The preamble disapproves of the policy of the National Government for the last six years, and especially of Buchanan's administration; deprecates the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, and the Kansas outrage; holds the Dred Scott decision to be erroneous; that slavery cannot exist except by positive, local law; is alarmed at the prodigious waste of treasure lavished upon unworthy favorites; gives the foreign policy of the government a thrust; and after a few minor growls at the neglect of Inland Navigation, subversion, etc., passes on to declare...

The Late Elections, South.
The recent elections south, prove conclusively, that politics are somewhat liable to change, and are not necessarily "fixed facts" because they become permanent in a particular locality for a time. This is true of Democracy in 55 and '57, in the same section...

After speeches from Thayer, Daley, Bennett and others, in which they expressed their mutual gratification, at what they construed to be declarations in the Democracy, they balloted nine times for a candidate to be politically killed, next month, but without making a choice. They took a recess of ten minutes and when they re-assembled determined to make Mr. Daley, of Nemaha, the victim...

After the nomination was declared unanimous, Bennett of Ouse, fired at the flock, and came near breaking the thing up in a row. He harped the "harmony" so much urged, and so easily wanting previously, by talking of "repaying treachery with interest," and denouncing learnedly and freely, but bitterly, on "false hopes." He sought to thank his stars that he escaped, narrowly as he did.

This is a fair and we believe, a correct account of their doings. It shows conclusively, that Republicanism in '59 is strikingly different from what it was in '56. Congressional intervention is ignored altogether, on the alternative question, and the Territorial Legislature claimed to have power to prohibit the institution. We think this is crowding towards Popular Sovereignty pretty fast, for men who fought it so valiantly and denounced it so lavishly a short time since. They have copied extensively, the essentials in the Democratic Platform, as is evident to any one who compares the two. It stripped of what it stealthily borrowed in this manner, Republicanism, in Nebraska, would not have a rag of principle left to cover its nudity. Its chief advocates in this territory, are reckless aspirants, men of untamed ambition, who have been unaguetually, drawn into this political vortex, where they will be whirled round for a time, but sooner or later, be dashed to pieces.

The following gentlemen were nominated at the same time, and same place, and by the same convention, and are as sure of to use vulgar parlance—"going up the spout" as that they are nominated. John H. Kellom, School Commissioner, H. W. Dupuy Territorial Auditor, —Sweet, Territorial Treasurer, O. T. Davis Territorial Librarian.

P. W. Hitchcock was nominated for District Attorney of the first Judicial District.

Gen. Estabrook.
On taking the chair Mr. Taffe indulged in the usual remarks, appropriate on such occasions, and hoped the Convention would be harmonious. He had scarce ceased speaking when a Mr. Holloway, disregarding the advice, commenced maligning the motives of other gentlemen present, and intimated that if they did not do things after his fashion there would be fraud. Next the 'Peoples party' delegates from Nebraska City—who, as their spokesman Mr. Irish, declared, had no political identification for years—had to be amused in order to keep the gathering harmonious. They were opposed to making that Convention a Republican concern, and if a design of that kind was promulgated they determined it should be frustrated at once, as Republicanism in Nebraska, was not likely to win.

The Convention here, organized permanently, by electing W. D. McCord of Cass, President. After this one Evers, inveighed against the 'People's delegates' in a style that made things wear an appearance the reverse of 'harmonious.' The charge of bad faith was made and reiterated with such volubility and vehemence, that the walls of the school house in which they were assembled reverberated, 'bad faith.' Irish in defence, stated he 'wouldn't and shouldn't favor the adoption of the Philadelphia Platform,' and this laudatory declaration was received with rounds of recitation. After testing the 'sense of the meeting' by an informal ballot, they gave way to receive the report of the Committee on Resolutions.

We have not room this week, for this interesting document entire, but will give a synopsis of its main features.

Eyes Howard—His favorite Missouri river Steamboat was sunk on the 11th of August by striking a snag in the Orange shoals. She was valued at $10,000 and insured for $25,000.

Electron in Missouri—Ewing is elected Supreme Judge in Missouri. The latest returns officially give: Ewing, 84,152; Hall, 22,729; Adams, 22,729. There are ten counties yet to hear from which will increase Ewing's majority.

Steam Boat Disaster, is situated in Congress from Oregon by forty five majority. This is official. The returns will be found in today's Register. Our congratulations of the Republican Press were premature.—[Cos. Ex-press]

Washington, August 22, 1859.

