FRIDAY, MAY 9, 1884.

Campaign Gems.

The following extracts from the eloquent speech of Gen. Oglesby, before the Illinois state convention, are worthy to be repeated from every stump in the coming campaign:

"Oh! how we have stood by the national credit; how we have stood by the national honor; how we have built up the national glory! Gentlemen, do not talk about the past record of the republican party, the record is not past. [Cries of "No, no," and applause.] It is like the sermon on the mount. It is like the ten commandments. Are those now in the past? [Applause.] The record of the republican party is still being made. It is still expanding. How can a record be past when you are living upon it? When you are marching upon it today, when every gentleman in my presence feels in his inmost heart, when he comes to reflect upon it, that he is lifted up and dignified by it? There is no man who is not proud of it. It is not a past record, it is an everlasting record that will never be past."

"You trust the banner to my keeping, according to the usage and custom of political parties, while it is yet a victorious flag. A long line of republican governors has filled the office of chief executive of the state of Illinois. You then present it to me unsullied by defeat. Shall I be equal to the duty you impose and bear it on another victory? [Cries of "Yes."] Shall I promise you here and now that I will do that? Be patient, have confidence, faith and hope while I tell that I will land it safely there. [Cheers.]

"We can never become so perfect that it will not always be a matter of local interest as to what our legislation shall continue to be. In that field I shall do as I have done heretofore, remembering that the duties are delegated to three departments, remembering that not confusing the boundaries of executive, judicial and legislative departments of the state. I shall remember always to consult the legislative department, I shall remember always to consult the judicial department, and I shall remember also that it will be very acceptable and agreeable to the executive department to be consulted by the other two. [Applause and laughter.]

"The first national republican platform was laid deep in the hearts of the people, as the basis, the foundation upon which the structure was afterwards to be erected which those other six national republican platforms exemplify in this country today. Firm and solid as the foundation of the Libyan coast and the grand pyramids of Egypt, built by the ingenuity and art of many thousands and thousands of years ago, those grand structures, fixed upon a basis that will never yield, were built to stand for all time. So republican principles, as exemplified in the six succeeding national platforms, were based upon the first one, as the pyramids in the Libyan desert were based upon their impregnable and eternal foundations." [Applause.]

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS IN 1884.

From the edition of Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory, now in press, it appears that the newspapers and periodicals of all kinds at present issued in the United States and Canada reach a grand total of 13,402. This is a net gain of precisely 1,600 during the last twelve months, and exhibits an increase of 5,618 over the total number published just ten years since. The increase in 1874 over the total for 1873 was 493. During the past year the dailies have increased from 1,138 to 1,254; the weeklies from 9,062 to 10,028; and the monthlies from 1,091 to 1,499. The greatest increase is in the Western States. Illinois, for instance, now shows 1,009 papers in place of last year's total of 964, while Missouri issues 604 instead of the 523 reported in 1883. Other leading Western States also exhibit a great percentage of increase. The total number of papers in New York State is 1,523 against 1,399 in 1883. Canada has shared in the general increase.
