and trustworthy office is Wm. H. Newell, of Rock Binffs. He was a farmer in that precinct in 1875, when the republicans of this county elected him County Judge, and he made one of the best judges we ever had in that Court, by the way. He served two years and not wishing a re-nomination retired to his farm, from whence the people are about to call him again to serve in another and fully as responsible a position. Judge Newell served in the army during the rebellion and rose to Brigade Commissary, is about 45 years eld of plain and howest ways, and no man in this county stands higher, and we think none will draw a larger vote.

The Bondage of Drink.

You think I love it ! If this nervetess hand Could gain immortal strength, this very hour I'd sweep the heilish traffic from the land, And crush its blighting, maddening nightmare power. Yes, now, with all my latest dying breath I'll curse the thing that drags me down to death. Love it? I loath it! Yet I drink, and drink, And hate myself, as through the town I siink, The piedge? No! Too late—too late! No bledge! I've tried it twice a wasteof breath; Too late-there's no relief for me but death. It's bad enough to drink; but not to drink! Doth such a strain of ghastly horrors wake As in one hour would leave me dead. I think; Ah, keep away ye flends, for pity's sake! The very thought of them affects my brain; My end will be when they shall come again.

Love rum? I'd love to hold my head up high And breathe God's air a free and fearless man; And look with undimmed eyes on earth and sky With steady serves to do and head to plan; I'd love to grapple trials as they come, in manly fashien, brave and strong. Love rum? If I could only go into some land Where no drink is, God knows how willingly I'd fight these dreadful torments of the damned That clutch the soul of him who would be free, at marshal up those grizzly shares of woe. To fall again as twice before? No, no! it, if, I might have known how it would be, In those old College days so wild and gay. When first I drank in youthful revelry. Flow easy then to put the cup away!

A mother's hope and joy I was till then; Now see me trembling—ha! Those eyes again Black, flery eyes, to hell, where ye belong! I'll drink ye down-what, blood? Drink blood? Help, help! they come, a hideous, devilish Back, get back ! they'll toss me in the flood Long crooked hands are clawing in my hair!
Is this the end? Ha, ha! Too late for prayer.

in some measure, the supplies of drink is something about this habit of social worth a trial.—(Father.) wine-drinking that kills the motives to work for temperance among those who suffer by coarse and destructive habits of drink. Temperance is very rarely directly labored for by those who drink wine. As a rule, with almost no exceptions at all, the man who drinks wine with his dinner does not undertake any work to keep his humble neighbors temperate. As a rule, too, the wine-drinking clergyman says nothing about intemperance in his pulpit, when it is demonstrably the most terrible sceurge that afflicts the world. There seems to be something in the touch of wine that paralyzes the ministerial tongue, on the topic of drink. We fully understand the power of social influence to hold to the wine cup as the symbol of hospitality. It is one of the most relentless depotisms from which the world suffers, and exactly here is its worst result. We do suppose that a very large number of drunk ards are made by wine drunk at the table, in respectable homes. There is a percentage of intemperate men made W. W.
