Mr. John Murry the carpenter and contractor has his hands full at the present time, building new residences. He has two or three in course of construction for ex Gov. Garber, one of which is to be occupied by Mr. Shidler of the Webster Co. Bank. The excellence of Mr. Murry's work is attested by the fact that he always has plenty of contracts on his hands whether times are dull or not.
Our contemporary of the south end pays quite a handsome compliment to our good looks in his last issue. We are sorry that we cannot return the compliment in the same way, but the south end fellow is so uncompromisingly ugly that it would be an insult to refer to his personal appearance at all. Good intentions are more deserving of compliment than good looks, anyway, and while the "north end fellow" may possess the one, the south end fellow certainly possesses the other; but we have heard of a place that is said to be full of good intentions.

WOODEN WEDDING.
THOMASVILLE NEB., Sept. 12th, 1881.
EDITOR CHIEF:—A number of friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Riley assembled at their residence Tuesday September 6th inst., to celebrate the fifth anniversary of their marriage. Notwithstanding the rainy day the guests had an enjoyable time, and at four o'clock p. m. a good and luxurious dinner was spread and enjoyed by all present, about forty in number. A good display of presents were donated, among which was a nice bureau, brackets, bed chair and other small things to tedious to mention.
About seven o'clock p. m. the young folks gathered to "trip the light fantastic toe," which lasted until the small hours of the morning when they dispersed wishing each other a pleasant good night.

THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE
FOR OCTOBER.
The October number is more than usually attractive, and affords very pleasant and edifying reading. We have the first installment of a peculiarly interesting serial, entitled, "Martha's Vineyard," by the late Francis Brown, and the first chapter of an admirable story, "May Canningham's Trial," besides other short stories, sketches, essays, etc. with well-known writers. "The Trapped Monk and his Life," "The Cathedral," "Religious Fairs in India," "Summer Life on Lake Canaan," "Missionary Martyr," John Williams," are among the other noteworthy features of the number; they are all finely illustrated. Rev. Dr. Deems contributes the third of the series of essays, "Only," and "The Home pulpit" contains a sermon by Rev. John Stoughton, D. D., on the subject, "A New Commandment." The poems are meritorious, and several of them are tastefully illustrated. There is a large variety of miscellaneous matter, together with those popular features, "International Sunday-school Lessons," "Notes by the Way," "Familiar Notices," etc. The price of a copy of this excellent magazine is only 25 cents. Yearly subscription $2. Postpaid. Address, FRANK LESLIE, Publisher, 55, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.
