"JOSIAR."

- I never kin forget the day
  That we went out a wa'kin'.
  And sot down on the river bank,
  And kept on hours a talkin':
  He twisted up my apron string
  An' folded it together.
  An said be thought for harvest time
  'Twas cur'us kind o' weather.
- The sun went down as we sot there;
- Josiar seemed uneasy.
  And mother she began to call:
  "Lowezy! O Lowezy!"
  An' then Josiar spoke right up
  As I was just a start!!"
  An' said: "Lowezy, what's the use
- Of us two ever partin?
- It kind o' took me by surprise,
  An' yet I knew 'twas comin';
  I'd heard it all the summer long
  In every wild bee's hummin';
  I'd studied out the way I'd act;
  But, law! I couldn't do it;
  I meant to hide my love from him,
  But seems as if he knew it;
  In looking down into my even
- In looking down into my eyes He must a seen the fire;
- An' ever since that hour I've loved An' worshiped my Jos ar. —Eatonton Messenger.

HASTILY MARRIED.

How a Russian Soldier Found His Unknown Bride.

Toward the end of 1811, an epoch so memorable in the history of Russia, there dwelt on his domain of Menarodowno, Gabriel Gabrielowich, with his wife and only daughter Maria, a charming young girl about seventeen years of and respected; generous to an unusual degree, his house was ever open to all who chose to accept his lavish hospitality. Maria Gabrielowna had, of course, many suitors, attracted both by her personal charms and reputed wealth, but m spite of all importunities she remained obstinately indifferent to all. Her romantic. and impressionable mind, affected by the constant reading of many French novels, led her to imagine love. Unfortunately, the object of her tween life and death. affections, who undoubtedly returned When winter came, these stolen interlength the separation became intolerable, even with the solace of a daily interchange of love-letters, and Vlad mir Nicolaewich, in one of these, poured forth in glowing words all his love and fly with him, assuring her of her parents' forgiveness-for who, indeed, could withstand the humble prayer the lovers would make for forgiveness, or fail to be touched by such heroic love and constancy?

Maria's romantic imagination was fascinated; she could not resist, and soon all preliminaries for the flight were settled. She would feign headache, and retire early; at ten o'clock a sleigh would be waiting at the small garden gate, and in this she would be driven, with her maid, through the forest of Jadrino, where Vladimir would await his bride in the village church.

On the eve of her contemplated elopement, Maria, who was restless and unbappy, retired early to her room and swoon having accidentally seen his my fellow-officers! Without answering spent part of the night inditing a long name in the list of those who had dis- I ran up the steps and entered the and sentimental epistle to her dearest tinguished themselves and been wound- church, dimly lighted by one lamp. friend, and also a shorter one to her ed at Borodino. parents, in which she entreated their forgiveness for the step she was about mares, so that dawn found our beroine up and dressed, pale, and with no need to feign headache. Every anxious inflying from stern and cruel parents to ing of the hero who was to triumph the arms of her own true knight.

All was quiet within the sleeping household, but without the wind howled, and mosned, and beat madly against the casements -truly, a threatening night. Maria and her maid went softly down stairs, and reached the garden in safety. It was dark as pitch; the piercing cold wind whistled dis-arations at his own place.

It was already dark; so, after dispatching his faithful Rerodeka to Menarodowno with a troika (two-horse sleigh), he ordered a one-horse sleigh dar himself and started. It was nine and yet not a word of love? Why did Bourmine shuddered, and then, overo'clock; he could reach Jadrino fully he not throw himself at her feet and dehalf an hour before Maria, for he could clare his passion? Was it the natural his wife.—Trans ated from the Russian terrently thanking God, Vladimir made for the friendly hut.

"Jadrino can not now be far." thought he; "I will stop here and ask An old man, half asleep, answered for Maria. the knock.

"What do you want?" "How far is it to Jadrino?" "Jadrino? Not far-a matter of ten Poor Vladimir! "Can you let me have a horse? Mine s half dead." "A horse! Where would I find porse?"

"Well, can one get a guide here-"Wait-may be my son can show you the way.

After what seemed to Vladimir an interminable delay, the door opened and a small boy came out.

"What time is it? inquired Vladimir. "It will soon be daylight" baffled bridegroom was silent.

The church was closed. After rewarding his guide and bidding him goodbye, Vladimir knocked with trembling hand at the priest's house; his troika was not in the vard. What did it

But we will return to the good Gabrielowich and see what was going on in his house. The old people arose as usual and went down to breakfast: Gabriel Gabrielowich in his flannel cap and gown, and Pascowia Petrowna demned me to misery. Maria, I am ready dressed for the day. In answer married!" to a message from Gabrielowich, Marie Gabriel Gabrielowich was much loved sent word she had had a bad night, but of that! would be down presently. In a few minutes the door opened, and our heroine entered.

