LOCAL NEWS!

Gyger is fixing up the basement of his new block, ready for use.

Last Monday the B. & M. in Nebraska cut their time down between this city and Lincoln so that you can leave Plattsmouth at 10 a. m., spend an hour in Lincoln, and arrive at Plattsmouth again at 3:45 p. m.

There is no use trying to keep track of the amount of machinery sold by F. J. Metteer. His advertisement in the HERALD draws crowds of people to his place of business.

Mayor White is around looking after city affairs. He does not trust to work men to do as they may think best, but has a personal supervision of all work being done.

John Moran, of St. Joseph, committed suicide by hanging a few days since, cause, melancholy from too much drink. Will men of ordinary intelligence never cease this everlasting debauchery?

The HERALD Job office can furnish you with printed letter heads and printed envelopes for about the same price you will pay for the plain paper at the stationers. Call and examine specimens.

Greenwood has added a good stock of shelf ware to his business.

Hesser has an unlimited supply of flowering plants, which are finding their way to all parts of the west. Several large boxes from his gardens were shipped this morning—some for Omaha, others for the interior of Iowa,—in fact there is no place in the west where taste and refinement find a resting place that Hesser's flowering plants are not known and cherished.

A destructive fire occurred in Sioux city yesterday morning, destroying the wooden building known as Booge's block, corner of Fourth and Douglas streets, occupied by H. D. Booge & Co. and Booge, Smith & Peavey. The total loss is estimated at between forty and fifty thousand dollars.

The sales of the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad Lands in Nebraska during the month of April, 1871, were 8488 88-100 acres, at an average price of $8 36 02 100 per acre, amounting to $70,967.74.

The Company has yet a large amount of choice farm lands for sale on ten years' credit at 6 per cent. interest, or at prices 20 per cent less for cash or Bonds of the Company, or one-third down with balance on two years' credit at 10 per cent. till paid.

The political Judas of the New York Legislature is named Orange Winans, and he sold his party to the Tammany ring for $100,000. He received a little better price than did the original Judas, but will his ill gotten gains be of more service to him?

The man who is annoyed by hearing a clear, ringing laugh, one that wells up from the very fountain of life, must have something wrong in his organism—he certainly is not fashioned to enjoy the truthful and the beautiful things of this earth. The man who has a deep, rolling, rolicking, hearty laugh, (like that of our friend Lee, for example) cannot have a bad heart in him. Give us the man who enjoys a good laugh himself, and the man who likes to hear his fellow man laugh.

Russell & Doom received another small invoice of cultivators to-day—130 of them. They intend this lot to last them until they can order a full stock of them. They advertise in the HERALD and the farmers all rush there for their supplies.

Guthman & Huberby are opening out a fine assortment of glassware and queensware. They are live men, and should receive liberal support from the people.

John Fitzgerald, Esq., arrived at home yesterday from Missouri, where he has been purchasing mules for use on his great Railroad contract between Lincoln and F. Kearney.

A consolidation is anticipated between the Burlington & Southwestern R. R. and the St. Joseph & Iowa R. R.

There is no let up to the rush of immigration to Nebraska. White covered wagons can be seen moving westward at all hours in the day.

Guthman is having an outside stairway built to the basement of his brick block on Main street.

H. N. OTT, Esq., one of the energetic men of the city and a man who is fully posted on business matters, assures us that times are better and money plentier than a month ago. He has recently sold two farms to men from the east who will cultivate them extensively.

Jeemsy and his "people's" movement have become sadly demoralized. They both got severely squelched in Ohio at the recent election. A straight forward course is the only one that will win, Jeemsy; and if you could only get some one to steady you politically until you get fairly under headway you might retain a perpendicular long enough to run through a single campaign again But the old disease would be certain to come on soon.

The representations of one hundred and forty lodges of Masons recently went out from Paris to endeavor to make peace. Thiers mission seem to have been a failure, as they returned without accomplishing anything.

Hesser will be prepared to furnish any number of Sweet Potatoe Plants this season.

It is thought that L. J. Doom's inglorious failure in his Constitutional Convention scheme will have a bad effect on his chances for Governor.

Hesser has the celebrated Gen. Grant Geranium, and can furnish a limited number of his customers with them, if application is made soon. He has thousands of the commoner varieties.

T. C. Fielding, of Nebraska City, has been appointed Warden of the Penitentiary, vice Hoel resigned.

TO JOHN FITZGERALD, ESQ.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church of Plattsmouth, hereby tender their cordial and sincere thanks for the use of his elegant and spacious Hall during heir late Fair and Festival.