Our Constitution there can be no just distinction between the right of a native born and naturalized citizen to obtain the protection of our government, at home and abroad. Unless naturalization releases the person naturalized from all obligations which he owes to his native country by virtue of his allegiance, it leaves him in the end and predicament of owing allegiance to two countries, without receiving protection from either—a dilemma in which no American citizen should ever be placed.

Neither have you misapprehended my opinion in respect to the African slave trade. That question seriously disturbed the harmony of the convention which framed the Federal Constitution. Upon that delegates divided into two parties, under circumstances which for a time rendered harmonious action impossible. The one demanding the instant and unconditional prohibition of the African slave trade, on moral and religious grounds; while the other insisted that it was a legitimate commerce, involving no consideration that would amount to public policy, which each State ought to be permitted to determine for itself, so long as it was sanctioned by its own laws.

Such a compromise was effected and incorporated into the constitution, by which it was understood that the African slave trade might continue as a legitimate commerce, in those States who chose to continue it, until the year 1808, from and after which time Congress might and would prohibit it forever, throughout the dominion and limits of the United States, and pass all laws which might become necessary to make such prohibitions effectual. The harmony of the convention was restored and the Union saved by this compromise, without which the constitution could never have been made.

I stand firmly by this compromise, and by all the other compromises of the constitution, and shall use my best efforts to carry each and all of them into faithful execution, in the sense and with the understanding in which they were originally adopted. In accordance with this compromise, I am respectively opposite to the revival of the African slave trade, in any form and under any circumstances.

Indian Troubles in Southern Kansas.
We have thousands of serious Indian troubles in Southern Kansas. A gentleman has arrived in Kansas city and reported that the Kaws, Osages, and Comanches had collected in Butler and Greenwood counties to the number of five thousand, threatening destruction to the whites of that region.

Nothing to Wear.—The New York Express publishes a statement of the business done at that port in foreign dry goods for the past month. The totals compared with the two previous seasons, stand thus:

These figures show how low some of the panic extravagances helped as much as being on two years ago, and how ready she is with her silks, satins, and velvets, to go blind, and to go it "with a rush" again. Seventy-one millions worth of dry goods in seven months! "Nothing to wear," indeed.

Mormon Population.—The statistics of the Mormon population is thus given in the Valley Times.

The highest edifices in the world are the following: The Pyramid of Ghizah, Egypt, - 648 feet; Cathedral at Cologne, - 501 "

The Rev. Dr. Kenrick, Archbishop of Baltimore, is staying with his brother, the Archbishop of St. Louis. These gentlemen, own brothers, and both Archbishops, have seen each other but twice in eighteen years, owing to the heavy labors imposed upon them by their archbishoprics.

The Romans are represented as saying that the Pope is too upright, too generous and too fatherly for a temporal ruler. They say they want a wicked worldling, to be ever so much a Nero. They should have their pleasure for a short time.—[Pittsburgh Post]

Wisconsin Banks.—According to the Bank Convention reports, the Wisconsin Banks are now winding up their business. For the redemption of the outstanding notes of these banks securities have been assigned to the State Treasurer in trust amounting to the aggregate of $270,700.

A GREAT MAN.—George Lippard in his work called the Nazarine, thus speaks of Gen. Jackson:

"It was a man! Well I remember the day I waited upon him. He sat there in his arm chair. I saw his nose! We told him of the public affairs—the manufacturers ruined—the Regins abroad in groups, which were carried at the head of 20,000 men into Independence Square. He heard us all. We begged him to leave the depositories where they were, to uphold the great Bank at Philadelphia. Still he did not say a word. At last one of our members more fiery than the rest, intimated if the Bank was crushed, a rebellion might follow. Then the old man rose—I can see him yet."

"Come on!" he shouted, in a voice of thunder, as his clenched hand was raised high above his head with bayonets in his hands instead of his fingers. "I am ready for you! With the people at my back, whom your gold can neither buy nor buy, I will swing you up around the Capitol, each one of you, on gibbets as high as Haman's!"

Electors.—Houston is elected beyond doubt in Texas, and Moore, Dem, is elected in Alabama for Governor over Sanford Opp by from twenty to thirty thousand majority. Moore was a Popular Sovereignty man and opposed to the Slave Trade. Fitzpatrick will be returned to Senate on the same issue.