"How is the head, daughter?"

"Much better, father. "Perhaps the heat from the furnace was too great yesterday.

"Perhaps, mamma," said Maria. Toward evening, though, Maria was not so well, and the village doctor was you!" sent for, but before he came high fever emotion. Bourmine went on: had set in, and the poor girl was delir-was no fitting match for the heiress of The priest and witnesses were silent, protestations started as soon as the Menarodowno. He was relentlessly for- and the coachman was not much of a horses were hitched; it seemed as if a bidden the house, but in spite of this talker even when in his cups. For a mysterious and irresistible force were known as "Father Quinn," has in a long ervstals of a metalle luster. These he views were, perforce, discontinued. At during her delirium, and the good manner, perhaps owing to the roads be- by piece in the specified time. In set- hues of the paint and dve trades of tomother, who nursed her devotedly, ing almost wholly obliterated under a ting type the average Listance the hand day. made out that her child was dying of heavy mantle of snow, we soon found travels is a foot and a half or theremisery, and besought his lady love to erty is no crime-one lives with the on, then, at haphazard, and you can well feet of being four time the circumference man and not with his money—etc., etc.; imagine how welcome was the sight of and such moral maxims are always of lights ahead. These lights brought us madman, in which the young fellow de- we drove up, cried: house, and begged them to forget a you are!' poor wretch whose only hope was in death. Soon after they heard he had but drew up nevertheless. joined the army. This was in 1812.

They dared not tell Maria, who on her side never mentioned his name. A re- the priest is at a loss what to do! lapse of the fever was feared when, a "A wicked thought flashed through few months later, she fell into a dead my mind. What an adventure to tell to take, impelled by her unalterable his fortune to Maria. Riches, however, with a handkerchief steeped in vinegar. love for Vladimir, who, as her hus were powerless to console her; she band, would return to beg their in- mourned his death sincerely, and vowed claimed the woman; your delay has dulgence and blessing. After sealing never to leave her poor widowed moth- almost killed my poor mistress! this effusion with two flaming hearts er. They both left Menarodowno, so and an appropriate motto, the rest of fraught with sad associations, and went there is no time to lose; we may be surthe night was spent in all the terrors to live on another estate situated near of manifold and complicated night- Gousk. There, also, Maria was soon surrounded and importuned by many admirers, but discouraged them all, in spite of her mother's advice and express Yes!' he answered. quiry on the part of her affectionate desire; our heroine, for answer, silently parents cost her a pang, yet she man- shook her head. Vladimir was deadaged to get through the day without killed at Moscow on the eve of the enexciting their suspicions, and retired trance of the French troops. His memimmediately after dinner. The maid, ory seemed sacred to Maria, who tenentering a little after nine to make the derly treasured all the mementoes of mony would be valid. final preparations, found her young her lost love - his sketches, letters, mistress weeping bitterly. In less than poems, and the books they had read toan hour, though, she must go; so, gether: the neighbors commented won-quickly drying her tears, Maria soon be- deringly upon such unusual constancy, came once more the love-sick damsel, and awaited with much interest the com-

over the me ancholy constancy of this new Artemisia.

The war ended gloriously for Russia: her legions returned victorious, and ous and joyful acclamations. Mothers and sisters, with tears of joys in their eyes, pressed to their hearts the youths.

"Nothing loth, I turned to my bride, and gently drawing her toward me, been exposing yourself to the weather?" Second Boston girl: "Ies, I went out yesterday and forgot to put on my were received everywhere with vocifereyes, pressed to their hearts the youth. discernible in the dim light. One who had left them, now grown into glance, and then with a cry of horror mally through the trees and blew fierce manhood, bronzed by exposure, hard- that will ring in my ears forever: 'Oh. ly in their faces, as if bidding them turn back. At length through the darkness they could discern the sleigh and Vladimir's trusty servant vainly trying to quiet the restive horses, who, as if who took no part in the general enthuto quiet the restive horses, who, as if who took no part in the general enthu-aware of the danger of freezing where susm. The monotony of their lives. "Great heavens?" exclaimed Maria, they stood, impatiently struck the hard frozen ground with their hoofs.

The monotony of the disturbed by the frozen ground with their hoofs.

The monotony of the disturbed by the trembling violently. "and you know advent of the dashing young Colonel Bourmine, before whom her usual train bride?"

The monotony of the disturbed by the trembling violently. "and you know advent of the dashing young Colonel Bourmine, before whom her usual train bride?"