A HAND CAR EXCURSION.

To Omaha Junction and Back.

Narrow Escape of one of the Party.

A Gala Time for the "Boys."

["Special" Correspondence of the Herald.]

Yesterday evening, at about half-past 7 o'clock, a party left Plattsmouth for a hand-car excursion up the road of the B. & M. The night was beautiful and calm, the moon shone down on terra firma in gorgeous splendor, and the "all aboard" being pronounced by the "conductor," we were soon rapidly gliding over the smooth track for our destination. Stopped a brief space of time at the depot, then onward again we flew over the track, leaving the classic city of Plattsmouth, with her buxom lads and smiling lasses, to the rear—only to be seen by visions of remembrance. The craggy hills on our left—through whose crevices and caves danced many a babbling brook—frowned down on us, lofty trees bowed, and "dug-outs" seemed more cheerful as we passed by; while to our right slept the famous and placid waters of the Missouri and Platte.—These were scenes made more beautiful and impressive by the rays of a full pale moon, and the songs of the whippoorwill, with an occasional croak of a bull-frog and the sound of the fisherman's line as it ingressed and egressed the waters of the aforesaid streams, which will fade from our minds only when memory fades. We soon passed through Oreapolis. A little ways beyond this city we stopped to rest, etc., etc. Then onward again we glided, but over a more level and cheerful looking country—a beautiful, level prairie. The country wore a sameness, pretty much, until about six or seven miles from Plattsmouth, when all of a sudden we found ourselves into the Platte river (he road is built in the river some distance here). Here we noticed a great deal of ingenuity displayed on the part of the B. & men in the construction of the road did we along the [illegible] looked upon the [illegible] craggy hills, which began [illegible] along this part of the road, were dug down and made useful, I could not help exclaiming as did the old lady when she went into a woolen factory for the first time in her life, "The works of God are wonderful, but the works of man far exceed them." The party was composed of Gen. T. Wintle, of London, England, Col. Richard Smith, of New York, Prof. T. F. McClamant, of Plattsmouth, Major J. A. Fisher, of Pittsburgh, Pa., Sergt. W. D. Ferree, of Plattsmouth, besides a good quota of conductors, engineers, brakemen, etc.—Every man did his own whistling and bell-ringing when we wished to stop. It was fun for the "natives," who came rushing to their doors and windows to hear us "holler" and see us glide by.—One of the party said he saw sixteen children standing at one window not counting the dogs and cats. I did not see them, and therefore do not believe it was true, We arrived at Omaha Junction in due time, and were happily received by Mr. Frank Whittemore, Telegraph operator at that place, and "mine host," Mr. Keating. After a few hours spent in social conversation and other pastime (I don't mean gambling and drinking, for we did none of this)—cracking jokes, partaking of crackers and cheese, and indulging in a few fine Cubas, we bid adieu to fair Omaha Junction and friends, and returned.—There were no accidents, excepting that Maj Fisher came near falling into a culvert by a misstep onto the car. Omaha Junction is a city of whilom size, about nine miles out from Plattsmouth, and is destined to be a place of no mean importance before many centuries pass by. It is where the O. & S. W. connects with the B. & M. My article is long, and I will close with a couplet from witty Saxe, which expresses my sentiments to a t-y-t:

"Bless me! it is pleasant,
Riding on the rail."

ONE OF 'EM

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., May 6, 1871.

Counterfeit $10s on the Poughkeepsie National Bank, of New York, are quite plentiful in this city. Look out for them. All that have been detected so far are new bills, and a first class counterfeit.

We failed to mention, at the time, the removal of Messrs. Hatt & Haight's meat market. These gentlemen, have removed to the south side of Main street, immediately opposite their old stand, where they have fitted up in good style, and will be glad to wait on all their old customers, and as many new ones as will give them a call, as they propose to be up with the times, and keep the best of meats, game &c.

The immigrant wagons come into Nebraska at this place at the rate of about thirty a day, and they bring an average of at least five souls to a wagon, making an average of 150 people who arrive here daily by wagons, besides about an equal number that arrive by railroad and steamboat. If other points have as great an influx as Plattsmouth, how long will it take to fill up Nebraska. If you want cheap land it is time you were securing it.

Mickelwait & Sharp have purchased the half interest in the steam ferry owned by Mrs. Magee, and they will at once proceed to bring the business up to the standard it should be. Mickelwait is one of the oldest ferrymen on the river, and knows just how to manage the business.

The Republican majority in Louisville was twenty. Like all other precincts, the vote was very light.
