Annual Meeting of the NEB. EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION.
A Large Attendance, a Harmonious Session, and a Profitable Meeting.
LINCOLN, NEB., Jan. 21, 1879.

Association convened pursuant to adjournment, with President Wolfe in the chair, and E. M. Correll, Secretary, pro tem.

The Chicago Stereotype Works submitted the following exhibit: 20 boxes of 200 images of miscellany to 30 or more papers, $1.50, each publisher to pay his own freight; 60 inches newspaper for 30 papers, 90 cents, each publisher to pay his expressage; 8 columns folder printed without ads., about 20 papers, 25 cents per quart, payments monthly in advance for plate bills, and weekly in advance for printed sheets.

The association found that the system of plates was preferable to the co-operative plan. On motion of Mr. Wellman, a committee of one was appointed to lay the proposition of the Chicago Stereotype Works before the publishers using the co-operative plan. Mr. Wellman was appointed as such committee.

The following resolution was then adopted: Resolved, That the Secretary be empowered to revise the list of members, cutting off those that are delinquent (under the by-laws) have left the State or the profession permanently, and to notify all members of their status and the fees now due the association.

The Nebraska Editorial Association met in Lincoln last week. The happy harmonizing of aspirations and appetites! The union of intellect and interrogations!

Warning to Girls who Chew Gum.
One evening a short time ago, says the St. Louis News, an incident occurred on Portland avenue that may serve as a warning to hundreds of young persons who have entered upon a career of wax-chewing. A girl named Lida Smith had been a chewer for nearly a year.

On motion, a committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Williams, Wellman and MacMurphy, were appointed to wait upon C. H. Gere, the orator, and inform him that the Association was ready to listen to his address. The association adjourned until 7:30 p. m.

The association met pursuant to adjournment. Mr. Gere was present, and stated that he did not understand that an address was expected of him at this time, whereas Mr. Gere was selected as orator and Fred Nye as poet for the ensuing year, with the understanding that a programme of arrangements would be made for the next annual meeting. On motion, the Executive Committee were instructed to procure a hall for the use of the association at its next annual meeting.

A general and interesting discussion then took place respecting the law relative to newspapers, whereupon the following bill was drawn and adopted section by section: The following committee was appointed to take charge of the bill, with instructions to work, like beavers, for its passage, J. A. MacMurphy, J. C. McBride and C. H. Gere.

On motion, the Secretary was instructed to have 200 copies of the Act to provide for the publication of country board, proceedings, &c., printed, to be circulated among the members of the Legislature. of history, what they did privately is a matter of inference, what they thought is a matter of supposition, but their memories will be cherished—aye, never forgotten until the editors' north of the Platte settle up those little bills. But with tears in our eyes and our eyes doubled up we must draw to a close. Suffice it to say that like Caesar and MacMurphy, the Neb.-Eds. "came, saw, and—" went back home again, sponging their Railroad rates both ways. Sie transit Teddy McGinnis.—Hebron Journal.

Speaking of the work of the editorial association at its last meeting, the Beatrice Express says: "For the first time since its organization the association settled down to active work, and took a firm and decided stand against the legislation against the fraternity and the printing business, such as has been enacted during several of the last sessions. The fraternity does not ask anything in the way of legislation but what is reasonable and just. It asks no special favors, but only seeks to defend itself from legislation which seriously affects the printing and publishing business, while at the same time it saves nothing to the tax-payers. That the legislators of Nebraska will stop this foolish discrimination against a class to which both they and the country are so largely indebted, we have not the least doubt, when the equities in the matter are brought to their attention."—News

Mr. Editor:—I pen you a few lines to let you know how we are. We have quite a flourishing school. They had quite a time at Grand Prairie last Monday night, drawing lots for the prettiest girl. One fellow paid for twenty-five numbers and the prize was a 50 cent album. We are losing one of our best neighbors, Mr. Murry, they are bound for Kansas. Hoping that you can find space for this, I remain, Respy. C. W.

Warning to Girls who Chew Gum.
One evening a short time ago, says the St. Louis News, an incident occurred on Portland avenue that may serve as a warning to hundreds of young persons who have entered upon a career of wax-chewing. A girl named Lida Smith had been a chewer for nearly a year. She is about 11 years old, rather bright and intelligent, and cheerful about the same quantity of the material that was used by neighboring girls. She took the gum from her mouth, stuck it under the edge of the mandible, and then went on to the kitchen and get a swallow of water, and on her return her parents were horrified to see her jaws moving rapidly. She was told to throw the wax from her mouth, and on an investigation it was found that she was not chewing anything; still her jaws kept moving at a rapid rate. The parents sent for a physician, who came and attempted to hold her jaw over her position believing it to be only temporary, but he could not stop the regular movement. The child grew nervous, and the excitement only increased the action of her jaws. The physician put a bandage over her face and this partially relieved the movement, but the twitching still continued to hold her jaw over her face. As a last resort a moderate dose of morphia was administered, and the little girl kept up incoherent mutterings, accompanied by a general distention of the muscles of the upper portion of the body during the upper portion of the night, and toward morning the little sufferer was restored to her normal condition. The physician says he never heard of such a case before, and thinks it was brought about by a spasmodic action of the muscles of the face, caused by over-action. The little girl, after enduring a night of suffering, is now restored, but nothing in the world could induce her to stop chewing wax.
