

OUR ASHLAND LETTER.

THE PROGRESS OF THE STATE.
ASHLAND, Nov. 14, 1870.

DEAR HERALD:—To a stranger, in the dark, from the depot, Ashland looks quite like; and not only to strangers does it look so, but also to those who have been long identified with the place, for the lights gleaming forth from the windows of the many dwellings present a beautiful and impressive scene. But when daylight approaches, we see the city in a different light—a quiet, beautiful, progressive, greedily jealous little town.

Our public schools opened the middle of last month with a good attendance, and under very favorable auspices. The directors have procured very suitable rooms; and seated them with Sherman's patent seats, at considerable expense. With the services of Mr. Albert Nichols, an experienced teacher and fine scholar, and besides that a man of rare genius of head and heart, as principal, the patrons may well hope to see their children make strides in the way of education.

The Good Templars are doing a good work in this place and vicinity. If the lodge keeps on increasing as it has for the past few weeks, it will number one hundred members by next spring. We were favored with three sterling lectures on temperance this fall, by W. F. McCarron, J. Q. Detwiler and Dr. E. C. Dunn, respectively.

Old Boreas has been howling and cracking his cheeks at a fearful rate in these parts for the past few days; but the storm has abated and we now have beautiful, calm weather again.

Court sits to-morrow. There are several cases on the docket, and the session will be interesting. It was shown last week a petrifed chunk of wood, by Mr. M. A. Hoener, of this city, which is certainly a great wonder. It was dug from the earth about three and a half miles from Ashland, along the Platte, and is as hard as a stone and has the appearance of iron, save here and there around the edges a woody substance. It may be stone, it may be coal; but it is the general belief of all the people of that neighborhood that that whole section of country abounds in genuine iron ore. Will some scientific individual go there and investigate the matter, and see what it is that so excites the people?

Since Nebraska's admission into the Union, has any one paused to mark the rapid progress of the State. I have, and so have you. Even two years ago Plattsmouth was nothing more than a quiet, stand-still kind of a place, whose hand of progress seemed palsied and lifeless. Now, she is a go-ahead, prosperous city, with her thousands of inhabitants. She has a railroad, and the prospects of more soon, which she had not then. Ashland the same, and Fremont the same. Now each of these places are favored with railroad facilities, and each have a good newspaper. Away out in the saline regions of the State there was no sign of a town, and now we have Lincoln, the capital of the State, which has one railroad, another will be there soon from Nebraska City, and others are pointing in that direction, till soon it will be the grand emporium of the west, and certainly the pride of the State. It has several newspapers. Mark my word, Lincoln will one day, and that day is not far distant, be the Indianapolis of the west in the way of railroads. All over the western portion of the State, cities and towns are springing up, and farms are being opened, and newspapers established. I imagine I now see the buffalo and the red man deserting the wide and rich valley of the Republican river, at the way of civilization and enterprise.

With our railroad facilities, educational advantages, religious and moral influences, our water power, our salt works, our coal and iron mines, our beautiful climate and rich and loamy soil, Nebraska must stand in the front rank alongside of the best States in the Union.

An Excellent Guide-board.
"Can you tell me the road to Vermilion?" asked a traveler of a boy whom he met on the road. "Yes, sir," said the boy, "that is the way." "What is the name of the town?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the man who lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the dog that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the cat that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the horse that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the cow that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the pig that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the sheep that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the goat that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the chicken that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the duck that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the turkey that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the goose that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. "What is the name of the pig that lives there?" "Vermilion," said the boy. Yankee Pumpkin Pie.
It is sometimes said that it takes a Yankee to make a pumpkin pie, and I find that they are made so different in the way that it is hard to tell which is the best. The Yankee makes them; Stew the pumpkin as long as possible, until the juice is all dried up; strain through a colander; add milk and cream to the pulp; season with sugar, nutmeg, molasses; add a little ginger, eggs are useless; flour makes them pasty, and stewing them and straining the juice and throwing it away takes off all the sweetest part of the pumpkin.—Cor. Greenwood Telegraph.

Your paper is very small and contains but little reading matter," a gentleman remarked to us one day or two since. Our answer was, "my dear friend, your patronage is exceedingly light and your subscription past due." We reflected, and find men who pay the least complain the most. The man who never had energy enough to learn to read a newspaper, knows all about the paper; the fellow who reads the paper at his neighbor's door to save buying it, is sure to discover any typographical errors. The man who is prodigal with his advice, when it comes to his own business, is sure to be carping and censorious. The man who complains about his home papers should try his hand at making them, and most of them would learn what it took a certain amount of money to run a newspaper, as he is stated—that they are all fools.—Chronicler.

An old mountain trapper being asked one day if he had ever seen any petrified wood in the mountains, replied: "Bless you, I've seen a whole forest, glass bushes and all, petrified. One of the trees had all the leaves on, and a bird sitting on a limb. He must have been petrified in the spring of the year, for his mouth was open just as if he was singing."

