The needle of the Molesia & Hosper is short and straight, and is not open to the objection of vibration and its results in long or curved needles. It is never set too high, nor too low. The machine is always in order: saws from two common speeds without re-winding wastes no thread; cannot laught if run without goods, nor when the easy passage of the goods is obstructed. The feed is never dult, is positive, and is the very strongest feed in use. The lackings is from springs, which toul only to weaken and get out of order. The most delicate samestrease can the McLean & Hosper without injury, being the lighted running machine ever angle. The inventor considers no invention an improvement that does not simplify, and he very justly kept in view the fact that as Sewing Machines are used chiefly by those who, as a general rule, knew little of practical mechanics, a greater degree of simplicity in their construction and use, and consequently a lower range of prices were assential, in order to meet a universal want.
