Schlenker, who murdered the woman in Lincoln, will perhaps be the principal of the next hemp soricible in this state.

E. C. Ingersel, brother of "Bob," has gone to ascertain by personal observation whether his brothers theory is correct. He was interred at Washington last Monday.

"When you send a paper to a young lady, cut a small item out, no matter what. This insures the office the sale of another paper."

It was the editorial hyens of the Johnson Co., Journal who wrote the above, girls.

An old bachelor thus complains of his washerwoman: "It is awful annoying to have some other fellows clothes left in one's room by the washerwoman. Saturday, we put on another fellow's shirt but couldn't wear it. It was ruffled round the bottom, the sleeves were too short to button cuffs on, and there was no place for a collar."

A fearful cyclone visited portions of Kansas on the night of May 21st, doing fearful damage. At Grandfort five were killed and a number crippled. At Irving 12 were killed and 49 wounded, most of the latter severely, many of them will die.

A special dispatch to the Atchison Champion from Concordia states that the storm was extremely violent in the vicinity of Delphos, Ottawa County. Fifteen dead bodies have been brought in from two square miles of territory. One man from Beloit was taken up in his wagon, thrown to the ground, and instantly killed. A woman and child were thrown against a wire fence and killed. Five persons were killed in one house, near Delphos. The crops have been severely injured.

Reports from Scandinia, Republic County, show that the storm was very severe in that section, but no casualties have been reported.

From Potsdam.

ED. CHIEF.—After enduring the disadvantage of a school house for four years in school district No. 32 we have a good frame one 18x24 with an ante-room 6x8. Well may we feel proud of it, and no bonds against the district. Miss Moore teaches our school this summer, she comes well recommended and truly appearances are not against her. The Price boys have bought the N. W. of Section 7 Town 4 Range 10 and have commenced breaking.

Mr. Burgess, the harness maker, has arrived at Blue Hill and opened out his stock of goods; he hails from Harvard. Col. Hoover shipped two car loads of hogs from this point last week. "Blue Hills motto" keep the balls rolling; the Kro K especially.

Mr. Rorick, one of our early settlers who went back to Ohio some two years ago, recently returned satisfied that Nebraska is a poor state to run away from.

Tierman's building looms far above all others and has what all towns need, a good hall above.

The acreage of corn this year triples any preceding year—there is now a great scarcity of both corn and hay. The present prospects indicates a rousing crop; but let her come, we can stand it I guess. F. M. S.

HAIL STORM.

May 30th, 1879.

ED. CHIEF.—A most terrific hail storm occurred here this afternoon about three o'clock. During the day it had been raining and the sun shining alternately. About noon thick black clouds began to gather in the north and northwest and at 3 o'clock it burst upon us. Hail stones an inch and a half in diameter almost covered the ground—and accompanied by a heavy wind from the west has almost utterly destroyed vegetation. Not a vestige of corn can be seen. Red wheat and all wheat that was jointed is completely stripped and looks as if it would not yield a bushel at harvest time, the grass wheat looks better, I think it is not damaged much. Every light of glass on the west side of buildings and unprotected is shivered to atoms—our new school house took it with the rest, the hail-stones blowing through the demolished windows on the west side and breaking glass on the opposite side. The terrified children clung to their teacher Miss Moore, who noble and fearless talking too and caressing the little ones until the storm subsided and their fears abated. The ante-room was their safe retreat and there amid the darkness (for it has no windows) and pelting of hail-stones on the roof, and the cries and pleadings of her little flock she kept them. Miss Moore evinced a presence of mind and courage that she was suddenly called upon to exercise, that calls for our heartfelt thanks. At present it is impossible to learn the extent of the storm. Later: The storm extended over a breadth of five miles north and south, making Blue Hill its center. F. M. S.

The Greatest of the Great Shows.

