Yesterday afternoon as one of these metropolitan scribes were perambulating through the various avenues that lead to this "future great" he was horribly surprised at stumbling onto the headless trunk of a dead body near the court house.

The attention of the county officials Graves, was called to the matter but one and all failed to recognize the same, but thought that it was a Mr. K. Ittie, a runner, who had been seen in that vicinity before. The affair created a sensation, especially during the warm weather of the last day or two but it was thought that the affair would be placed in the cat-a-gory of a sudden death at the hands of some individual who had become tired of city, departed for Southern California the back yard howls of the feline race and had dispatched his catship to the happy hunting grounds.

The Senate Not in Session—A Bill Passed For Right of Way Through

The Indian Territory - Inefficient Western Mail Service—Perkins' Resolution Adopted.

Cox, of New York, Wipes the Floor With Springer, of Illinois, Over the Mo-Kay Bill.

WASHINGTON. Feb. 11.-When the House met yesterday, Mr. Allen, of Mississippi, asked unanimous consent to proceed to the immediate consideration of the bill granting right of way through the Indian Territory to the Choctaw Coal & Railroad Company. Mr. Allen proceeded to explain the provisions of the bill, first stating that the Committee on Indian Affairs believed that the construction of railroads in the Indian Territory should be encouraged for the reason that they promote the civilization of the Indians, served the public convenience and created no obstruction. The previous question was then ordered and the bill was

Mr. Anderson, of Illinois, from the Postoffice Committee, reported favorably Mr. Perkins' resolution directing the Postmaster-General to inquire into the cause and foundation for the grievances complained of in a Kansas newspaper regarding the Western mail service, and also to inform the House whether the almost universal complaint prevailing in the West against the present unsatisfactory mail service resulted from the employment of inexperienced and incapable employes or insufficient appropriations. The committee re ported an amendment, adding to the resolution the following: "And also that the Postmaster-General be directed to further inquire and inform the House what, if any, improvements and extensions have been made in the mail service of the West during the last two years."

Mr. Dockery, of Missouri, said he did not care to discuss the merits of the resolutions. He would say, however, that the Post-office Department, the committee and the Democratic side of the House courted the fullest investigation of the matter, and he was confident that investigation would show that the postal service was as efficient, if not more so, than at any time in its his-

Mr. Perkins, of Kansas, wanted all of the facts laid before the House. If the bad service was the fault of the House in consequence of inadequate appropriations he desired to know it, and if it was the fault of the Administration that should be made known. The resolution had been approved January 23 and under the rules should have been reported within a week. In that particular the Post-office Committee was almost as unsatisfactory as the mail service. The resolution was not political and the complaints came from Democrats and Republicans alike. When the answer came he would undertake to show that they were well founded.

the insertion of an mendment offered by indebtedness from $1.485,000 to $3,000,000. Mr. Holman inserting the words "alleged" before "complaint." Mr. Culberson, of Texas, from the Judiciary Committee, reported favorably a fastenings, masonry, bridges, fencing, debill to create an arbitration board to settle pots, yards, etc., was let to the Kansas the differences between the United States and Texas, and Mr. Jones, of Aiabama, re- officers of which are the officials of the ported favorably from the Committee on railroad company. A number of reports upon private bills were presented, and the House began the consideration of bills on the private cal-

Upon reaching, in Committee of the Whole, the bill for the relief of Nathaniel McKay and the executors of Donald McKay, and after Mr. Springer of Illinois had read long extracts from the report and antagonized the bill, Mr. Cox of New York rose and said that never since he had been in Congress had be heard a more incoherent, disjointed, ramshackle speech than had just been delivered. It had all been drawn from the report of the committee, pieces being feeling proud of it. taken out wherever they suited the purpose. so as not to afford a reasonable opportunity to the House to judge of the case.

Mr. Springer declared that he had fairly presented the case, and Mr. Cox replied that he had taken very good care when stating that the bill had been vetoed not to state the reasons for the veto, so that the Bause could see how the President's objection had been met, and now when it was suggested that the measure might be made acceptable to the President, the gentleman (Springer) was here thinking with his heels and dancing with his head, preventing a conclusion. The bill was just in the line of the views which the gentleman from Illinois had so eloquently and for so many years urged upon the House-courts for the adjudication of private claims-yet when such a bill came up the gentleman was found trying to break it down in details. The gentleman knew himself, if he was a lawyer-he had heard it said he was a lawyer [laughter] -that in all matters connected with conscience a receipt could always be explained by evidence, and that the man would be an unconscionable scoundrel who would take advantage of a receipt given in an emergency or under duress. What was asked was that the case be sent into the courts so that it could be ascertained whether or not the Government

Mr. Springer said that the gentleman from New York had been very felicitous in his remarks and nobody had enjoyed them more than he had. [Laughter.] He would willingly give every Friday during the balance of the session to hear the gentleman's melodious voice. But this was some serious business to be done. He declared that this was not a case such as he had contemplated referring to the court of claims, for this bill sought to empower the court to find a judgment. The gentleman had intimated that he (Springer) was probably a lawyer, but he did not know whether he meant that or not.

A voice broke in: "O no, it was a joke."

Mr. Springer then said that it was true otable time. Mr. Lanham, of Texas, interrupted to

Mr. Stone, of Kentucky, earnestly advocated the bill, and resenting Mr. Spring-er's remark about the lobby, said that "if you to find a man who might be influenced, you must hunt up the man who thinks that every one else can be influenced." The gentleman's remarks were an imputation against the whole House and should not be

The committee decided to report the bill favorably to the House and rose, and the two bills on the private calendar which had been favorably reported from the Committee of the Whole were then taken up. The first-for the relief of C. M. Briggs, de ceased, was passed with little objection. In the case of the second, however—that for relief of Nathaniel McKay and the executors of Donald McKay-Mr. Springer interposed a vigorous resist-ance, and although the House refused to second his demand for ayes and noes, he succeeded in preventing it passing by demanding the reading of the engrossed bill. The House then passed the Senate bill authorizing the appointment of Andrew D. White as register of the Smithsonian Institute, and adjourned until Monday, leaving the McKay bill as unfinished business to come up next Friday morning.

CAR THIEVES.

Officers Storm a House at Clathe, Kan., and Arrest Two Men.

OLATHE, Kan., Feb. 11.-Detective O. J. Freligh, accompanied by City Marshal Easdale and Sheriff Townley, made a raid yesterday afternoon on a house, to which they had traced three car thieves, and in which they knew stolen goods to be concealed. For several weeks the Southern Kansas railroad authorities have had goods taken from cars in transit from Kansas City to this place and points farther west. They traced some of them to this place, and detailed Freligh to work up the case. This he succeeded in doing, in connection with Marshal Easdale, after being here about a week, and the raid yes terday was the result. The officers had to break into the house, where they were met by four women and three men, armed with clubs, knives, razors, an axe and a revolver. The parties were all colored, and the officers had a severe struggle, and had to use their clubs freely. One of the men, however, jumped through a window and succeeded in getting away. They fought like tigers, the women using knives. The officers escaped bodily harm except some scratches and tora clothes. One woman made a pass at Marshal Easdale's throat with a rasor, and would have probably ended his career were it not for a blow on the arm by one of his companions. Two men, Green Johnson and Hugh McGinnis, were captured and locked up. The women were not arrested, as it was thought best to leave them outside as bait for the rest of the gang. Upon searching the house several cases of boots and shoes, cloth and other goods were found and identified.