THE WAR.

LONDON, November 14.
A dispatch from Tours to-day says the movements of General D'Aurelle are as follows: He has moved to the north of the city, with a view of surrounding Von Dertum and Prince Alprecht before the arrival of detachments of the late army of Metz.

The position of Von Dertum on Wednesday is still facing him, but new troops movements are executed by new troops, well supported by artillery. A junction of the right and left wings of the army, which was probably completed to-day, although no positive news to that effect has been received.

Agitation concerning Russian designs is increasing. In best informed circles, it is believed there is imminent danger of a general European conflict.

The Pall Mall Gazette to-night declares that the Ministers not merely lack true vision, but are occupied to the exclusion of truth with misleading demagogues. Two dangers confront England—the Alabama difficulty and the eastern question. The circumstances that lifted the nation into a state of excitement were more formidable because of increasing the probability of their being a combination. Russia declares her designs to grasp Turkey, and Prussia is ready to come and help her.

A German invention which has been put into operation in England, promises to effect a great change in preparing beer. Instead of the malt being brewed together with the hops, the hops are brewed separately, and the beer brought across the ocean in casks, or London Porter taken to our hospitals in bottles, we are to have little casks of solid material from which we can, by the aid of water, extract our malt liquor at will. Soldiers on a march can take casks of beer in their knapsacks and miners can carry them on the heights of mountains or into the lowest shafts.

According to an account published in an Austrian newspaper, the malt is placed in the mash-tub, hops are added to the sweet-wort, and the liquor is allowed to cool and clarify according to the usual routine. At this point, however, the liquor is sucked up into a vacuum, where it is kept in a rotary motion, and then transferred into a smaller vacuum pan, and treated similarly until it assumes a pasty consistency. At this point, the liquor is placed in a large tub, and at the proper time, for a considerable distance, thereby becoming more concentrated, and finally is poured in a hasty state into boxes lined with tin and hermetically sealed. It is stated that the country now has to do is to break off a proper sized piece, to add the requisite amount of water and some yeast, and when the beer has fermented to rack it off into casks.

THE TRIBUNE'S CORRESPONDENT TELEGRAPH.
The Tribune's correspondent telegrapher writes from the city that the Board of Health, as it is now exists is now here. Life has but three battalions of mobilized national guards, partially equipped and the whole distribution of arms for all classes of troops would not cost more than $1,000,000. The city has only its minimum garrison of 1,500 men, the remainder being near Arkansas and Cuba.

LONDON, November 14.
A correspondent of the Herald writes from Donai that the town is one of the strongest fortified places in France. The fortifications mount 300 guns and the citadel 400 more. Donai is considered the key to the north of the Alps. The inundation of the country commenced yesterday, and for four miles there is one broad lake, ruining the village of Solbras, which is entirely destroyed.

LONDON, November 14.
A special by cable to the World from Paris to-day received as follows: "The main body of the army of the Loire, which is now extending along the line of Chateau Du Rond, to St. Peter, Patay and Chevilly. The total loss of the Germans in the actions of the 7th, 9th, and 10th, before Orleans, including the killed, sick and wounded abandoned, aggregates ten thousands in killed, wounded and prisoners.

LONDON, November 15.
The Vienna cabinet is disappointed at Gladstone's adaptation to the Russian note, and likewise his attitude. In view of a possible movement of Russia southward, a British fleet of observation will be ordered to the Mediterranean, with Malta as the place of rendezvous.

BOSTON, November 15.
A young man calling himself Dallas Lord surrendered himself to an officer in Randolph, and has been brought to Boston, who confesses he murdered Benjamin Nathan in New York.

NEW YORK, November 15.
A London dispatch says that Russell, who was commissioned by the British Foreign Office to bear to Versailles dispatches expostulating against the temporary evacuation of Prussia on the eastern frontier, has been refused admission, and that he expects a prolonged stay at Versailles, and that there is a growing belief that the siege of Paris is a gigantic mistake.

LONDON, November 14.
Additional French reports confirm the capture of Dijon. The French chreurgies in France are offering their belts to be cast into cannon. Prince Frederick Charles has reached the river Tonne. His columns converge at Levan, and he will cross the river to the assistance of Von Dertum, with an army estimated at one hundred thousand men.

TORONTO, November 15.
The resolve on the part of the Russian government to withdraw from the treaty of Paris, creates a profound sensation here. It is said that the English envoy has gone to Versailles to demand King-William's view of the matter.

MARSEILLES, November 14.
Returns from the municipal elections for the Republicans, 49,000; Communists 8,000. The city has been, and is, perfectly quiet.

LONDON, November 15.
A special correspondent writing from Rouen says that the victory at Orleans has been a tremendous one. The Prussians are reported still at Gisors, having made no northward movement.

PARIS, November 14.
The Prussian force at Chevalny, about 4,800 strong, had been recalled to Gisors in the department of Haute Saone.
