This is the old hobby, and is not worth the paper used by the petitioners. The question of locating the county seat was decided by a vote of the pecple once, and Platismouth had a majority over all other places. It would be but a waste of time to revive this ques tion, and would only make sectional feeling in the county without changing the county seat. What is the use of agitating this question, when it is well known that not less than four-fifths of the people are opposed to it?
