BY TELEGRAPH.

THE WAR.

BORDEAUX, December 20.

It is reported that the Germans have occupied Tours, and found no serious opposition. Gen. Chausey is at Lemans, where he has received reinforcements and been provisioned. A number of partial engagements have occured with the enemy, in all of which Chansey was successful.

The journals of this city state that the Prussians are using explosive bullets &c.

LILLE, December, 21.

Fighting has been going on to day in the vicinity of Amins. A large number of wounded pass through Nancy and Toul daily from the armies around Paris and in the valley of the Loire.

A contribution of 70,000 francs has been imposed on Lorraine, as a compensation for the loss inflicted on the German merchant navy by the French men-of-war.

The damage done at Thionville by the bombardment is estimated at 10,000,000 francs.

HAVRE, December 21.

There has been fighting near Brionne. The Prussians retreated to Bourg Theroude. The ship Austerlitz is being fitted up for the reception of German prisoners. Letters from Bourges report that the army of the Loire has been completely reorganized.

LONDON, December 22.

Troops are pouring into Cherbourg for the defense of that port. At Havre an immediate attack is expected. The Germans are approaching the place in increased force. A Berlin dispatch threatens that unless Paris soon surrenders a regular attack will begin.

General Ducrot left Paris by balloon on the 15th to take command of one of the army corps operating outside of Paris. A large number of carriages laden with ammunition destined for the bombardment of Paris, are daily arriving from Madgeburg by rail. Russia continues her war preparations on an immense scale.

A Herald correspondent at Blois says Palladines has been assigned to the duty of organizing new forces. The two armies of the Loire are still competent to act separately. The war has become one of skirmishes; the invaders are constantly exposed to telling blows, their own soldiers are gradually destroyed, and as the Germans decrease the French increase.

NEW YORK, December 23.

A special correspondent to the Tribune at Versailles, under date of the 10, says that the feeling among the highest officers of the besieging army is that Paris will hold out well into January. Careful preparations are making for such a contingency, and the various corps in the provinces are moving so as to shut out, if possible, all hope of rescue. Trochu is expected to give the Prussians some more desperate fighting about Christmas time.

The Vienna Presse states that the Berlin account of Austria's note on the Lux embourg question is premature. Austria has as yet only addressed England and Holland, and from Holland no answer has been received.

A special correspondent of the Tribune telegraphs to day that the reported movement of Prince Charles is partially contradicted by the official correspondence, which says it would be advisable to give the information we have received from Roumania no greater significance than properly attaches to it.

A telegram to the Presse states that the Czar has addressed an autograph letter to the Sultan. A large number of the Turkish fleet, under Hobart Pasha, has been ordered to the Red Sea to suppress the Egyptian intrigues with the Arabian revolotionists. From other sources the reported understanding between Russia and Turkey is denied.

BERLIN, December 22.

The Germans, under Von Derzoltz, surprised the French at Langres in the department of Haute Marne, and have driven them from their position with heavy loss. Many prisoners and a large quantity of arms and baggage were taken. A dispatch from Versailles states that on Tuesday the fire from the fortifications of Paris was active but ineffective.—During the cannonade a sortie was made by the French against the Prussian guard and twelfth corps of Saxons. The fighting lasted several hours. German loss small.

LONDON, December 23.

A Prussian column has been observed approaching Poulzieout and Rheims, and it is supposed to be on the march to attack the French army of the North.

A person being asked what was meant by the "realities of life," answered, "Real estate, real money, and real good dinners, none of which can be realized without real hard work."

A file of the Metz journals is a curious sight. Owing to the scarcity of paper it was printed one day on red placard paper, another on blue, a third on buff and so on. Another journal was printed on brown packing paper.

Keep out of debt—out of quarrels—out of law—out of damp clothes—out of reach of brandy and water—out of matrimony, unless you are in love.

A farmer saw an advertised receipt to keep wells and cisterns from freezing.—He sent his money and received an answer: "Take in your well or cistern, on cold nights, and keep it by the fire."

Three hundred and twenty thousand six hundred and sixty-nine sewing machines are reported to have been manufactured and sold in this country last year.

"Man in the Raw" is the title of a Mrs. Johnson's lecture out in Indiana. Mr. J. is not its hero. He has been kept in hot water so long that he has become thoroughly cooked.

A Jerseyman who has a Chinese servant, complains that the heathen will worship an andiron when the family gathers for prayers, and the other morning offered up before it two dead rats, and burned half a joss stock.

