Fruit cans at Willing Bros. & Jordans.

The Catholic church is just finished beautifully.

Work on the tank for the railroad is progressing.

Uncle Johnnie Maxwell, of Nemaha, was in town last Saturday.

The Saline county delegation are instructed for Mr. Dawes for governor.

Mrs. Ann Waterworth, of Elk Creek, was in the city Saturday and gave the ADVERTISER a pleasant call.

S. A. Osborn is shipping wood to Auburn. Hank Wert is handling it and will sell you a load cheap.

True to his promise, Vemior brought us a rain Saturday, not very heavy, but it was thankfully received nevertheless.

Chas. D. Nixon and P. P. Starin, president and cashier of the Bank of Auburn, were in the south side last Thursday.

Hugh Stokes was in the city last Thursday setting up the cigars a little in advance of the happy occasion of that evening.

Mr. P. C. Westover, of Lincoln, is now occupying the position of agent at the B. & M. depot, until Mr. Wykes return from the east.

Miss Stella Huddart, one of South Auburn's handsome daughters, has our thanks for a fine large Windsor pear, measuring ten inches.

Mr. T. J. Metcalf, a prosperous farmer and an old subscriber to the ADVERTISER, was in the city Saturday and renewed his subscription.

Tom Jones orders the ADVERTISER sent to his brother in Virginia this week. That is right, every paper sent away advertises our town just that much.

Mr. A. P. Neible, of Hamburg, Iowa, came down to see his sister, Miss Annie, last Sunday, before his final departure for California. This will be Mr. Neible's third trip across the "Rockies."

A Douglas county, Neb., farmer writes the following sensible suggestion through the Republican: Many are delaying plowing because the ground is hard and dry. Some are plowing, and they are the ones that will reap the benefit of having the weeds all killed for the next year's crop. Every weed will be killed, lumps turned up and dried, and the hard will all slack the first rain. Put on an extra team and plow now. is the advice of one who has tried it.

A state convention of anti-prohibitionists was recently held in Omaha. The following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

We, of the people of Nebraska, in mass convention assembled, do solemnly and considerably declare that the prohibitory measures that of late have become the fundamental law of certain of our sister states, are founded in wrong and injustice, and that they are subversive of the best interests of the whole people.

That prohibition strikes down the producer, robs the farmer of the fruits of his honest toil, palsies the arm of all the industries, interferes with the inalienable rights of the people in the enjoyment of their civil and religious liberty; invokes a spirit of disregard for and encourage open violation of law, breeds contempt for courts and the solemn adjudications thereof, and is the seed that being planted, will grow and ripen into open rebellion and riotous discord.

That we are opposed to drunkenness and to all its attendant abuses affecting society and individuals growing out of an improper use of alcoholic stimulants.

That we are in favor of wise and just legislation regulating the sale of alcoholic liquors and for the protection of society and individuals from the evils growing out of the abuse of its use.

That prohibition will not accomplish this purpose, and that we are opposed to prohibitory legislation in any form; therefore,

Resolved, That in season and out of season and at all times we will, without regard to party or party lines, oppose any and every measure that leads to prohibition.

Resolved, That we will not support any man for any office who will not satisfactorily pledge himself to oppose any and all attempts to force upon this people a prohibitory law.

North Auburn News.

Miss Katie Crandall is out of town at present, paying a visit to her sister. Mrs. G. A. Webb was quite unwell last week, but at this writing (Monday) is much better.

W. T. Reed has just put up a neat awning in front of his store.

Mr. David Campbell moved his family out from Brownville last week and is now a fixed resident of Auburn.

Mr. Thomas' new store building will soon be completed and will add not a little to the appearance to the town.

Howe and Nixon are measuring out the lots at a very lively rate. Several strangers came to town lately and bought themselves rich.

Geo. A. Webb went up to Omaha last week to take in the fair and see after business belonging to the barber shop.

Watermelons are on deck once more and are being sold at very reasonable prices. George Webb don't you wish you had another?

J. W. Kerns is getting a large stock of lumber and building material of all kinds, besides an immense quantity of coal, 40,000 feet of moulding was added to his stock last week.

Nearly every house-keeper in the country is engaged in "putting up" grapes, peaches, apples, etc.—Pass the desert please.

