The Judge je-ted in a ponderous judicial way about the thing, was becoming grave. The Juige lost a little of his patience and said the icke had gone 'ar enough Jim Sturgis said be knew of no joke in the matter -his clients could not be punished for indulgence in what some prople chose to consider a same of chance, until it was proven to be a game of chance. Judge and counsel said that would be an easy mat.er, and forthwith called Deacons Job Peters, Burke and John son and Dominies Wier and Miggles to testify, and they unanimously and with strong feeling put down the legal quibble of Storgis, by pronouncing that old siedge was a game of chance

"What do you call it now?" said said the Judge.

"I call it a gamie of science!" reorted Sturgis, and I'll prove it too They saw his little game.

He brought in a crowd of witnesses and produced an ove who ming mass of testimony to show that old sledge was not a game of chance, but a game of science. Instead of being the sin ples case in the world, it had somehow turned out to be an excessively knotty one. The Judge scratched his bead awhile and said there "was no way of coming to a determination, because just as many men could be broug to into court who would testify on one side, as could be found to testify or the other. But he said he was willing to do the fair thing by all parties and would act upon any suggestion Mr. Sturgis would make for the solution of the difficutly.
