As further evidence of the popularity of the Orient Safety Lamps, we submit the following editorials from the many we have received:

From Moore's Rural New Yorker, Nov. 11, 1871. Profa Moore's Rural New Yorker, Nov. II, 1871. "Since the introduction of petroleum oils and fluids, many at-tempts have been made to produce a lamp which will effect ally stop the terrible destruction of lifs and property caused by the explosing and breek mg of glass lamps. "A lamp, to meet universal demand and give satisfaction, must be capable of burning, with safety, oll kinds of ell, good and bad. It must be made of metal, without seem, Joint or solder, so that it can never break or leak. It must be simple, but selentifically constructed, and so nicely finished as to be examinated as well as useful, and so nicely finished as to be the reach of all. Such is the OMENT SAFETY LAMP, manufac-tured by WALLACE & SONS."

From American Agriculturist, April 1, 1873. "Recently we have tried a new lamp, called the ORIENT, and has failed to show any fault in it. The lamp is a neat patters, as shown in the engraving it, bright and steady, and the lamp is not a rapid consumer of oil. We do not see how any return in light from the amount of oil consumed than from the ORIENT, manufactured by WALLACE & SONS." From the New York Independent, April 10, 1873.

We have been exceedingly well pleased with the light given us by a pretty ORIENT SAFETY LAMP, manufac-tured by WALLACK & SONS, New York. It has a metal bowl with partition inside, so constructed that if over-turned or accidentally upset (though filled with kerosene), it will not explode, and the oil cannot get on fire. The Wick is circular, also the Gass Chinney, and with the shade on it gives a most pleasant and brilliant light. It seems to us just the thing for families to use who are not supplied with gas, and it is, as far as we have seen, the cheapest of the various lamps which we believe to be safe.

From Hearth and Home, February S, 1873.

"GOOD LIGHT.-We have used, in this office and elsewhere, for more than a year past, ORIENT SAFETY LAMPS, manufactured by WALLACE & SONS. They are safe, simple in construction, easily managed, well made, give an excellent light-in short, are just the lamp we like, and are giad to recommend."
