THE RED CLOUD CHIEF.

WEDNESDAY MARCH 31, 1875

THE SORROWS OF LIFE.

Many a volume has been written about the love of mothers, its enthusiasm of hope and fancy, its adorations of the unworthy, its agony for the lost; but I do not remember that any one has ventured to touch upon a still more terrible view of the subject, viz: the disappointment with which a woman of high aspirations, noble generosities, and perhaps an unwarrantable personal pride, all intensified by the homely circumstances of life around her—sometimes looks upon the absolutely common place people whom she has brought into the world. She, too, has had her dreams about them while they were children, and all things seemed possible—while they were youth, with still some grace and freshness of the morning veiling their unheroic outlines. But a woman of seventy can cherish no fond delusions about her middle-aged sons and daughters who are, to all intents and purposes, as old as she is. What a dismal sense of failure must come into such a woman's heart as she looks at them: Perhaps this is one reason why grand fathers and grand mothers throw themselves so eagerly into the new generations, by means of which human nature can always go on deceiving itself. What a difference between the ordinary man or woman of fifty, and that ideal creature which he, or she, appeared to the mother's eyes at fifteen! The old people gaze and gaze to see our former youthful features in us; and who can express the blank of that disappointment, the cruel mortifications of those old hopes which never find expression in words?

It is surprising how little attention is given by the majority of people to the cultivation of flowers. It is the more surprising, when we consider how almost universal is the admiration which they call forth. One can hardly pass through the streets with a little boquet, or even a single flower, without at once becoming the object of attraction. We never see one admiring a beautiful flower without feeling, that through that flower, that person is approaching nearer the Great Giver.

Those who can afford the attention and necessary expense, may cultivate the rare epoties of other climes. But all, who have a few spare feet of soil exposed to the sun, with a little care, may during the winter and summer, have plenty of flowers. In the country the householder is inexcusable who has not his flower beds and his rose bushes, his lilacs and his creepers. And there are scarcely any, even of the residents in cities, who may not cultivate a few blooming plants and roses in their gardens.

The Valley County Herald says:—"While Buckshot was out hunting yesterday he sat down upon the ground near a coyotes hole. He had not been there long before a huge grasshopper poked his head and half of his body out of the hole, and mildly asked what day of the month it was. Upon being told, he sighed and said, "not a darned green thing yet." Give us a chaw of your tobacco. He took the tobacco in his lean feeler, turned it over once or twice and then bit out a quarter section and vanished muttering something about the month of June.

The girls attending a seminary in Illinois set two chickens fighting in their room last Sunday. Bets on the result ran high, and at the conclusion of the contest the winning maiden was "better" by a gold watch, a pair of silk stockings, a French corset, two rolls of false hair, a patent bustle, and a beautiful book-mark with "Christ Our Guide" worked on it in colored silk.

"Is there any person you wish me to marry?" said a wife to a dying spouse who had been somewhat of a tyrant in his day.

"Marry the devil, if you like," was the reply.

"No I thank you, my dear, one husband of the same family is enough for me."

A Mississippi boatman with immense feet, stopping at a public house on the levee, asked the porter for a bootjack to pull off his boots. The colored gentleman, after examining the stranger's feet, broke out as follows:

"No jack here big nuff for dem feets. Jackass couldn't pull 'em off, massa, without taretring the leg. 'Yus better go back about three miles to de forks in de road and pull 'em off dar.

A man whose wife hung herself in his presence, on being asked why he did not prevent the tragedy, replied: "I cut her down three times last week, and can't be always cutting her down."

An Indiana man bet $10 that he could ride the fly-wheel in a saw-mill, and as his widow paid the bet she remarked: 'William was a kind husband, but he didn't know much about fly-wheels."

A Williamsburg woman has an artificial jaw. Did she weave the other one?

St. Nicholas for 1874.

A Book for Boys and Girls

Of this book Charles Dudley Warner writes:

"In the bound volume of St. Nicholas with its glory of red and gold, we have a permanent addition to the literature of the young. Never before has so much literary and and artistic talent co-operated in the service of children. It is a continual educator of their taste and of their honor and courage. I do not see how it can be made any better, and if the children don't like it, I think it is time to begin to change the kind of children in this country."

St Nicholas for 1875.

The prospectus of the second volume shows that there is to be no falling off, but an increase in its literary and pictorial attractions. Among the other attractive features are

Two Splendid Serial Stories,

"The Young Surveyor"

by J. T. TROWBRIDGE, author of the Jack Hazard Stories, etc.

"EIGHT COUSINS"

by LOUISA M. ALCOTT, author of "Little Women," etc.

The peculiar features of St. Nicholas, which have conduced so largely to its popularity, will be kept up with spirit:

Short and easy stories in FRENCH, GERMAN, AND LATIN for translation will appear occasionally, while, Jack-in-the-Cuddle Box will continue to be full of interest, and the department for very young readers will be enlarged.

Bayard Taylor and other distinguished travellers will give Stories of Foreign Countries.

Mr. Riding will continue his series of delightful and instructive Papers on practical Subjects.

Mr. Bartlett and others will attend to the department of Home Entertainments, Tableaux, Vivants, etc.

New writers, in addition to our present large corps of contributors, will give young people of all ages, Poems, Jingles, Stories, Sketches, and Papers on History, Biography, Travel, Adventure, Natural History, Out-door and In-door Sports, &c., &c., with a hearty sprinkling of fun throughout the volume Price $3.00 a year, but up to Jan. 1st we'll send the TWELVE NUMBERS for the year just closed (Vol. II) for only $2.00. The same, elegantly bound in Red and Gold will be sent, charges paid for $4.00.

One year's subscription and twelve back numbers, $5.00. One year's subscription and VOLUME ONE, BOUND as above, sent charges paid for $6.00.
