THE HORSE FEVER.

ON DUTY.

Last summer we had a gate that certainly shrank so much it swung clear of the post by a good inch and a half.

WOODHULL & CLAFFIN.

One day last week we received a newspaper amongst our exchanges with this very modest "request":

"Editors receiving this number of the Weekly, who in any manner notice its contents, will greatly oblige us by sending the papers containing the notice."

The paper is the celebrated "Woodhull & Claffin Weekly," and it is our private opinion that they need not ask it to be "noticed in any manner" for it is pretty likely to be very effectively noticed by all the Press of the land, and if the editors and proprietors do not receive the unfriendly notice of some officers of the law before many days we miss our guess.

In their Prospectus the reasons for their suspension last June are given, and according to Woodhull it was not so much the want of funds as the persecution she had to endure on account of her free love doctrines that "wore her out."

She complains that they would not admit her to any of the first-class hotels in New York, on account of those opinions of hers, while they admitted gentlemen of known lewd habits and practices.

Claffin has an opening editorial in which she relates many things that our types would blush to set up, and among others, relates the story of what U. S. Congressman do while in New York that proves both our M. C.'s to be very queer kind of men and Miss Tennie C. Claffin to have held singular conversations with such gentlemen (for a Miss) to say the least of it.

Woodhull then branches out and gives us a full description of immorality in high places, giving a long and detailed statement of the infidelities of Henry Ward Beecher, the great Plymouth Church preacher, and the wife of the editor of the Golden Age newspaper, Theodore Tilton.

She says Beecher preaches to twenty of his "mistresses" every Sunday, and that Tilton is her pupil and almost a convert to her theories.

After giving all these facts, she quotes a letter from Lema Cuppy Smith which ends as follows:

"The same evening I was conversing with E. B. Beckwith, a prominent lawyer of Boston, who remarked that he seemed to him to be a retribution following the Beechers, and that you, (meaning Woodhull) could use the same vindictive spirit against the Beecher family."

She then goes for a M. Challis, a broker in Noble street, and gives him "Hall Columbia" for seducing two fifteen year old girls, and winds up her editorial by accusing the Republican party of bad faith on the woman question, and advising everybody to vote for Greeley.

WOODHULL & CLAFFIN ARRESTED. Since writing the above, the telegraph informs us that these Madames have both been arrested for slandering, for sending obscene publications through the mails, and for libelling everybody in general.

A BATTING LETTER.

October 31.

Left P. at 10 A. M. That prince of Engineers, Charles Savage, run us out on style and on time. At Omaha Junction we met Gillespie, also Ireland and Bohannon with their newly made wives. These gentlemen looked as though they would like to gather everybody under their protection, like a hen gatherer her chickens. At Lincoln on time.

Had a lunch at the Railroad lunch house, fifty cents—would advise everybody to take their lunch along with them or go to a No. 1 Restaurant and get it, and save 40 cents. Bell rings—off again for the setting sun; arrived at Crete on time. Found George K. Moody, the gentlemanly and accomplished agent on hand, as full of business as a Platteville Sample Room is of bad whisky.

Charge cars here to go to the jumping off place, Beatrice. Beatrice is a Land "Mecca," often visited by parties in search of their fortunes, and where they lose them too, when they jump somebody's claim and employ Bro. Grigg, or some other attorney to do them justice. Can't moralize too long here, for—yes, the bell rings, and here we go again, still towards sun down. A huge amused; three Germans, (male), and two of the same nationality of the female sex (I guess they are, for they wear calico) got long hair on their heads like "Buffalo Bill," and hair got many whiskers—They all talk to me, each seemed tickled at what I said, and being in the tongue of the Federals, sounds like a heavy rain on an old-fashioned shingle roof. Ha, ha, (Hura!) One of the fellows who wears whiskers is telling how a mule likes to knock flies off from his ear with his hind foot. (I think that was what he was talking about, can't understand a word), and at the same time moving both hands, both feet, and his right ear; females do the same, except they are moving their tongue and lower jaw, all laughing at the story, and the rest laughing at what the balance are saying. Well, I declare here we are, at Fairmont. I can see the "Gaylord House" sign, and seven or eight other signs—including some black clothes hanging on a line—some men's shirts without any starched bosoms and pretty low in the neck, some signs of more females. Bell rings, off again—all aboard—there, some calico is left!

Bang! bang! there goes some of Luffin's best FFG powder, but nary duck. These English Lords ain't the best of marksmen! splendid country! I wonder that old great, great, great grandfather Adam and his rib, ever could ever think of setting up house keeping in Palestine, when they could come to such a country as this and live in a soil house, with no tree in sight from which to pluck the apple of knowledge, nor nary serpent by which to be led astray, and know "good from evil"—This country is GOOD, "you bet."

Oh! excuse me from using the language of Henry Ward Beecher of the New York Ledger, and published by "Dexter" in 2,171 numbers. I'll give $10,000 to see as good a paper published as quick, and $100,000 for the nutshell that does it.

Gratton, the town that has scooped Sartou, part sod and—yes, some pine is here, or we are there—don't know which. Dang, dang, off. How do you do? ye do, sartou? We'll learn you to grab sucking eggs—give us some nights of your town, and we'll stop at the best town between Crete and—Kearney Junction. Come down, you've got to stand it. Most all the houses in Omaha and Nebraska City have been moved out here. (I guess they came from there, for I saw lots of empty houses) and know they can spare them). See smoke coming out of their stove pipes, lots of fellows keeping "bach," out here. I guess most be so—don't see any cullies. More to-day or next week.

Yours, A. T. S. EXTRA Lowell—Sues-pet—Charles Walker has got a large quantity of "Fire-killer" and want to sue a bit of it. We attempted to call him by the name of a four-footed biped, and then quit—wished him much joy and asked for a piece of the wadding cake. Said he was out—had to send Hathaway, Peleuce, Morton and Mason, such big pieces he had not one left. Don't know whether he recommended pemecoging, home-stealing, or jumping another man's claim. He's posted in land and office matters, and recommends Paine-Killer.

Yours, A. T. S. Black velvet ribbons are now traded with the hair by Parisian belles.

Ed. Bennett, of Council Bluffs has a half brother to "American Girl" and a cousin to "Lucy," in his stables there. We saw "Logan," and he is a sorrel stallion, and Ed. has four dogs and we are to have a shepherd pup.

A forlorn widower, after much reflection, composed the following epitaph for his wife's tombstone:

"Thou hast gone before me To the list and long sleep; Thy coturno, secure here, Therefore I weep."

An exchange paper states that Ben. Franklin's writing desk was recently sold for ten cents.

Of all sad words of tongue or pen, The saddest are these, you may remember Ben. Franklin's words for a motto.

"Early to bed, early to rise; never get tight, and advertise."

The Savannah (Ga.) Morning News office issues a circular to show their circulation to be the largest in the city. It gives statements from ninety-four post offices, at eighty-eight of which the News is declared to have the largest circulation.

We have from the office of the Union a very neat and useful specimen of card printing. Competent printers here call it a thorough piece of work. It is to be regretted, however, that the name of the town (Jacksonville, Fla.) is left off the card.

The Directors of the Colorado River railroad, in view of the latter hostility existing in San Francisco to railroad subsidies, have published a card withdrawing from the roll of the people of that city the proposed $10,000,000 subsidy.