The monotony of the disturbed by the trembling violently. "and you know advent of the dashing young Colonel Bourmine, before whom her usual train bride?"

The monotony of the disturbed by the trembling violently. "and you know advent of the dashing young Colonel Bourmine, before whom her usual train bride?"

The monotony of the disturbed by the trembling violently. "and you know advent of the dashing young Colonel Bourmine, before whom her usual train bride?" Meanwhile let us follow the happy of adorers had to retreat. He took bridegroom. Vladimir Nicolaewich had all hearts by storm with his brilliant had a busy day, what with his persuad- hussar uniform, fascinating manners, ing the priest of Jadrino to perform the and the cross of St. George, which marriage ceremony, and searching for witnesses among the neighboring land-owners. The first he found was an exofficer, Dravine by name, who accepted the duty with pleasure—it reminded him, he said, of his escapades when in the regiment of hussars. He begged Vladimir to dine with him, and understook to find the other two witnesses. took to find the other two witnesses spire infatuation. His outward appear-himself. One of these was Smidt, the ance and manner were of the kind to surveyor, and the other young Ispraco-nek, just turned seventeen, and about he was full of all those tender little atto enter the Fifth Lancers. These two tentions so captivating to a young girl. not only promised to be witnesses to Viadimir's marriage, but enthusiastically swore they would face death itself very reckless, but this, in Maria's eves, as well as in many another's, was rather to me.' beartily, and left to make the final prep- an advantage than otherwise. One thing, however, puzzled her-undoubt-

certainly drive there in thirty minutes. But driving was no easy matter; the wind was full against him, and blew the blinding snow-flakes sharply into his face. Soon the very road disappeared under a white cloud, the horse attuabled blindly at every step, and Washing was obliged over and over again to get out and disengage the deigh from some snow-hosp. With finding akin to despair the poor fellow realized that he had gone astray, and and Bourmine grew morose and melstumbled along, scarce daring to hope ancholy he no longer made the slightchance might yet lead him straight. At est effort to conceal the passion which length the sight of a little black speck held him in thrall. The neighbors spoke ahead aroused his failing courage, and, of the approaching marriage as of a certain thing, and the good Pascowia Petrowns was overjoyed at the seeming zine realization of her dearest wish.

One day she was alone in the parlor when Bourmine entered and inquired

"You will find her in the garden," said the old lady; "go; I will await you here." Bourmine stepped out, and the good mother prayed as she crossed herself: "May the good God settle it all to-day." Maria, just like the heroine in a novel, was seated on a rustic bench under a willow tree, listlessly turning a over the leaves of a book. Her white dress contrasted prettily with the dark rustic background. Bourmine approached and stood over her.

"Maria, the time has come when I must lav bare my heart before you. I love you—I love you passionately."
Maria blushed and lowered her eyes; but I have acted wickedly-madly, in allowing myself to remain in your sweet posies. presence day after day. It is now too late to strive against fate; the memory The cocks were crowing and the day of your dear face will be for evermore breaking when they reached Jadrino. my joy and my torment. I have still a veil that still conceals the barrier which separates us forever."

"There is also an insurmountable obstacle on my side," said Maria; "do not revile fate. I never could have been your wife.

"Yes." sighed Bourmine, "I know you have loved; but death has canceled your vows; you would have been mine, know it-I feel it-in spite of your former love, if a cruel fate has not con-

"Married!" She had never thought "Yes," continued Bourmine, "married three years ago, and stranger still, married without knowing to whom, nor having the vaguest idea where my wife is, nor whether I shall ever see her again."

"What!" exclaimed Maria Gabrielowna, "is it possible? But go on-I, too-for pity's sake, go on, I beseech

Maria, of course, spoke of nothing else | brisk pace. In some unaccountable love for Vla limir. Therefore, alt r due ourselves astray, and my coachman was abouts. Consequently his hand has consultation with her husband and sev- obliged to confess himself completely traveled 516,000,000 fect, or a matter eral neighbors, it was agreed that pov- at a loss how to continue. We drove of 97,727 miles, or within a few hundred great help when reason does not justify to a small village, and we saw that the our course. Thus, when Mar a became largest proceeded from the open door convalescent, her parents sent for Vla- of a church. As we approached I

"I suspected it was not I they wanted,

But misfortunes never come singly; her head leaning against the wal!, while have had a Noah's ark. the good Gabrielowich died, leaving all a maid bathed her forehead and temples "Thank God, you have come! ex-

"The priest then drew near: 'Sir.

prised at any moment; make haste!" "But the young lady can hardly stand,' I objected. ... It will be sufficient if she can say "It was not too late. I might still turn back, but the idea of such a wonderful adventure got the better of me: moreover I might imagine such a cere-

"Well then,' I said, 'since you all wish it. "The bride was already at the altar.

in my large fur cloak. The priest did ers don't "-N. Y. Independent. not keep us waiting, and in a few moments all was over.

