THURSDAY, NOV. 24, 1881.

A MAN has actually been shot in Missouri for resisting arrest.

The cases against the star route thieves have been dismissed. Shame.

Virginia has gone republican and the "solid south" is a thing of the past.

The Plattsmouth Daily Journal, a neat little democratic paper, came to hand last week.

We learn by a Kansas exchange that Jim Humphrey, editor of the Bellville Telescope, shot and killed Dr. Woodward at Scandia, Kan. last week.

The quarrel grew out of the county seat fight in Republic county.

It is now claimed that the man captured by sheriff Kilman, of Hall county, last week, is not one of the notorious Williams brothers, as was supposed.

We could hardly bring ourselves to believe that one of those notorious out-laws could be so easily captured.

Mrs. CAMPBELL, wife of the founder of the Christian church, is 80 years of age.

There is a young lady in Sandusky, O.—Miss Fanny Mills—who has the biggest feet in the United States.

John B. Finch, the temperance advocate, has resigned his position as worthy chief temple, of the I. O. G. T., and it is surmised that Gen. Bowan, of Juniata, will be his successor.

It would be a good thing for the I. O. G. T. of the state if they were both "fired out."

As Arkansas man was stricken with paralysis while cursing the Lord for not sending rain, and a Maine deacon was visited the same way while praying for rain.

Shot At.

A Would-be Avenger Deliberately Fires Two Shots at Guitene.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19, 6 p. m.—Late this afternoon while Guitene was being taken to the jail, and when about half way between the capitol and the jail, a white man riding a sorrel horse rode up near the prisoner, and before any of the guards could interfere, he fired into the van, and then rode off in a northwesterly direction, the guards and the vag itself pursuing him.

Guitene received a flesh wound in the arm. The van was guarded by a detachment of mounted police, who persuaded the assailant, accompanied by the van. The guard were afraid to leave the van, so they took it with them in the pursuit. This made their gait necessarily slow, and the assailant, who was well mounted, gained on them. After following the assailant some distance, the guard and police abandoned the pursuit, and he has escaped. Guitene was shot in the forearm, but it is only a flesh wound. He was terribly frightened when he got to the jail. He told the officers in charge of the guard, "Tell Detective Vass and Marshal Williams that I want a double guard sent down to the jail to take me up to court Monday morning." Guitene's wound is very slight, as the ball struck him after passing through a panel of the van. Only one policeman and the jail guard were with the van as an escort. The assailant made good his escape. No chance for his capture, as public opinion is considerably in his favor. Many express regret that the shot was not fatal.

Later advices say that the "Avenger" has been captured and that his name is Wm. Jones, of Virginia. A subscription has been started to pay the expense of his trial, and $250 is already signed.

ON TO DENVER.

What General Manager Potter has to Say of the B. & M. Extension.

From the Journal.

The following extract taken from the Chicago Times, in regard to the B. & M. extension may prove interesting to the people of Lincoln:

Mr. T. J. Potter, general manager of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy system of lines, returned to this city yesterday morning, after having spent the greater part of the week in an inspection of the Denver extension. He reports that forty-nine miles of the track have already been laid westward from Culbertson, Neb., since October 15, when work was first commenced. The work of tracklaying, Mr. Potter further states, is progressing at the rate of one and a half miles daily, heavy steel rails being placed on a solid road-bed. The route is graded and ready for the ties from the distance of about 110 miles, west of the present end, over six hundred teams and a force of several thousand men—graders, track-layers, etc.—being employed in the work of construction. Mr. Potter reports the maximum grade of the located route from Culbertson all the way to Denver, a distance of nearly three hundred miles, at thirty feet to the mile, and that the work of grading will be prosecuted with dispatch, until the severe weather sets in, and at intervals after that time when projected to be completed before the line in operation to Denver by June or July next. No depot facilities have yet been arranged for in Denver, but the present intention of the manager is to erect a depot at the terminus, whereby the company will jointly, for the next two or three years, occupy the union depot in that city with the Union Pacific, the Denver & Rio Grande, and other Colorado roads.

STARTLING SENSATION.

CHICAGO, November 16.—A mysterious man has been arrested at Kensington, a suburban town, and jailed. He gave several fictitious names and claims to have come from Canada. When searched he was found to have a mass of correspondence between Charles J. Guitene and many prominent people throughout the country. The correspondence discloses the alleged fact that a wide spreading conspiracy existed previous to Garfield's assassination and that Guitene was one of the members of the gang who had plotted and planned for months to remove the president. The police of Kensington refuse to give the details of the arrest of the suspicious character, but have had him safely lodged in jail. Col. Corkhill was communicated with by telegraph this evening and answered to hold the prisoner by all means and forward to him the correspondence. It is said that some startling disclosures will be made in the letters when they are made public in Washington at the trial, where they will arrive on Friday morning. The people at Kensington, which is a small hamlet, are greatly excited over the strange discovery, and threats are freely made to lynch the mysterious stranger before morning. The police are making extra exertions to guard well their prisoners.

