Spitting in a Rail Car.

Dreamed a curious dream;

First there came a gentleman, In shoes of patent leather, Raglan for the weather : In the height of fashion,

Watch-key, hat and glove, And with air professional Spit upon the stove. Near him sat a parson, Telling how the Lord, Sent the great revivals,

Blessed the preached word; But my dream discovered. He was not above "Honey Dew" or "Fine Cut," Spitting on the stove.

Next came in a trader, Pockets full of cash, Talked about the country Going all to smash; T'was the "women's dressing," Did the thing "by Jove."

Sipped a little brandy, Spit upon the stove. Then a jolly farmer, Bragging of his wheat, Thought his swine and horses No where could be beat ; "Like to sell his Durhams,

By the head or drove." Kept his jaws a wagging, Spit upon the stove. Paddy thought 'twas "quare" like To be sitting still,

All the while a goin' Over bog and hill; "Twas a glorious country, Sure." as he could prove. Equal to his betters.

Spitting on the stove.

Witless, perfumed dandy, Putting on his airs, Flourished diamond breastpin, Smoking in a forward ear; Talked about the love of men "Such a perfect love." Twirled a carrot moustache,

Spit upon the stove. Little boy in short coat Wants to be a man, Following example As the surest plan : Watches gent and parson, Copies every move.

And, with Pat and trader. Spits upon the stove. Soon the flying rail car Reeks with unuscous steam. Ladies almost fainting. Children in a scream, Husband, asking lady, "What's the matter love?

Have a glass of water?" Splts upon the stove. On we go, still flying. Not a breath of air Fit for christian people In that crowded ear : Sickening, fainting, dying Ladies make a move,

Gents throw up the window Spits upon the stove. Talk of ladies' flounces, Ribbons, jewels, flowers, Crinolines and perfumes, Gossip, idle hours-Put all faults together Which men can't approve, And they are not a match
