Mrs. Landis Heilman, an excellent musician and an experienced teacher, of Tecumseh, gave us a pleasant call Tuesday. She is well pleased with South Auburn, and has organized a music class in the city. See her "ad" in another column.

Our old friend of Tecumseh, Frank Dinning, is canvassing the school districts of this county in behalf of the school books of Barnes & Co. Mr. D. is an old hand at the business, and can talk school books with any one from experience and practical knowledge.

Mr. G. G. Burton, agent for the school books of Harper & Bros., is a frequent and welcome caller at this office. He has been having considerable printing done in the way of placing the merits of his books before the people, and introducing them into the schools of the county.

Our long time friend Joseph Lovess called Saturday. He and family will read the old and reliable paper another year. He said, "we take other papers and thought of stopping it, but could not make up our minds to do it, for to miss its weekly visits now would be to deprive ourselves of an old, familiar and inexpensive pleasure."

With long years of experience and close application to business, I know I am better prepared to furnish you with pure, fresh drugs and medicines, and at lower prices than at any drug house in the county. I guarantee everything that goes from my house to be of full strength and of the best quality.

A. W. NICKELL, Brownville.

There is bitter war in Nemaha county at this time between the school books agents who represent the houses of Harper & Bros. and Barnes & Co. As to the merits of the contestants, or books, there are various opinions, and neither side is the favorite by a large majority, as it seems to us. However the result may be we hope the districts, or patrons of schools will act with discretion and be benefitted.

We spent the afternoon of last Saturday over at the north side of town, and found business apparently very lively, as we counted twenty-one farmers' wagons on the main business street at one time. We also noticed that there were a number of well-dressed strangers in town; and we particularly noticed that there were town lot owners on hand to show strangers around, talk up the advantages and prospects of the locality and induce them to purchase and locate, if possible. It is gratifying to see our North Auburn friends wide awake, and that they know well the secret of getting up and perpetuating a boom.
