Relationship Between Napoleon and Leopold.

For the purpose of enabling the reader to perceive at a glance the relationship existing between the Emperor Napoleon and Prince Leopold, we subjoin the following genealogical table:

HEAD OF THE FAMILY.

MARQUIS AND MARCHESS DE BEAUMARNAIS.

Their Sons.

MARQUIS DE BEAUMARNAIS.

COUNT DE BEAUMARNAIS.

Father of

ALEXANDER. First cousins. CLAUDE.

Father of

HORTENSE. Second cousins. STEPHANIE.

Mother of

NAPOLEON III. 3d cousins. JOSEPHINE.

Mother of

Fourth cousins.

NAPOLEON III. PRINCE LEOPOLD.

The Princess, as already stated, married the Prince of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen, and is the mother of Prince Leopold. She being a third cousin of Napoleon III., her son is consequently a fourth cousin of the Emperor, as shown above. Curiously enough, the succession from the male Beaumarnais ceased with both branches together, and was continued from the females—Hortense and Stephanie. And here it is also interesting to note that while Hortense had none but male children, Stephanie had none but females. That the French Emperor should object to seeing his cousin-german on the Spanish throne is undoubtedly because the Prince happens to be a German cousin also, and a Prussian one at that.

The Bridge at St. Louis.

[From the St. Louis Republic, 24d.] The masonry of the west pier is progressing rapidly, and there is no further delay for want of granite. It is now about eight feet above the water. The masonry of the east pier is about five feet below the surface, and men are now engaged constructing a coffer dam of wood preparatory to recommencing the laying of stone—their on for the top part of the caisson was removed some time ago. The building of the caisson at Carondelet for the east abutment pier is also in an advanced state. The iron sides should have been built up some fourteen feet, and during the recent scorching weather the heat inside the iron inclosure has been so intense that a fresh gang of men have to relieve at noon those who go to work in the morning. The other preparations for inaugurating the east abutment pier are also nearly completed. In East St. Louis the frame work for the machinery will be finished in a few days.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

A Young Man at Gallatin Shoots Himself—Dies Immediately.

We were informed yesterday that a terrible accident had occurred at Gallatin, Davies county, on Sunday last, that threw a cloud of gloom over the whole community at that place.

It appears that a young man named Black, intended to go out into the woods to hunt. He had made all the necessary preparation, took his gun and was about to start when it is supposed he in some manner touched the trigger with his foot, exploding the charge, which went in at his mouth and passed out at the top of his head, literally blowing his brains out. Of course death immediately ensued.—This is all we have been able to learn about the case.—St. Joe Union, 3d.

JUNCTION CITY.

Nest of Horse Thieves Broken Up.

[From the Leavenworth (Kansas) Bulletin.]

JUNCTION CITY, Aug. 2—12 M. The man Tucker, who has been under arrest here for the murder, last night, confessed to the killing of Reynolds.—A posse was immediately sent to arrest Sanderson, the ring leader of the gang, and in an unsuccessful attempt to capture him, Jimmy Reynolds, a brother of the murdered man, and Mr. White, Assistant U. S. Marshal, were both shot, though neither seriously hurt. Sanderson is still at large, and the whole country is after him. These parties have long been suspected as horse thieves, and this confession by Tucker exposes all their operations and will serve to break up the worst gang in the State.

A Kansas Welcome.

Upon the occasion of the visit of the Iowa editors to Leavenworth, the Bulletin gets off the following:

"The Jayhawkers to the Hawkeyes greeting: Welcome to the land where Liberty doted her swaddling clothes and where was the home of old John Brown. Welcome to Kansas, the first born of the new covenant, consecrated to freedom in the best blood of Iowa. And may we continue in the future as in the past, to act together with one heart and one mind—our ideas and our aspirations intimately combined, as our souls are intermingled in the murky stream that washes our borders. Welcome to Iowa."

The Cincinnati Enquirer has a characteristic fling at Senator Schurz, winding up with the inquiry, "Why didn't you enlist?"

As Gen. Schurz served in the field during nearly the entire war, the question "why he did not enlist" is wonderfully powerful and pointed. It is a shot of the home guard order, and nearly as effective and sarcastic. The trouble with the General is that while the Enquirer folks were plotting Kirby Smith's army toward Cincinnati, he was at work in the trenches near Chancellorsville. He has the further misfortune to be a German, and to sympathize with the old Fatherland, while the Enquirer is on the side of despotic Napoleon.—Chicago Republican.

During his Italian tour, Dickens was conducted over a certain monastery by a young monk, who, though a native of the country, spoke very fluent English, with the exception of frequently mistaking his v's and w's. On Dickens inquiring if he had ever been in England, he said that he had, but had learned the language from a book that he brought forward, which proved to be a copy of Pickwick. It thus appeared that Mr. Samuel Weller is responsible for the peculiarity of his pronunciation.

Delinquent Taxes for 1869.

No notice is hereby given that I, W. L. Hoopes, Treasurer of Cass county, State of Nebraska, by virtue of the power in me vested, shall, on the first Monday in SEPTEMBER, A. D. 1870, commence selling, at the office of the Treasurer in Cass county, and State aforesaid, at public auction, so much of the following tract of land and town lots as shall be necessary to pay the taxes, penalties, interest and costs which shall have accrued thereon on that day. Said taxes, penalties, interest and costs shall be a lien in law on said tract of land and town lots, and on each acre of said tract of land, until all the taxes, penalties, interest and costs which the taxes remain unpaid on that day of sale.

W. L. Hoopes, Treasurer.