The winner of the $50,000 prize in the San Francisco lottery was H. W. Thomas "a Nevada county, who can neither read nor write." What of it? Did you never hear of the drover, who, returning to his native stock yards with a burly pocket book, the result of a successful beef venture, was stopped by a ruffian, who remarked: "Your money or I'll blow your brains out!" The drover made choice of the two evils kindly offered him to pick from, answering: "blow away, I'd rather go home without any brains than without any money."

A Montana correspondent who has visited the wonderful Yellowstone Falls, corroborates the previous stories about the great cataract. He says that from a point at the head of the rapids, above the upper falls, to the mouth of the cannon, a distance of not more than fifty miles, the river makes a fall of upwards of 3,000 feet. During this part of its con se there may be falls higher than he saw, or it may be a continuous succession of violent rapids and smaller falls. The Yellowstone Falls throw the cataract of Niagara in the shade in point of sublimity.

A NEW THING.

The "liquid safety gas," which is now being introduced into this city, says the New Albany, (Ind.) Ledger, will ultimately prove as valuable to newspaper itemizors as has kerosene. It kills with a greater soonness and more people at one discharge. In fact it is among illuminators a kind of mitrailleuse.

Trade Mark.

One of the most important laws framed by Congress at its last session, is that concerning "Trade Marks." An inventor may choose what he plenses for his "Trade mark." It may be a pictorial design, a name, or any phrase or emblem and for that he may get a patent which runs for thirty years, and at the expiration of that time he may get an extension for thirty years more. The law seems to cover all the ground, and an inventor may secure to himself the benefit of his labors, free from all interference by the unprincipled. The Government fee is $25. That such a law was necessary is a reflection on the honesty of our fellow men. It would be supposed that every honorable man would abstain from appropriating the labors of others to his own use. But we are compelled to believe that there are those who are honest because the law makes them so. They do not steal or rob because it is not profitable to do so, and they would do both, did interest demand it.—American Grocer.

To keep out of power the Democratic party and its semi-rebellious adherents, both North and South, has become a matter of supreme importance to the nation and to the cause of humanity itself. None who correctly gauged the issues of the rebellion, can fail to deprecate as a national calamity the return to power of the party which nurtured within its ranks the men who raised aloft the arm of treason, and came so near to rending asunder the Union itself—the party that never gave the nation hearty support in its struggles with traitors, and has never concealed its sympathy with them when overthrown. Sadly chilled must be his patriotism, or his cause of complaint must be very grievous, who is willing, for public or private reasons, to affiliate with such a party and help it into power again. For does any one need be told that, with it restored to power, there can be no effective carrying out of those great measures of emancipation and reconstruction which the Republicans have placed on the statute book and so thoroughly inwrought into the history of the last ten years? Mr. Phillips accords to the Republican party as its "one idea," "to watch over the reconstruction policy of the war," and he admits that it is "a necessary duty, a great function;" and yet he says: "I don't care a chip whether John Quincy Adams or Governor Claflin is the next Governor of Massachusetts." Who is to "watch over the reconstruction policy of the war," if disaffected Republicans, uniting with the Democrats, elect Democratic Governors and Legislatures? If such a policy prevails, how can it be otherwise than that the present movement in behalf of human rights must be summarily checked, and the hopes of human amelioration, recently so sanguine, must be suddenly darkened?—Unless the Republican party shall remain harmonious, and, inspired by its past and glorious achievements, shall carry forward its good work to consideration, much of the fearful cost of the war will have been incurred in vain.—Where, then, is the remedy? Nowhere but in the intelligence and right purposes of the public. The people must be fortified against the wiles and misrepresentations of designing men, who too often and too easily make them the tools of their ambition and revenge, mere counters in their game of parties.—See Atlantic Monthly for January.

"A gypsy came to Brigham Young with a pony for sale. "Why, the beast is half starved," said Brigham, running his hand over the pony's side. "You can count his ribs." "That's more'n a chap could do with yours," retorted the gypsy. Brigham Young did not buy that pony.—Peachinello.

Ticket collector—"This your boy, mum? He's too big for a half ticket." Mother (down upon him). "Oh, is he? Well, perhaps he is now, mister; but he wasn't when we started. This excursion's ever so many hours long and time, an' he's a growing lad! So now!"—[Exit in triumph.]

The greatest joiner—the lawyer. He can place a tenant, impannel a jury, box a witness, bore the court, chisel a client, augur the gains, floor a witness, cut his board, nail the case, hammer the desk, file his bill, and shave a whole community.
