

Nebraska Herald THANKSGIVING EXTRA!

NOV. 27th, 1873.

GETTING READY FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

D. Schnasse & Co. are bound to sell their present stock before getting in a new holiday stock of goods. Now is your time.

Go to Schnasse while they last,
All the goods are going fast.

Panic, Panic, is the cry,
Take your chance as it goes by.

War! War! War! on all old stocks,
Farmers, friends, bring in your rocks.

We're bound to sell or give away
Our whole big store, e're New Year's day.

Come one, come all, and see the rush,
With panic prices take a brush.

Schnasse, Kuhl, and Fred. Lenhoff,
Are there to sell the new goods off.

Step in and buy and bless your luck—
That Schnasse & Co. have got such pluck.

Slow Matches—Long engagements.

"Where are the noble spirits of '76?"
shouted a stump orator. "All drunk up," came from a witty hearer.

"Have I not, my son, offered you every advantage?" "Oh, yes, sir, but I could not think of taking advantage of my own father."

An enterprising chap who is organizing a brass band of twenty women, says that if they learn half as many airs as they put on, the experiment will prove a complete success.

Like the day of grace, the time at D. Schnasse & Co.'s is short. Help yourselves while the rush lasts.

Don't let the chance slip to visit D. Schnasse & Co.'s great sale this week and next.

Chicago, Nov. 21.

The billiard tournament closed this evening Garnier bet Ubassy; score, 400 to 293, in 21 innings. Largest runs—Garnier 63, 71, 21; Ubassy 22, 33, 42. Daly beat J. Dion; score, 400 to 336, in 42 innings. Largest runs—Daly 49, 41, 61; Dion 66, 42, 21. Garnier takes the first prize, Ubassy second, C. Dion third, Daly fourth and Joseph Dion fifth.

In order to make room for a new supply of goods and that they may thoroughly overhaul and re-assort their stock, D. Schnasse & Co. offer their entire stock of goods at lower figures than they could be purchased for at wholesale, in many cases, and all of the stock will be sold to suit the times and the pockets of customers. Call and examine.

DOMESTIC PRODUCTS.

To appeal to the women of the country to come to the relief in the present financial troubles may at first seem absurd; but there is a reason for it that more specious calls have not. It is not asked of them to be more economical; to save money, and contribute it to the poor; or to change their expenditure a whit; but to turn their monetary brooklets into a different channel—in short, to buy domestic instead of imported goods. No great perspicacity is needed to comprehend that, while the Republic is paying, yearly, millions and millions more of gold for imports than it gets for exports, it can hardly return to specie payment; and just so long as that is deferred, we must have panics and all sorts of monetary derangements.

So, if the buying of imported goods be the source of so much trouble, would it not be well to refrain from buying them, and keep the gold we need, instead of sending it abroad? There is no need of leagues and clubs and much palaver to make this a practical movement. All that the wisest and most earnest woman can do is simply to ask for a domestic brand when she is making a purchase. It is to women that the appeal is made, because it is for their benefit that the majority of costly imports are brought. It is they who demand and use them; and therefore it is for them to act against the tyranny of mode.

The sacrifice will not be so great or so difficult as might seem. We manufacture elegant silks, only less beautiful than their French and Belgian compeers. We make as fine ribbons and flowers as are made anywhere. Our alpacas and other stuff goods are excelled; while all our cotton fabrics are world-renowned. We manufacture beautiful cloakings, often sold under the head of "imported"—a word having a mysterious but very powerful attraction for most women. The flannels and feltings of certain American houses are proverbial for their fineness. We make fringes, fancy trimmings, and certain kinds of lace. Shawls, shoes, woven underclothing, stockings—all kinds and qualities of goods are in the catalogue of our products.

We do not suppose the Treasury Department will immediately resume specie payment because of our little suggestion; but we do believe that if it were widely acted upon, it would greatly lessen the monetary troubles of the nation.—Home and Society; Scribners for December.

Undoubtedly now is the time to buy goods, of D. Schasse & Co. With rare business prudence they have accommodated themselves to the times, and will sell their large stock off for cash at reduced prices.