"You are now one, embrace each young man.

"Maria, what is the matter? In Heaven's name tell me."

the village where I was married, nor do I remember where I stopped to change horses. Moreover, I never believed that marriage binding, and used to speak of it as a good joke, until one day a friend, less thoughtless than I, frightened me by insisting I was really married-bound forever, in this world and the next. Ever since I have sought my wife in vain. But, Maria, you are pale, my darling!-you tremble!-speak

"Merciful Father!" exclaimed the young girl, clasping her hands, "I

Bourmine shuddered, and then, over

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

-A son of Charles Dickens is a Captain in the Canadian Mounted Police. -Maggie Mitchell will write her stage experience for a New York maga-

-The Queen of Portugal has the reputation of being the best dressed woman in Europe.

-The daughter of General Banks. who has just gone upon the stage, has a perceptible and very pretty moustacke. -James Garfield, the oldest son of the late President, is ell, blonde and athletic. Harry, his brother, is short, dark and wears brown side whiskers. -A Hartford newspaper, after re-literary achievements, past and prospective, concludes: "We are glad Donnelly didn't miss being born. -Miss Marie Van Zandt made her first appearance on the stage at Groton, Mass., when she took part in a flower antata. Since then her pathway counting Ignat us Donnelly's wonderful through life has been strewn with -Five octogenarians, the oldest of whom was ninety-four years, died in Marathon, N. Y., recently inside of one week. Three weeks previous they were duty to perform; I must draw aside the all in good health. Each one of them had lived all his life in that vicinity.-

> Syracuse Journa'. -As between Germany and the United States, the relative literary activity of the two countries is shown ty the following figures: In 1883, American publishers i sued 3,481 books, the German, 14,802; in 1884, the Amercan, 4,038, the German, 15,607.

-Mrs. John Maxwell, better known as Miss Braddon, the novelist, lives at Litchfield House, Richmond. It is an historic structure. Built for the first Earl of Abergavenny, it later passed into the possession of the Bishop of Litchfield, and became his Episcopal residence. Afterward Catalani, the singer, got it and gave notable recep-flons there. It is a handsome old palace in Sir Christopher Wren's best style.

-Philip II. of Spain delighted in a cat-organ upon which a bear performed. This instrument was composed "of Trembling with suppressed twenty cats, separately confined in narrow cases, in which they could not stir: "At the beginning of the year 1812 I their tails protruded from the top and herself desperately and irrevocably in lous. For a whole week she hung be- was hurrying to join my regiment at were tied to cords attached to the key-Vilna. While getting a change of board of the organ. According as the No one in the house so much as sus- horses a heavy snowfall came on, and I bear pressed upon the keys the cords he experimented with in various ways, of the earth.

-Of Richard Grant White it is said that "while literature was his profession, music was his solace and delight, and he was far prouder of his one of the products of common gas-tar? | thee unto the Lord, and it be sin unto dimor Nicolaewich, but great was the perceived there were several sleighs knowledge of violins than of his reputation as a Shakespearean scholar.' came a letter, written apparently by a grouped together on the porch, who, as Of this violin connoisseurship wonderful stories are told, and there seems no clared he would never set foot in their "Here! here! good gracious, how late doubt that he possessed a rare and peculiar taculty of discrimination in regard to these instruments. His own instrument was the 'cello, upon which "A young man sprang forward: he played in a quartet that met at hi house weekly.—Chicago Inter Ocean. he played in a quartet that met at his

HUMOROUS.

-"Oh ma," said a child of five, "I am so glad there was a flood!" "Why, child?" exclaimed mamma. "Because, A young girl reclining on a bench with if there hadn't been any flood I shouldn't

-A new song is called "The Coming Step." The coming step is probably that of the old man, and if you are a prudent voung man make your exit via the window and over the garden wall. -Hartford Sunday Journal.

-"Ah. my little man, good morning," pleasantly remarked an old gentleman as he stopped and patted a Hewes street little boy on the head, "have you any brothers and sisters?" "Yes, sir: got four, but I'm the only one that 'mounts to anything," replied the urchin. - Brooklyn Times. -A woman recently entered a store in Connecticut, and sat down in front of an fron safe to warm her feet. After sitting some twenty or thirty minutes, connection with the andine dyes and stretcheth out her hand to the poor; she remarked thus: "I never did like alizarine of the same base, it is rapidly yea she reacheth forth her hands to the supported by her maid. I advanced them kind of stoves. They don't throw and placed myself beside her, wrapped out scarcely any heat, those gas-burn-

-First Boston girl: Going to vocal practice this morning, Minerva?" Second Boston girl: "No, my dear other and fly,' cried the irrepressible Calliope, I have a bad co'd and am quite hoarse." First Boston girl: "Ah!