A special to the Herald from Washington this evening says that the alleged cause of the rupture between Mac Veagh, Corkhill and President Arthur is said to be because the two former expected to receive a large amount of the contingent fund at their disposal in efforts to discover the supposed conspiracy, which has thus accidentally come to light in Kensington.

It appears to be the general belief that the above is a canard, and that there was no conspiracy. We have never believed that there was any connection with the assassination of president Garfield except Guitene, and the promulgation of the above while his trial is going on was doubtless a scheme of his few friends, gotten up for effect.—E.L.

St. Paul, Nov. 19.—A Pioneer Press special from Durand, Wisconsin, says:

E. Maxwell had an examination at 2 p. m. to-day. He plead "not guilty" and waived examination. On leaving the court room, the officers were overpowered, though they made a brave resistance, the prisoner was taken by 100 determined men from all parts of the county, and in less than three minutes was hanging from a convenient limb near the court house. Our citizens deprecate the action of the mob, but were powerless to resist. The matter was evidently arranged and skillfully carried out. After the hanging the crowd dispersed in good order, and our usually quiet village shows no signs of the fearful excitement that prevailed during the day.

AMERICAN civilization will not tolerate a bull fight. Human combats can only be carried out in secrecy, and even dog and cock fights are under such general condemnation that their occurrence must be apologized for by the people among whom they are held. Yet there is a spectacle, far more horrible than any slaughter of bulls, more shocking than any pugilistic contest and more degrading than any dog or cock fight, furnished and presided over by the majesty of the law itself, upon which the brutal instincts of our people can occasionally feed as ravenously as did the ancient Romans upon the bloody arena in which men and animals were daily slaughtered for their amusement. At the execution of Felix Manshaur, at Frederick, Maryland, eight hundred women, including a number of the terrible scene. At the hanging of Henry Jenkins at Fayetteville, West Virginia, twenty thousand people were present. "The gallows," says the account, "was placed so as to give a good view to the spectators assembled." We are also told that to prevent too great boldness of the crowd, the Hawknest riflemen were called out. But everything passed off properly, and the people went home early satisfied with an entertainment which the government had furnished them. If such spectacles inspired respect for the awful sacredness of life and the majesty of the law, they might be some excuse for them. But when it simply ministers to a morbid and brutish appetite, and results in arousing disregard for life, and in numerous propensities which lead to the commission of capital crimes, such spectacles are as reprehensible in the nineteenth century as were the gladiatorial combats of the degenerate Romans in the first.—Journal.

Another Book by Judge Tourge.

In his Preface to "A Royal Gentleman," which is to be sold by subscription, the author says: "The trouble is that the Northern man has made up a story for himself, and without the least hesitation, criticizes my departure from the original of his own imagination as untrue to life. After I cleared the air of the slaves had these pre-notions and what I saw of the life around me, impressed me keenly, and soon became a subject of engrossing interest.

"This book was written because its incidents, in effect, had passed before my eyes with such vividness that I could not but write; it is a picture of facts. Farther, it does not go nor lead.

"A Fool's Errand and The Invisible Empire" depicts the experience of a Northern settler in the Southern States during the period of Reconstruction. "Bricks without Straw" pictures the conditions and difficulties under which the Freedman is trying to struggle up from darkness into light. And now "A Royal Gentleman" portrays, in a novel and graphic manner, five characteristic elements, never before so clearly analyzed and treated, namely:—The Southern View of the Rebellion; the Autocratic Slaveholder, standing at the top of the social scale; the Poor White, then lying at the bottom; the new fast climbing to the higher levels; the typical Young Southerner before, during, and since the war, together with his relations—personal, social, and legal—with the typical Slave Girl, and the typical Freedman, and subsequent refinement, the types and virtues are alike tainted by the faint and indistinguishable trace of slave blood in her veins. It is a picture, vivid and passionate story, and there is that in it which will attract the most cultivated and fastidious.

It is said that Judge Tourge's books reached, within a year, the enormous sale of 350,000 copies, the most rapid sale in the history of book-publishing. His best of readers will, we predict, find "A Royal Gentleman" the most powerful and entertaining of the series. And those who have not yet had the pleasure of reading Judge Tourge's remarkable books will do well to commence with "A Royal Gentleman," historically the beginning of the series. The book is brilliantly illustrated. Price $2.00. Where there is no agent for the work, it will be sent, post-paid, on receipt of price. As it is to be sold by subscription only, Book agents should make a note of it. For particulars, address Weston Hubbert, 318 State Street, Ill.