It has been a long time since the roads were as dusty as they are now, and a good shower of rain would certainly be a blessing and a welcome visitor to the farmer.

The Bank of Auburn under the management of Mr. P. P. Starin, ably assisted by Mr. Chas. E. Waite, is doing an extensive business. Mr. Starin has had considerable experience in the banking business and of course knows how it ought to be done.

The season for club dances and all such amusements will soon be upon us and a meeting of all the merry souls of North Auburn will soon be convened to form a club and make times lively.

Miss Dora Skillman is expected home in a few days to take charge of her school. The school building is undergoing repairs and new desks will be added in a short time.

Mr. John Mutz moved into his new residence not long ago. He has one of the neatest and most elegant houses in Auburn.

Mr. John Leach is building an elegant house on his farm east of town. The building is a large and commodious one, and was laid out in a manner that shows taste and forethought. C. C. Cottrell is doing the work.

The fall term of school has begun in most of the districts. Misses Jennie and Annie, daughters of Mr. John Maley, of peach-raising fame, have been engaged to teach and left home last Monday to take charge of their schools.

Our new elevator is lying idle. G. W. Craig, the manager left it in an unfinished condition and set out for "parts unknown." Several attachments have been filed on the property and no one appears to want to take the matter in hands and fix it up. On this account very little business is done in the way of buying and selling grain in North Auburn.

Nate Miller is talking of moving his stock of goods up to the square. Nate is a shrewd business man and can see about as far ahead of him as a man with a ten-dollar telescope.

Mrs. Schiasman, who was visiting at Dan Long's, went home to Cass county last week, she was much pleased with her visit to Auburn and thinks it is a delightful little town.

There is talk of another drug store going to be built here, but nothing definite is yet known. Madam Rumor must have at least 50 "says" first.

Mr. Ben. Sears, a stockholder in the First National Bank of Bucyrus, Ohio, was in town a few days ago with a view of locating in Nebraska. He owns a large tract of land in the western part of Nemaha county, and will move on to it as soon as he gets it suitably fixed up. Still they come.

We would like to see a good social club organized in Auburn with representatives from both sides. There are enough young folks in the two towns to get up a good social club and have something to make amusement for all. It would be a good idea to call a meeting either in one town or the other and see if something cannot be done in the way of organizing a club.

Peter Laughlin, foreman of the new court house building at Palo Pinto, Texas, went into a saloon there. He was invited to drink by two cowboys named Whitely and Underwood. Laughlin declined the invitation, whereupon Whitely drew a revolver and attempted to shoot him, but Laughlin knocked the weapon from his hand. Whitely then drew a dirk and stabbed Laughlin to the heart. Whitely and Underwood mounted their horses and fled, pursued by a posse of citizens, but escaped after wounding one of the posse and shooting the horse of another. Underwood is a brother of Henry Underwood, the famous train robber of the Sam Bass gang.

H. S. Scribner, an old man and brother of the New York publisher, was recently murdered at Des Moines, Iowa, by burglars while attempting to enter his room.

Susan B. Anthonie, has visited the state to prattle and prate, about the supremacy of her.

The Theory of Generation.

Cor. National Live Stock Journal. The power of animals to propagate their own likeness is hereditary, and transmitted from one generation to another. The principle upon which the theory of generation is founded reaches from the inception of the colt embryo to the delivery. The breeder, to be successful, must investigate causes that produce certain changes after the union between the sexes, as well as the effect resulting from the influence of each parent over their offspring. The sire and dam have their respective shares in propagating the form and substance of their issue. They cooperate together in generating the vital and physical powers of their produce; and the breeder must understand the influence of each partner, in order to mate progenitors so as to make congenial hits. The food of the embryo is furnished entirely by the mother. It is held by some physiologists that the health and robust constitution of the colt will depend more upon the condition of the sire. But this maternal influence is modified by other causes, such as long-line breeding, coming down from an unbroken chain of powerful progenitors, and possessing the prepotent faculty of entailing their breeding on an illustrious line of successors in blood. The influence of sire or dam over their colts will depend very much upon their blood, and the constitutional superiority of one over the other. The strongest and best-bred animal will have the predominating influence over their produce. The more powerful the inheritance, and the stronger the inbreeding—avoiding incest—the more certain the inheritance will be entailed, unaltered, on their colts.
