THE APPOINTING POWER.

pode the imperchment of Andrew Johnson rests solely upon the provisions of the tenure of office bill, we give below that portion of the Constitution of the United States relating to the ap-power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, A State Convention will be held at Nebraska City on wednesday, April 20th, 1868, at 12 o'clock M., to elect delegates to represent the Republican parly of Nebraska at the National Convention to be held at Chicago, May 20th, next. Also a candidate for Nember of Congress, Sovernor, Secre ary of State, Aulitor, Treasurer, 3 Presidential Electors, and the delegates present from each Judicial district will nominate a sultable person for District Attorney, for their respective districts.

The Convention will be over the Republican parly of the Senate to the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate. > It will be seen by the above that the Constitution limits the power of the President to the nomination of all officers until after the consent of the Sen ate is obtained to their appointment, ex cept, as provided in the next paragraph of the Constitution, that during the recess of the Senate he may fill vacancies. In the case of Mr. Stanton the President attempted to override the Senate, the Constitution and the people and become the Supreme power of the government. He removed-on paper -the Secretary of War, and appointed -on paper-a new Secretary of War, without obtaining or attempting to obtain the "advice and consent of the Senate," as the Constitution-not the Tenure of Office bill-provides he shall do before doing more than to nominate stock. or suggest an appointment. More than this, after having made the appointment, he tried to induce certain milita you. ry officers to use the army of the United States for the purpose of forcing his unlawfully appointed Secretary into S. M. Kirkaptrick power. He failed in his ignoble purpose, and now tries to "craw fi-h" by saying he did not design doing an unlawfull act, but only wished to get the sulject before the Courts. He may have desired to get it before the Courts, but that desire would hardly justify the violation of as plain a provision of the Constitution as that above quoted-and we think the Senate will be of that

> > Johnson's Defense.

Andy makes a very lame defense of his recent course in the removal of Stanton. He makes three separate and distinct points in his message to the law has nothing to do with Stanton's case, as he removed him in accordance with an act of 1789. We do not pre soning is very lame.