> spectacles?"-Boston Courier. -Railsoad intelligence. - When Major Converse was laying out the line of the Sunset Route to San Antonio, he one day took observations with his instrument near the cabin of an old negro on Cibolo Creek. "Boss, am de railroad gwinter come neah my house?" "It will go right through it," replied ing to the report of the Meteorological Converse. "Hit will? Why boss, hit ain't gwinter be safe for de ole woman which has just been issued, it was now the tiospel especially to the passer, that which has just been issued, it was now the tiospel especially to the passer, that which has just been issued, it was now the tiospel especially to the passer, that which has just been issued, it was now the tiospel especially to the passer, that the tiospel especially to the passer, that will be cried: "Blessed be ye posse, for any think the sought for the tiospel especially to the passer, that the tiospel especially the tiospel especially to the passer, the tiospel especially the tiospel especially the tiospel especially the tiospel especially the tiospel e runs smack fru hit."-Texas Siftings. -Mr. Rashful—My daughter is maked Maria, disregarding Bourmine's appeal, if you know what became of your unfortunate wife."

"No," answered he subdued by her manner; "I do not know the name of the village where I was accustomed. The panied by a change of weather. The the village where I was accustomed out of the panied by a change of weather. The fact that these disturbances could also
the village where I was accustomed out of the last five days of Angust, which were nearly simultaneous, and were accompanied by a change of weather. The fact that these disturbances could also
the village where I was accustomed, out of the last five days of Angust, which were panied by a change of weather. The fact that these disturbances could also the traced in the daily and the last "When thou makest a feast
the last five days of Angust, which were nearly simultaneous, and were accompanied by a change of weather. The fact that these disturbances could also the traced in the last of the last the last including the last of the last my darter Sal kin beat that Mr. B- be traced in the daily cur es published What has your daughter been developing as an embryonic artist? Mr. H-I don't know ez she hes bin doin that, but she painted a picture of a greez cowcumber so natural that it give the hull family the cholera morbus.

-"Mary Had a Little Lamb" French-English:

Marte possess one small ruriton, Her hair was black like snows. And all over that Marie promess Those sheep follow her nose. In German-English: The Marie a diminutive lambkin had, So white as snow was her fur. And everywhere whither Marie a w

-She had a voice like a siren and

There wasn't a dry eye in is clear manistratable print that she parts of the world, and the data so obtain going to sing "Street Home" tained were still in the course of being a man might have thought his took compared and considered when the loss without over guarding it.—Break present report was drawn up.—London Date.

THE WONDERS OF COAL TAR. Gorgeons Dyes and Most Eseful Products

Obtained from a Troublesome Refuse. "Chemistry is capable of wonderful things," said an expert in chemical science, "but in nothing to which its principles were ever applied have such marvelous results followed as are witnessed in its manipulation of common gas or coal tar. Thirty years ago the problem of how they were to rid themselves of this foul and then utterly useless refuse of the retorts was puzzling manufacturers of gas, and the aid of chemistry was sought in working out the solution. They had no thought beyond the utter annihilation of the ofnsive tar. In their experiments with the refuse the chemists discovered the so-called burning naphtha, which, however, could be applied w th safety to no practical purpose. After the naphtha was extracted the tar was left in the form of a heavy oil, which was still more of a nuisance than the original compound, as it was more difficult to store and handle. The chemist Felliel discovered a channel of util ty for this oil in applying it as a pickle for the preservation of railroad ties, bridge timbers, and similarly exposed woods This used up large quantities of the refuse, but only partially relieved the tar nuisance. "The only hope that gas men now had was that some discovery might be made in chemical experimenting which would give a commercial value to the refuse. Faraday next awoke interest in coal tar by his discovery of benzine as a a product of the tar oil. It was in experimenting with the volatile substances of these oils that the great chemist Mansfield lost his life by an explosion in his laboratory, and it was probably this casualty that directed greater attention to the possibilities of the despised gas tar. "It was not until 1857, however, that the great value of coal tar as a raw material was demonstrated. In that year Perkins discovered its aniline properties, a discovery which has almost revolutionized the trade in dve stuffs. Perkins took coal tar naphtha. chemical action which resulted in benzole and nitro-benzole. Adding water to this, the nitro-benzole was deposited in the form of a thick, oily mass. This liquid he treated with different chem--A printer on the Erie (Pa.) Herald, | ical salts, and the result was green | jub.lee.

