of a different character.

The Seward Reporter has come to the conclusion that the Omaha Herald is no prophet. We think it guesses straight on congressional matters.

At Texarkana, Ark., night of the 12th, lightning struck a three-story brick building, the walls of which fell on a saloon, killing about twenty-five persons.

William Ritter, a colored man, in Henderson county, Ky., charged with raping and murdering a 14-year old colored girl, was taken from the jail by a mob and hanged.

Milton Smith, of Kirkwood, Iowa, was shot and killed last week by his twelve-year old son. The father had chastised the boy for some misconduct, when in a rage he slipped into the house got a shotgun and at short range put a load of No. 4 shot into his father's side. The boy is in jail.

At Tyler, Texas, a few days ago D. J. Healy, chief dispatcher of the International and Great Northern R. R., was shot and instantly killed by a conductor named Cook, whom Healy had refused to let take out a train. Cook escaped, but the railroad men are after him. Superintendent Harris at their head.

When Alexandria was evacuated, the city was set on fire by released convicts, and every abomination and outrage to be conceived of were inflicted upon such citizens as could not leave. Hundreds of Christians and Europeans were massacred. A number of Europeans fought their way to the boats and were saved. Alexandria, about fifty thousand inhabitants is about destroyed.

The Captain of the steamer Sciota, which by a careless collision with another boat caused the death of more than sixty young men and women, has come to a sensible conclusion. He says "no pilot on any river should allow himself to take a drink of whisky." And all captains of boats and managers of railroads would do well to apply that rule to themselves and employ no pilot, engineer, or conductor who has a habit of drinking whisky.

A telegram from Syracuse, N. Y., tells this story of beer and blood. At 5 o'clock this afternoon James Hawks, a laborer, killed his wife. Mrs. Hawks had purchased a pail of beer in a saloon, and was returning home when she met her husband, who was intoxicated. Hawks whipped out a jack-knife and without a word stabbed his wife to the heart. He threw the knife away and staggered up the street. Hawks when informed that his wife was dead exclaimed, "I am d--d glad of it. It is a good thing for me."

On the 16th inst., in Chicago, Chas. Stiles, the official "caller" of the Chicago Provision, Grain and Stock Board, was shot and killed in his room at the Palmer House, by his mistress, known in the city as Madaline Stiles, but whose real name was Effie Sturla. She was induced by Stiles several years ago to leave her home in Baltimore, where her parents live, and accompany him to Chicago, where he has used her money and abused her ever since. If her story is half true regarding her ill-treatment by Stiles, he met the fate he courted and in a great measure deserved.

Republican State Convention.
The Republican Electors of the State of Nebraska are hereby called to send delegates from the several counties to meet in State Convention at Omaha on Wednesday, September 20th, A. D. 1882, at 7 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the following named offices, viz:

Governor.
Lieutenant-Governor.
Secretary of State.
Auditor.
Treasurer.
Attorney-General.
Commissioner of Public Lands and Buildings.

And to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention.

The several counties are entitled to representation in the State Convention as follows, based upon the vote cast for Isaac Powers, Jr., in 1881, for regent of the State University: Giving one delegate to each one hundred and fifty (150) votes, and one delegate for the fraction of seventy-five (75) votes or over; also one delegate at large for each organized county.

It is about sixteen years since the United States purchased from Russia the Territory of Alaska, agreeing in the treaty of purchase to extend to the inhabitants the operation and protection of our laws. The necessity of providing some form of government for the territory has several times been urged upon the attention of Congress, and yet hitherto nothing has been done. Now, however, two bills are pending before Congress—one in the Senate and one in the House of Representatives—that propose to establish a government in Alaska. The Senate bill provides for the full machinery of an ordinary territorial government, while the House bill provides for an attorney of the United States, a district judge, and four commissioners, with the powers of justices of the peace, to whom the management of civil and criminal matters in Alaska is to be committed for the time being. This is, perhaps, sufficient until the territory shall be further developed. The present population of the territory is about thirty-five thousand, of whom only about fifteen hundred are white people. This population is now without any government, except such as has been extemporized by the people themselves. It is to be hoped that Congress will not let this session pass without providing some form of government for Alaska. The present condition of things is fraught with evils of a very grave character among the people and is withal a disgrace to the United States, and certainly is not in harmony with our treaty stipulations with Russia at the time of purchase. Congress has ample power to supply the proper remedy, and should do so, without further delay.—New York Independent.

As a piece of political gossip, to be taken for what each reader thinks it worth, we will state that one of the most far-sighted politicians in the state thinks Church Howe will be the next governor, and Albinus Nance the next senator, their elections to be brought about by the same combination that carried the Slocumb apportionment laws. Those whom it may concern should stick a pin here.—Falle City Journal.

The Beatrice creamery is making five hundred pounds of butter a day, which gives the company a profit of $300 per week. Buildings for the same purpose are being erected in Fairbury and they expect to do as well. We hope soon to see Fairmont branching out in the same direction. That $300 per week profit is worth reaching for.—Fairmont Bulletin.

Judging from the immense quantities of railroad material at Nemaha City, Auburn and Tecumseh, and the accumulation of laborers and teams on the construction line, the B. & M. means "business" and that right speedily on the Republican Valley route.
