NEWS OF THE WEEK. Compiled from Telegrams of Monday, Feb. 1. A REWARD of $5,000 was not long since offered by a citizen of London for a copy (said to be the only one in the United States) of a book published in England in 1830, relating to a member of the royal family of England, and against the publication of which the Lord Chancellor issued an injunction. The book is reported to be in possession of a lawyer of Louisville, Ky. The object in securing the book at London is said to be the fact that it contains documentary evidence of the legal marriage of King George IV. and Mrs. Fitz Herbert and the birth of a child to them in lawful wedlock, which child is supposed to be now living.

A NATIONAL CONVENTION of reformers whose object is to secure an amendment to the United States Constitution acknowledging God and the Bible was recently held in St. Louis. Speeches were made and resolutions were adopted in keeping with the object of the meeting. One of the resolutions declares "that the fact of the nation's life and its duty to God unite in requiring an explicit acknowledgment in its written Constitution of its relation to God as the author of its existence, to Christ as its ruler and the Bible as its Supreme authority."

The Minnesota Legislature has, by an almost unanimous vote, passed a resolution on William Miller's petition, which is said to appear before the Ways and Means Committee of the United States House of Representatives and clear himself of the charges and make a full exposure of his knowledge of the Pacific Mail subsidy business, or failing in that, to resign his position in Congress. At a caucus of Republican United States Senators in Washington on the evening of the 30th ult. it was decided to support the President in what he has already done relative to affairs in Louisiana, and to sustain him in the future in the support of the Kellogg Government in all its lawful authority. It is said there were eight Senators who dissented from this position of their Republican associates.

A NUMBER of representatives of colored men, in Washington, from several of the Southern States, have issued an address, signed by Frederick Douglas, John M. Langston, A. M. Gilliam, etc., to the President, asking him to call a committee, to be composed of colored men, to inquire into the condition of the colored people in the South. The address claims that a wretched state of affairs in the South will grow out of the neglect of Congress to pass such laws as are necessary to the better protection of the colored people in the South. A HARRISBURG telegram states that the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, on the evening of the 1st, during a discussion in a contested election case, "issue being joined on parliamentary points," Mr. Wolf, Republican, came in contact with the Speaker, who finally ordered Wolf under arrest, when the Republican members rushed to the defense of their colleague and wrestled him from the hands of the Sergeant at Arms. ELABORATE ENTERTAINMENT. Few things not absolutely essential to happiness add more to the enjoyment of life than social interchange of evening visits among friends and neighbors. In fact, we are not quite sure that it is not essential to happiness as it is, for we can live to good purpose and pleasure without many of our luxuries, without fine clothes, costly pictures, splendid jewels, but we cannot live to any use at all without friends and the upholding of friendly emotions and the friction of ideas that they arouse. Our nature would grow dry as hanks if our feelings were kindled only for our own immediate comfort and the very apothecosis of selfishness would take place with us isolated from outside interests and love of our kind. Nor would our intellects be so quickened by the contact of the ideas of others as they are, and our buckets need not all the replenishing from the wells of our neighbors that can be had. It is very interesting to see how many among us of the warp and woof of each other's ideas, the varying views of things when seen from each other's standpoint, and how much we learn from the conversation of the same platform, declaring that "local selfishness is the worst enemy we have."

ALL SORTS. The Boston Journal says that as the Custom-House Inspector boarded the train from Canada, on the Vermont line, and asked another which was most closely stowed in the train, with several bottles of liquor. As he was taking one after another from his large pockets and a large army canteen from over his shoulder, the man drew the cork from the canteen and threw it on the floor, then smashed one bottle on the floor, and asked another which was most closely stowed in the train, with several bottles of liquor. A correspondent sends the Chicago Advance the following bona fide composition, read in school a few days ago by a Wisconsin boy: "I go to school to learn to read and write, but I find a man closely stowed in the train, with several bottles of liquor. As he was taking one after another from his large pockets and a large army canteen from over his shoulder, the man drew the cork from the canteen and threw it on the floor, then smashed one bottle on the floor, and asked another which was most closely stowed in the train, with several bottles of liquor."

According to La Nature, Dr. Habel has recently arrived at the conclusion, after mature study, that the guano beds are not made of the excrements of seabirds, as has been hitherto supposed. Chemical treatment has disclosed an indissoluble residue composed of fossil sponge and marine plants and animalcules. Habel's opinion is that the guano is made of fossil remains, of which the organic matter has been transformed into a nitrogenized substance, while the mineral constituents have remained unaltered.

Take heart, all who toil; all youths in humble situations, all in adverse circumstances, all who are poor and despised. If it be but to drive the plow, strive to do well; if it be but to work the loom, strive to do well; if it be but to cut bolts, strive to do well; if it be but to keep the iron hot, it is attention to business that lifts the feet higher up in the ladder.

Profanity is a mark of low breeding. Show us a man that commands respect; an oath trembles not on his tongue. Read the catalogue of crime. Inquire the names of the guilty. Do not let your virtue. Without a single exception you will find them to be profane. Think of the words of the Bible: "The word of God is living and powerful, sharper than any sword."

The Government pays twenty-five cents apiece on the guano it makes at the springs in the State of Louisiana. For some of the patents embraced, the same going to the owner of the patents. During the year ending last July the Government paid $1,010 of the new rice and 10,020 carriages.

The Dayton Enquirer makes bold to remark that "when an intelligent gentleman writes an article in the Cincinnati Commercial." Truth is one of the rarest gems. Many a youth has been lost in society by allowing his name to be used in connection with some of the patents embraced, the same going to the owner of the patents. During the year ending last July the Government paid $1,010 of the new rice and 10,020 carriages.