"This discovery made the long-de-life know that this great disinfectant is strangers. . . After these Properties were extracted | thee. from the tar there were left heavy oils and residuum, for which chemistry was puzzled to find a practical use. It was ful book that bears his name, God not until 1869 that any satisfactory re- is spoken of as the avenger of the with this refuse, and then the great disproduct was first obtained by the German chemists Græbe and Liebermann, but Prof. Perkins, who had developed the aniline colors from tar, was the first to give a practical application to the natural alizarine, or madder root, that the poor. The Lord will deliver him in had been handled in the trade previous | time of trouble. to its introduction. It was, if anything, superior to madder, and so much converted 400,000 acres of land that had quired nine weeks to perfect the dying of brotherhood. He takes the poor chemist produced an artificial indigo giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord. from the residuum of gas tar, and, in | Of the virtuous woman it is said: "She taking the place of vegetable indigo. needy." Later, the naphthalene yellows and still experimenting with the tar prodwill no doubt be made."-N. Y. Sun.

WAVES OF AIR.

Were Caused by the Eruption in the Straits of Nunda in 1883.

It is am ill wind that blows nobody any good; and the atmospheric disturbances caused by the great eruption in the Straits of Sands in 1883 formed no exception to the general rule. Accord- of the poor ticed that at all the observatories, withby the Brussels Observatory, and had ricient eruption of Krakatoa, on the 26th and 27th of that month, led to the suspleion that a connection existed hetween this phenomena, and accordingly copies of barometrical records were obtained from St. Petersburg on the east and from Coimbra on the southwest. On examination these were Archipelago and oscillations of baromet rieal pressure in Europe became de-monstrable. It now seems to have been proved that an opinion expressed by General Strackey was correct—that a series of concentric serial waves was started by the cruption, and that these traveled around the world at the rate of nearly 700 miles an hour, returning in the opposite direction after having met a succession of such waves more rein the taker- peated three or faur times. This con-

RELIGIOUS READING.

MY LIGHT.

" Dominus Illuminatio Mea." When the shades of coming serror

Paits a bright rays illume my darkness.
With her motto: "God thy Light." Yes, my Light—though all around me. Groping, seek to walk by sight. Let me follow where Thou leadest, God of Love, and Light of Light.

If by paths unknown, untrodden, Turough deep gorge, o'er diasy beight Guale my feet, uphod my coince. Thou, thou only, art my Light.

Then, though warring creeds be claim as Old prerogative and right, This my creed-and none more holy-" in Thy Light behold we Light."

Such the faith of those, our loved our. Standing now in robes washed white; New ther know how all life's shade as Brought them nearer to Thy Light. On the shield of Faith borne home ward, Hest they from the hard won Brat. And no more can powers of darkness Dim their vision of Thy Light. Grant me power, dear Lord, to witness liow pure faith gleams over bright-Thine the cloud and To ue the sunshine,

Thou my Lord, my Life, my light -Cred Misre, in The Quite Sunday-School Lessons

SECOND OF ARTER 10-Christ Our fixample. ... Phil. 2: 17-Christian Contentment . Phil 4: 34-The Faithful Saying I Tim It June 1-God's Message by H's Son Hob 1 June 14-The Priesthood of Carist Heb ?: ine 2!-Christian Progress. June 25- fleview : Service of Song, Missionary

Temperance or other Lessons selected by the school. THE BOOK OF THE POOR.

The Crucity of That skepticism Which Tries to Prejudice the Poor Against the Word of God-How to Counterset This Insidious Influence.

care would fill many columns of our throphy of words, ours is that of deeds. paper. In the Mosaic code they were back to him, or his heirs, in the year of

In addition to such wise and thoughthonor the person of the mighty." the gas retorts, but it held still greater against thy poor brother. But thou surprises. From the light oil of the tar | shalt open thine hand wide unto him. a valuable naphtha solvent for India- and shalt surely lend him sufficient for valuable discovery of earbolic acid was | hired servant that is poor and needy. made. How many people in ordinary whether he be of thy brethren or of Chicago Interior. fest he cry against Job declares that he was a father to the poor; and all through the wondersult was obtained by experimenting poor. Kindness to them is a proof of the poor, and in promise for those who care for them: "He hath prepared His goodness for the poor," "The Lord heareth the poor," "He shall saye the ten years following the introduction and him who hath no helper," "He of the artificial alizarine in the dve-stuff | shall stand at the right hand of the trade, it exceeded the total amount of poor," "Blessed is he that considereth

la Proverbs this broad foundation is cheaper that the saving by its use up to sympathy: "The Lord and the poor meet and He has given to some wealth and been used for growing madder root in- withheld it from others, not because He to fertile fields of corn and other ce- is partial and unjust, but because He reals. With vegetable madder it re- would cultivate in each class the spirit of a material Turkey red. The artificial | under His special care. He declares madder accomplished the desired result | that whoever oppresseth the poor rein as many hours. Three years ago the proacheth his maker, and whoseever

