Wholesome Truth for Irishmen.

The Irish Republic, printed at Chicago, is one of the ablest newspapers published in the West. It is earnest in its support of the principles which underlie the Fenian organization, and battles manly for the disenfranchisement of Ireland from British domination and tyranny.

"Who knows not that the giant hand of the American Republic could, at a single blow, smash to atoms the blood stained fabric of English tyranny, and leave Ireland free from her deep degradation, and take her place of power and prosperity among the free nations of the earth?"

The sovereign people of America have stood by and suffered the sacrifice of Ireland, without either earnest remonstrance or anything like effectual interference. To this course of conduct there were, in our judgment, two grand causes contributing.

Another leading cause of the indifference and action with which the people of America have treated the question of Irish national independence has been the spirit of intolerance which Irishmen have, in too many instances, displayed towards each other.

The Progress of the Conspiracy

It is but a few days more than one month since Congress adjourned. One of the most exciting and interesting debates of the July session was on the question of adjournment; and already the country sees that it was one of the most important questions considered at that session.

Cheap Telegraphing.

The recently published announcement of the government of Prussia, that it will extend the telegraphing system to every town of 1,500 inhabitants, is an earnest of what every government should do for its people, and might be more easily and profitably accomplished in the United States than elsewhere.

Loyal Germans, do you know that one of the Editors of the Independent? Council Bufile Press—Mr. Warden—asserted not long since that nine tenths of his German brethren, the men of his own blood and nationality who entered the federal army, had gone into the service for the purpose of making money?

Grant's Indictment of the President

The Detroit Post regards the letter of General Grant as the grand indictment on which Andrew Johnson "will be tried and convicted, and removed from office."

The Chicago Tribune

very justly observes that the recent charge of Judge Underwood to the grand jury of Richmond "is a disgrace to the bench." After quoting a passage of the Judge's foolery, the Tribune asks: "Is this a judicial charge or is it a cavalry charge?"

The below named gentlemen constitute the Board of Directors of the St. Joseph and Council Bluffs Railroad. We give the names and residences: Hon. J. F. Joy, of Detroit Michigan.

The following extract in regard to delinquent subscribers, we take from an exchange. It speaks the sentiments of the press generally, when it says: "Except the cash system is exclusively and rigidly observed, we know of no business whose bills are so difficult to collect."

N. A. Gray, formerly a staunch

Democrat, and connected with the Cleveland Plaindealer, has experienced a change of heart: "I am in favor of giving a vote to four classes of colored men: First—I would give it to all who had borne arms in putting down the accused rebellion."

As an indication of the increasing tendency of the public mind to favor the proposed impeachment of the President, it is mentioned that among the newspapers which now favor it is The Chicago Republican, a paper that has previously been quite earnest in denouncing it.

The Chicago Tribune very justly observes that the recent charge of Judge Underwood to the grand jury of Richmond "is a disgrace to the bench." After quoting a passage of the Judge's foolery, the Tribune asks: "Is this a judicial charge or is it a cavalry charge?"

The velocity with which sound travels depends to a great extent upon the temperature and condition of the atmosphere. When at the freezing point it passes at the rate of 303 yards per second, but when the thermometer attains to 62 deg. Fahrenheit, sound runs at the rate of 765 miles an hour,

The great railroad bridge across the Mississippi river at Quincy, which was begun in December last, is being pushed ahead, and it is expected that it will be completed by September, 1868. It is to be the longest of its kind in the United States, measuring one mile and four rods from shore to shore, with a main draw 360 feet in length—both worked by steam. The estimated cost is $1,250,000.

One of the boys in a New Orleans school was asked, after various definitions had been given by others, mostly quite correct, what was meant by the verb to tantalize. He replied: "It was to ask a great many questions, and then to criticize the answers."

Bayard Taylor says that men of all parties in Europe speak of Andy Johnson in terms of contempt—the "governing classes," because he has disgraced the highest office of the Republic, and the masses because he has done so much to hinder the progress of freedom.

A Missourian informed a traveler who had inquired about corn, that "each stalk had nine ears on it and was fifteen feet high." "That's nothing to our corn," replied the traveler. "Up in Illinois where I came from we always had nine ears to each stalk and a peck of shelled corn hanging to each tassel; but never could raise any field beans with it."

Because the corn grew so it always pulled the beans up.

EDITORIAL COURTESY.—The editor of the Foxtown Fusilier is a generous fellow. In his last number he says: "Postscript—We stop the press with pleasure to announce the decease of our contemporary, Mr. Snaggs, editor of the Foxtown Flash. He is now gone to another and better world. Persons who have taken the Flash will find the Fusilier a good paper."

Why don't you wheel that barrow of coals, Ned?" said a learned miner to one of his sons. "It is not a very hard job; there is an inclined plane to relieve you." "Ah," replied Ned, who had more relish for wit than work, "The plane may be inclined but hang me if I am."

A Gipsy woman once promised for a dollar to show two young ladies the faces of their future husbands in a pail of water. They looked and exclaimed: "Why we see nothing but our faces!" "Well," said the Gipsy, "those faces will be your husbands' when you are married."

"Jennie," said a venerable

Cameronian to his daughter, who was asking his consent to accompany her urgent and favored suitor to the altar. "Jennie, it is a very solemn thing to get married." "I know it," replied Jennie, "but it is a deal more solemn not to."

The New York gamblers have organized a protective union with Heenan for President, to fight "The Society for the Suppression of Gambling." At one of their meetings, a speaker claimed that the business was as legitimate as stock speculation. It would be hard to dispute the proposition.

As the steamboat Oregon was passing a few days since, a newly arrived Irishman belonging to the celebrated O'Regan family, was heard to exclaim—"O-r-e-g-o-n-O'Regan: oh, be jabsers! only four weeks in the country yet, and a steamboat christened after me!"

"Where was John Rogers burned to death?" said the teacher to me in a commanding voice. I couldn't tell; to the next, no answer. "Joshua knows," said a little girl at the foot of the class. "Well," said the teacher, "if Joshua knows he may tell." "In the fire," said Joshua, looking very wise.

A boy who asked a Boston police officer for shelter in the station-house, said: "See, Cap'n, first my father died, and my mother married again, and then my mother died, and my father married again, and somehow or other I don't seem to have no parents at all, nor no home, nor no nothing."

A countryman going to market with a load of pork, was met by a young girl who very genteelly made him a low courtesy, when he exclaimed: "What! do you make a courtesy to dead hogs?" "No, sir," answered the girl, "to a live one."
