HARPER'S
New Monthly Magazine
 Critical Notices of the Press.
 It is the foremost Magazine of the day. The Review never had a more delightful companion, nor the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this as an excellent example of the best of the American press; and the possibility it has acquired is marvellous. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, and is illustrated with good wood cuts, and is so bound as to last the year. It is published weekly, and is sent to subscribers, bound with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature, and is a valuable addition to any library.
 The volume published consists of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as cannot be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Dublin Courier.
