FOR BABY'S SAKE.

THE weary night has worn away In troubled dream and start of pain;

And groping through the shadows gray Morn lights my darkened room again.

How can I meet this bitter morn, Life's anguish left, its hope forlorn? How can I bear the thoughts that wake From sleep with me? For baby's sake!

Seeks out the darling lying there;
It lights the sleep flushed cheek; it gleams
In tangled waves of sunny hair;
Flies from the hand that grasps in vain,

The brightest of the morning beams

Then kisses the soft lips again;

In those forget-me-nots, his eyes.

The little one's awakening:

I check the sighs that quickly come,

will not cloud with look of gloom

More bright his mother's smile must be;

His father's face he ne'er shall see;

My bark of joy gone down-its wake Must glitter still-for baby's sake.

Dear baby-arms that clasp my own!

The soft embrace removes my power; Sweet voice, I hear in every tone

God's message to my darkest hour. He knew the grief my soul must stir, And sent my little comforter;

A baby's hand to help me on-

Nor all alone, I'm sometimes sure,

My joy in this fair child can be;

To train his boy to meet him there-For this I live! For this I wake!

Help me, dear Lord! for baby's sake!