We need scarcely remind our readers that on Monday, June 9th Anderson & Co.'s rightly named Great World's Menagerie and Circus will pitch its acres of tents in Red Cloud. Stimulated by its liberal advertising, and the high compliments that have preceded it the annual attack of circus fever is now raging all around with unusual epidemic violence; nor are its attacks confined to the juveniles only, for the staid heads of families show strong symptoms of the disease, notwithstanding their desperate efforts to conceal its ravages under an appearance of assumed indifference. We shall, therefore, hail the Messrs. Anderson & Company as saving amidst the general disorder, and on recommending their system as at once unprecedently liberal, certain, and pleasant to all tastes. They evidently believe in administering animal and arsenic doses of the hugest allopathic proportions; but in cases of this kind even the most positive homoeopathist will admit that the larger the doses the better, and that the effect upon the most debilitated systems will be of the highest description. The magnificent display of monster and minor, ferocious and docile, tractable and untractable animals, from every quarter of the globe, will certainly instruct and delight the mind, while the daring and graceful achievements of the splendid corps of equestrians and gymnasts will electrify the whole system, and set the most sluggish pulse bounding with excitement. The princely parade in the morning, giving a free view of the monster elephants, camels and other animals, and displaying the immense wealth and resources of the exhibition to the most sumptuous advantage, will be worth coming a long way to see, and serve as a suitable introduction to the biggest and best show that has ever visited this section.

Common Schools the hope of our Country.

While briefly glancing at the common schools of our country, I am inspired with the following thoughts: It may be said the views of those friendly to education: The whole period of our existence should be considered as the course of our education, and there is no portion of life of more importance in this respect, than that which intervenes between the age of 7 or 8 and 20 years. During this period, the mental powers are advancing toward perfection, and are capable of acquiring clear views of scientific truths. At the same time the moral powers are being arranged on the side either of virtue or of vice, and in most cases the character of the future man or woman depends on the intellectual views and the moral habits which are then formed. It is therefore a matter of the utmost importance that the young mind, at this interesting period, should be properly directed as to its views of truth and of duty, and guarded against the temptations which might turn it aside from the path of rectitude. From this view of our subject, it will be hard for a thinking person to over estimate the great responsibility resting upon parents and teachers. It is indeed much to be regretted, that an opinion sometimes prevails that the most slender qualifications are sufficient for a teacher, and that but little preparation is required for conducting a common school; if a man is unfortunate in trade, enfeebled in body, or is too lazy to perform manual labor, it is considered that he may still be sufficiently qualified for a teacher, after having spent 3 or 4 months at some high school, or if he can read only his mother tongue quite well and write a fair hand, regardless of principal, and has acquired a tolerable knowledge of arithmetic, grammar etc., he is generally considered as fully warranted to set up the trade of a teacher; and if perchance in addition to these he has learned a small amount of Latin or some other dead language, he is then viewed as moving in the higher rank of instructors. It is commendable to say that such vague opinions of our teaching force, is fast becoming a matter of the past, and many of our teachers are rapidly rising in the scale of independent intelligence; but it is, at the same time, a fact, that many of our teachers are bereft of few qualifications beside those above stated. It is true that the study of books will not learn the teacher all about conducting a school, he should have the faculty of ascertaining the range of thought, and of rendering the ideas they have already acquired suitable for explaining them. The experienced teacher knows that his work is sometimes very arduous and perplexing; but things are pursued for the money that is in them, and this is one of the reasons why the teacher works so hard to secure satisfaction in the school room; the same is true of all other occupations. But this idea should not be carried so far as to crush the object of educational advancement, and the elevation of the young to positions of respect and independence calling of course it is always well to settle the financial question as well as may be, and then proceed regardless of pay; it is true that teachers, as in the case with common people, will always command all they can get for their work, but the fewer teachers we have that teach for money and that only, the better, and the sooner will our schools approach a desirable standard. The parents should always take an active part in educating the children; as the child generally thinks that what father and mother says is good law and worthy of obedience.

While the parent who sends his son into the world uneducated and without skill in any art or science, does a great injury to mankind, as well as to his own family; for he deprives the community of a useful citizen, and bequeaths to it a nuisance. W. E. Good. Red Cloud.