The prophets uttered their most fearreds, with which entirely new effects in ful denunciations against those who color were made possible, were derived oppress the poor. They seemed to refrom coal tar residuum. Chemists are gard this as one of the worst evidences of apostacy. Hear Isaiah: "Ye grind the ucts, and other important developments | faces of the poor." Hear Amos: "They sold the poor for a pair of shoes. "Your treading is upon the poor." But, while declaring that God will pour out His fury upon the proud and the cruel, how sweet's they tell of H a mercy for the oppressed. When the poor and needy seek water and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst, L the the God of Israel will not forsake them, I will open rivers in the high places and fountains in the valleys" Yes, He will even work miracles to supply the wants yours is the Kingdom of Heaven;" that out exception, peculiar barometrical ir- He said "When thou makest a feast by the Brussels Observatory, and had of course that it was about giving some-succeeded after a short interval the thing to the poor. He told the rich young man who wanted to be perfect to sell all that he had and give to the poor. When Zac beus was converted, he caught so promptly the spirit of the half of my goods I give to the poor."

When Paul went forth as the aspostle to the Gentiles, James, Peter and John found to exhibit similar disturbances of insisted upon only one thing that he pressure, so that the connection between should remember the poor. (Gal. a volcanic manifestat on in the Eastern H:12) Wherever he went he took up collections for the poor. And James wrote: "Hearken, my beloved broththe world, rich in faith, and heir of the allegedom?" The primitive church chose defects on purpose to take care of the poor. The whole history of Christianity shows that it is the friend of the poort. All our asylums, hospitals and airmaries are the outgrowth of the spirit which it has inspired. Every en, bath not God chosen the poor of his world, rich in faith, and heir of the cord. All our asylume, hospitals and a firstnaries are the outgrowth of the spirit which it has inspired. Every henerofent and charitable institution of the age is noted in the Ribb. Such institutions of the age is noted in the Ribb. Such institutions were unknown until Joses ones, and they feertak new only where the Gosphi has gone.

But we may go further then this. Our madern items of human equality, of the signify of labor, of the worth and the util labor my proper unto The signify of labor, of the worth and the util labor my proper unto The signify of labor, of the worth and the util labor my proper unto The signify of labor, of the worth and the rights of man as man, without reference to birth, or race, or color, or situation, or culture, or wealth, all have come from the Bible. And there, too, we have learned about the law of co-operacion, of mutual sympathy and aid which enables men to unite in brotherhoods, and to stand by each other to resist opposition. Take away the Rible and the world would soon drift back to that condition of poverty and slavery for the masses, when might was right; when self-shness ruled supreme. There are clouds still in the sky. But they are being scattered by the Sun of Righteousness. Just so fast and so far as the Bible prevails wealth ceases to be arrogant and oppressive and poverty ceases to be bitter and hopeless. In the new and holy light that radiates from the cross, the rich learn to be humble and charitable, the poor learn to be patient, self-respecting and to trust in God. On the one side we have the revelation that wealth comes from God, that those to whom He gives it are His stewa de and must give account to him for their use or abuse of it. On the other hand we have the revelation that the poor are the children of the same Itanvenly Father-that they are the wards of the rich, and can claim from them a portion of the common inheritance. But this claim they are to present, not to the rich themselves, But to God. They are to go to him, and trust to Him to open the hearts and the hands of their

So generally recognized is the fact that Christianity has brought in a new social law that the word charity which expresses the spirit of the Go pel has come to be used for all kinds of alms given. The benevolence of which skeptics sometimes boast, they derived indirectly from the Bible. It was never dreamed of in their philosophy. What is moonlight with them is sunshine with The Bible is the beak of the poor. To the church of Christ. Their humanitaquote the passages in which they are rianism is pale and cold, ours is warm mentioned as objects of God's special and vivifying. Their's is the philan-

