The Fast Train.

The Union Pacific officials are busily engaged in closing up the details o their fast express scheme, which certain to go into operation at once The Centeral Pacific has given assurance that it will co-operate in the matter. That road will adjust trains so that going eastward from San Francisco to Ogden the time will be shortened one hour, and going westward two and one half hours. Between Omaha and Odgen, both eastward and westward' the Union Pacific will shorten its time twelve hours, making the running time between those two points thirty six hours, instead of forty eight,

"The train will be put on July 15, 1886 if something at present untorseen does not prevent," said a Union Pacific official to day. "It will leave Omaha in the morning, taking the place of the overland, and will make the trip between Omaha and 'Frisco in sixty or less.

JOHNNIE BULL and his assistant cooks across the water just now appear to have a queer kettle of fish to fry, in more respects than one. The home rule bill which was referred to the dear people, has been defeated leaving the Irish nation with but little hope that the measure will ever be passed. Meanwhile other complications are coming to the surface, and it is not at all improbable that the "Rus ian Bear" end the "British Lion" wil soon be engaged in a conflict that will make the whole world tremble.

A Story of Kenward Philp.

New York journalists are inclined to resent the exploiting of Kenward Philp. He was an exponent of an element in metropolitan newspaper life that has J. S. Richards, of Wymore, has diminished so rapidly during the past decade that we may hope for its entire extinction within ten years more. If 1 add one true story to the many already published it is with a view to illustrating his character comprehensively. was impoverished and thirsty one evening. A project for abundant drinks struck him as he passed a theater where a certain star was playing. He sought the actor, professed a lively interest in that evening's trial of a new drama, and proflered his services to influence

> "All I propose," he blandly Said, "is to greet my press acquaintances in the corridor, chat about the play as your agent, and invite them to drink with me. It won't cost you anything except a modest bill at the bar.

> > The actor thereupon gave an order at the bar that Philp's hospitality to any of the leading critics should be permitted to the extent of a bottle of champagne each; and he took the precaution to detail a person to identify the men to be treated, for he had heard of Philp. Well, the dry but glib tongue of the trickster plausibly assailed one after another of the critics on the list, but their excuses deprived him of the expected reward of his earnest endeavor. Discouraged and desperate, he at length said to one who had declined his invitation to imbibe with the management: "For heaven's sake, my dear fellow, don't let me die of thirst in the desert Assist me to the oasis," and he explained the situation so plaintively that the acquaintance complied for charity's sake. - Cor.
