MAJOR THORNBURG KILLED BY THE UTES.

AND THIRTY MORE WOUNDED. Reinforcements Rushed Through to Aid

The following dispatches were received at the headquarters of the Department of the Platte, October 1st, at 4 a clock:

MILK RIVER, COL., SEPT. 29-8:80 p. m., VIA RAWLINS. A. A. General, Dept. of the Platte, Omaha Barraeks, Nebraska.

This command, composed of three companies of cavalry, was met a mile south of Milk River by several hundred Ute Indians, who attacked and drove us to the wagon train, which had parted, with great loss. It becomes my painful duty to announce the death of Major Thornburg, who fell in harness; the painful but not serious wounding of Lieutenant Paddock and Dr. Grimes, and ten elisted men, and wagenmaster McKinisty, with the wounding of about twentyfive men and teamsters. I am now corralled near water with about threequarters of our animals killed after a desperate fight since 12 o'clock m. We hold our position at this hour. I shall strengthen it during the night, and believe that we can hold out until reinried through. Officers and men behaved with the greatest gallantry. I am slightly wounded in two places.

PAYNE, Commanding. LATER.

In our dispatches we find the death of Maj. Thornburg at the hands of the Utes. Since then it is learned that the whole country there is excited and fearful of an Indian War. In numerous places they are asking the goverka, again renew our pledges of fidelity to the nor for arms. In reply Gen. Pope