And now since these things are so, how cruel is that skep:leism w ich tries provided for and protected. The pro- to prejudice the poor against the word duce of the land every seventh year was of God. How snake-like, cold and vento be left for them: they were to glean omous is that spirit which crawls among the fields all the other years; they were the workingmen, lifts up its head a their and, boiling it in a retort, obtained a to be invited to all the feests as guests shops and homes and club rooms, and chemical action which resulted in benwith priests and Levites; the tich were their ears: "The church is the ally of to lend to them without usury, and if a the cap talist and the oppressor, the garment was taken in pledge it was to Bible is the rich man's book." That hiss be restored before sundown. When is satanic. It comes from him who is ther love, met with the contemptuous pected Maria's flight; her letters were was earnestly advised not to proceed on were raised and the tails were pulled to and finally by the addition of acetic laborers were bired they were to be father of lies, and the deadliest for of disapprobation of her parents, in whose destroyed, and the maid had been dis- my journey until it had abated. I would make the cats mew in bass or treble acid and iron filings, he produced a paid every evening. If poverty commind a poor non-commissioned officer creet, fearing her master's displeasure. not listen, however, and in spite of all tones as required by the nature of the colorless fluid which is aniline. This pelled a man to sell his land it came poverty and toil their true solace and this insiduous influence? We must get these men to read the Bible for themthe lovers met daily at the old forest wonder, the secret was well kept, alwell, and there plighted their troth. though known to half a dozen people. short cut to Vilna, and started at a weigh 187,700 pounds, or ninety-four different chem cal reactions, the most eral exhortations as "Thou shalt not of its enemies and theirs. But above tons, which this old man has lifted piece brilliant and gorgeous dyes - the aniline respect the person of the poor, nor all we must try to illustrate more fully in our lives the spirit of our Master and Thou shalt not wrest the judgment of of His book. In our intercourse with the poor in his cause," "Thou shalt not the poor and with all who are, or think tested coal tar a desirable product of barden thy heart nor shut thy hand they are oppressed we must be living the gas retorts, but it held still greater against thy poor brother. But then epistles. We may not be able to induce them to read the Bible. But they will read us. And if we are true witnesses rubber was obtained, and then the in- his need." "Thou shalt not oppress a for God we shall not fail to secure in time a verdict in favor of the Gospel -

TESTED.

How Adoniram Judson, When a Sheptical Young Man, was Led into an Exami tion of the Cisims of Christianity.

Adoniram Judson, the apostle of Burmah, graduated from Brown University picty and cruelty to them is a crime an avowed infidel. His most intimate covery of alizarine was made. This that their Maker will surely punish, friend, a brilliant student, was also a The l'salus are rich in comfort for skeptic. The two friends often talked over the question-momentous to one on the eve of graduation-"What shall we do to make for ourselves a career?" German work. The importance of this children of the needy and break in Both were fond of the drama and dediscovery may be understood when pieces the oppressor," "He shall deliver lighted in the representations of plays. it is known that in the first the needy when he erieth; the poor also Each wrote with oase and skill, and so, after many discussions, they almost determined to become dramatists. Judson graduated in 1807, with the highest honors. A few weeks later he went to New York, to study the "business" of the stage, so that he might be laid for social equality and fraternal famillar with its requirements, in case he should become a play-writer. His 1880 had amounted to over $20,000,000. together, the Lord is the maker of them dramatic project did not, however, re-The discovery of alizarine in coal tar all. They are equally His children, tain him long in the city, and prompted by a love of adventure, he started on hors back to make a tour of two or three of the New England States. One evening, he put up at a country tavern, and was assigned a room adjoining one occupied by a young man sick unto death. The dying man's moans were distinctly heard by Judson, whose skepticism was not strong enough to keep him from musing on the question: "Is that young man prepared to die?" During the night the groans censed. and early next morning Judson arose, sought the landlord, and asked:

"How is the young man?" "He is dead?"

was his skeptioni friend's.

"Who was be?" "He had recently graduate! from Brown, and his name was Judson was stanced, for the name man. The short unsettled his skepticism. He desermined to make a thorough examination of the claims of Christianity upon his faith and conduct. He entered Andover Theological Seminary, not as a student for the ministry. nor even as a Christian, but simply as a truth seeker. What he sought for he

Abandoning his journey, he returned to his father's home, a dated, strickers grown, until he heard the call: "Come up higher!" Then he departed from his earthly spectalate.

He wrote no drama, but his life was a sublime spectacle. No crowds langued at his wit, or were thrilled at his de stion of human passion; but hundreds of men blosed him as their father in spirit and nigh, often, to the martyr's

Ged - Youth's Companion

WISE SAVINGS -We must labor with patience to rest contented, till it piease the Lord otherwise to dispose of things - lines

-The every-day eares and duties, which men call drudgery, are the weights and counterpoises of the clock of time, giving its pendulum a true vi-bration, and its hands a regular motion.

-It is one of Dr. Thee. L. Curler's