REHABILITATION OF CRIME. The Republican and the Democratic Parties Contrasted.

The rise and march of the Republican party—which culminated in the election of Lincoln—was but the protest of an outraged and indignant nation against the existence of the worst form of human slavery; existing, too, in the only free Republic on earth.

The Republican party in certain districts raised the banner of temperance, the others immediately invited the whole country into the camp, where "whisky straight" or crooked was tendered to all.

The Republican party, on the night of Lincoln's assassination, embraced the truth of America in numbers and caliber Lincoln was the acknowledged center around which the great body revolved.

When Lincoln fell, the Republican army lost a General who has not yet been replaced. Here is where the great army that carried the starry flag of freedom through the great rebellion and brought it back crowned with victory, began to struggle.

The pigmy whom an inscrutable Providence and a conciliatory party placed in the second post of honor, and who took the dead giant's place, and who should have followed up the programme of his great predecessor to a severe and successful end, betrayed his trust and sold the cause of the people.

who, while inwardly sympathizing with their more honorable friends of the South during the war, vented their hatred only in groggeries and secret conclaves.

For any recent seeming Democratic victories, or, as we call it, the "Rehabilitation of Crime," the Republicans have none but their leaders to blame.

The sympathizers with the rebellion, and, of course, all the rebels, are Democrats. In fact, the Democratic party, at this hour, is but a grand conspiracy of all the criminals of the nation to get possession of the Treasury and reverse the decision gained on the battle-fields at the expense of four hundred thousand lives.

The great and absolute necessity of the time is, that the men who have endeavored to destroy this Republic shall not get into power. All other considerations must be put aside.

Wonderful Escape.—On Monday last a little five year old daughter of widow Grant, living about four miles south west of town, fell into a well fifty feet deep.

There is a ladder to heaven, whose base is placed in human affections, tender instincts, symbolic feelings, sacraments of love, through which the soul rises higher and higher, refined as she goes, till she outgrows the human, and changes, as she rises, into the divine.

TRUTH. An Essay read before Olive Branch Lodge, No. 2, I. O. of G. T., Oct 22d, 1867.

"Truth, though crushed to earth, shall rise again; The eternal years of God are hers."

They fade, they fly—but truth survives their flight; Scarce has she been to quench their thirst of lies." She goes marching on from conquering unto conquest, and now she is marshaling her hosts against her most subtle enemy, Alcohol—the damning foe of our beloved land and which is now snapping at our great nation's head.

How then can temperance societies grow old or tedious, more than the scriptures or preaching. The female portion of society should league together, in self defence, on this subject, for they are terrible sufferers; and they have it in their own hands if they would rise in their might and purity, and work and pray to drive intemperance from our land.

Then on to the conflict. Mother, wife and sister, are called into rank.—If the Maid of Orleans, Joan of Arc, could turn the tide of war and secure the coronation of Charles XI, of France, what might our millions of virtuous women accomplish if their influence should be directed towards the removal of the fearful evil from our dissipated land.

No person who has lost any of his property by gambling within four months of his application can receive the benefits of the bankrupt law.

SOMETHING TO REFLECT ON. While the Copperheads are rejoicing over some partial and accidental gleams of success, they will do well to read the following record of 1862:

That year Maine gave but 6,025 Republican majority, and one Copperhead was elected to Congress. New Hampshire gave 3,795 Democratic majority for Governor, and elected one Democrat to Congress.

Ohio went copperhead by 5,577 and elected fourteen copperhead Congressmen, against five Republicans. Indiana went copperhead by 9,543 and elected seven copperheads against four Republicans.

Wisconsin went copperhead by 1,077 votes and elected three copperhead Congressmen against three Republicans.

The people did not intend in 1862 to give the copperheads a victory. They would not believe there was any danger of it till it came. The next year they aroused and redeemed themselves, and in all the States named gave unprecedented Republican majorities.

The New York Democrats resolve that any party whose administration of public affairs prove corrupt, ought to be swept from office.

STANLEY. The correspondent of the Missouri Democrat, reports the following speeches as having been made by two of the principal Indian chiefs while signing the treaty of peace at Medicine Lodge Creek.

Satan said: This building homes for us is all nonsense; we don't want you to build any for us. We would all die. Look at the Pennekatus. Formerly they were powerful, but now they are weak and poor.

Two years ago the whites made a treaty on the Arkansas; that treaty has not been broken by us. I promised annuities—let us have them. I don't see any necessity for making new treaties. You are piling more papers here, one after another. Are you ever going to get through with this talk?

That's us Emma. We are mighty strong in our hand and arm, and can hold up a heap of anything containing crinoline. Take out your "ad" and trot this way.—Vedette.

The Iowa gave 27,000 majority for the Republican ticket at the recent election. Two years ago the Republicans elected their ticket by only 16,000 majority. The gain is 11,000.—Not much of a reaction in Iowa!

DICTIONARIES. Dictionaries never were more sorely needed in the campaigns of a political party. What is a Democrat?

1. It is one who denies the authority of the whole people. 2. It is one who would disfranchise a large proportion of his fellow creatures.

8. It is one who believes the ballot to be a piece of personal property, vendible to the highest bidder. 9. It is one who is so much in favor of free discussion that he would like to cut out the tongues of all who differ from him, and are in favor of a practical extension of human rights to all upon an equal basis.

You may run General Grant for President next year," said an enthusiastic Copperhead, in Madison, to a Republican, the other day, "and we will run Vallandigham and beat him."

A Southern paper the other day administered a most crushing rebuke to one of the gentlemen who is in the habit of indulging in the bluster about fighting again in case of a defeat at the polls.

To a patriotic friend who wishes Andrew Jackson were where Andrew Johnson is, the Brookville Union replies that seeing Andrew Johnson where Andrew Jackson is would suit it quite as well.
