The firm of Parkes Bros., probably the oldest firm in Red Cloud, have dissolved partnership, John Parkes withdrawing from the firm and Wm. Parkes continuing the business.

Jake Nye has taken a job of sweeping Webster street and 4th Avenue. It is a good scheme and should be kept up. If there is anything that makes a city look nice it is nice clean streets.

J. J. Ducker contemplates moving his dry goods store to the room lately occupied by the post office. This will be an excellent situation for our enterprising friend. It is one of the best in the city.

Richard Barrett, the aged father of our Kansas friend, Wm. Barrett, of East Carston, England, 77 years old, died a few days ago. The sad intelligence was conveyed to Mr. Barrett by mail. Mr. Barrett has the sympathy of his many friends in this vicinity.

For dressmaking call on Mrs. Malpoer in W. Houghton's old tailor stand. Artistic dress and coat making done in all its branches. Evening, dinner and street costumes and tailor made suits, also cutting fitting and designing without making patterns cut to measure.

"In purchasing a turkey," says Table Talk, "choose a fat hen not weighing over thirteen pounds. The turkey should roast at least three hours in an oven, hot for the first hour moderate for the remaining two. The turkey should be basted with its own fat every fifteen minutes while roasting; a teaspoonful of salt should be added at the end of the first hour and the turkey should be well dusted with pepper."

The following is a little girls essay on a cow: "A cow is an animal with four legs on the under side. The tail is longer than the legs but is not used to stand on. The cow has ears that wriggles on hinges, so does her tail. The cow is bigger than the calf, but is not so big as the elephant. She is made so small that she can go into the barn when nobody is looking. Some cows are black and some brown. A dog was once tossed. She tossed the dog that killed the cat that worried the rat. Black cows give white milk; so do other cows. Milkmen sell milk to buy their little girls dresses, which they put water in and chalk. Cows chew cuds, and each finds its own chew. That's all there is about a cow."

Do figures lie? Let us see. Two women had thirty chickens each, which they took to market. They agreed to divide equally the proceeds of this sale. One sold her chickens two for $1, getting for her thirty chickens $15. The other sold hers three for $1, getting for her thirty chickens $10. This made $25 realized on the sixty chickens. The merchant called on to divide the money said: "You sold your thirty chickens two for $1, and you sold yours thirty three for $1. That makes sixty chickens at the rate of five for $2. Well, five into sixty goes twelve times—twelve is twenty four. That makes $24 your chickens brought."

But, as shown above, the women actually had $25 in their pockets, and were rightfully entitled to it, although seemingly the merchant's figures are correct. Can any pupil of the school tell us wherein they are wrong?—E. Grand Opening.

Dr. P. Janss is no stranger but an old and responsible resident of Nebraska. He has been at Grand Island for the last 12 years, that is the place to get your information in regard to his responsibility as a physician. Consult him in Red Cloud at the Holland House, Saturday, December, 18th.

See those fine bed room suits at F. V. Taylor's for an Xmas present.

MOVED.

The Chief Office Has Taken A Change of Base.

NOW LOCATED OPPOSITE MOON BLOCK.

To our friends and patrons you will take notice that THE CHIEF has found it necessary to move the office to more commodious quarters and consequently can now be found down STAIRS, just opposite J. J. Ducker's dry goods house in Jno. Parkes' building, where we shall be glad to see all of our friends and patrons. Don't forget the place, east side Webster street, opposite Moon block.

Why Can't Red Cloud Get There.

From the Riverton paper we see that the woolen mills of that place are going to pull up and move. Now, there is a chance for Red Cloud and we would advise our citizens to jump on to that enterprise with both feet as it is one of great moment to the interests of this city if we can only get it to locate here. Wake up gentle men, and see about it at once.

"What Fools We Mortals Be"

On Saturday morning while the average brave of Red Cloud pulled on his trousers, swallowed his morning repast and repaired to the commercial centre of the city in quest of Uncle Sam's headquarters, for the purpose of perusing some sweet scented odiferous missive from his best girl or the morning papers, he was dumfounded to find that the same "Uncle Sam" had folded his tent like the Arab and silently stolen away to other pastures green, or something like that but he'd be glad darned if the thing was where it used to be, but upon inquiry it was learned that Uncle Sam's deputy, A. S. Marsh our worthy P. M. had moved the post office to the Outhwaite building on 4th avenue, decidedly the best and most centrally located position for the post office in the city. There was scarcely an early riser but what went marching down to the old place for the mail never discovering that "it was not where it used to be" until he had gone to the rear end of the building. It is a good move and should be appreciated by the general public.

BUSTLES MUST GO.

In the early days of Methodism it was the custom in church for saint and sinner to humbly kneel during prayers, and in those days it was considered wicked and worldly for a sister to dress except in the plainest manner. Feathers, sealskin sashes and jewelry were an abomination, and there was not much hope that a woman dressed in the fashions of the day would ever even get within sight of the pearly gates. But what a change has come of late years; the sisters dress in the height of fashion, the brothers sport gold watch chains, diamond shirt studs and other jewelry, and even the ministers in the pulpit look as though they had just stepped out of the fashion plates of some elaborate merchant tailoring establishment. Well THE CHIEF is not going to quarrel or cavil about the change, for we believe well dressed men and women can enjoy religion as well as the good old Christians of hoespan days, and it is a pleasure to go to church and see such congregations. But a great change has come into the form of worship, the humble position of kneeling in prayer has been abandoned, and both saint and sinner now sit bolt upright, and while the minister is interceding in their behalf both men and women are gazing around taking an inventory of each other's dress and appearance. This fact worried one of our eminent divines living not more than a thousand miles from this city, and recently he saw fit to rebuke the members for not kneeling in prayer, as they used to do, and deplored the evil days into which Methodism had fallen. He insisted that at least in the social prayer meeting every devout worshipper should get down to business and pray in the good old fashioned way. He thought perhaps the architectural construction of the pews might have a little to do with it, and made that as an excuse in general service, but thought that at prayer meetings the members ought to conform to the old usages and kneel. A lady on the way home was discussing the words of reproof of the pastor, and suggested that instead of blaming the construction of the pews as an excuse why the sisters did not kneel in prayer at the Sunday services he might more appropriately have attributed it to the architectural construction of the bustles they wore. The bustles must go, or our pastors must give up the idea of getting the prayerful on their knees.

SADA J. BAILEY, AGT.

Dr. P. Janss of the Nebraska State Medical and Surgical Institute does not pretend to be a cure all but claims to have better success than the general practitioner in chronic diseases on account of devoting his total time to such diseases and the large number he treats. He has with him three thousand dollars worth of instruments for all kinds of examinations and operations, among them is a microscope, costing in Europe $350. Consultation free at the Holland House Saturday December 15.

To Our Friends and Subscribers.

After January 1, 1889, the subscription price of THE CHIEF will probably be put back to $1.50 per annum, instead of $1, as has been the price for the last two years. One dollar is too low for subscription to a country newspaper the size of THE CHIEF, and cannot be run without loss. We have decided however, to still give our subscribers a chance to renew at $1.00, if the same is paid by January 1, 1889, after that date we shall go back to the old price of $1.50 per year. Come right in if you want to get the paper at one dollar for the ensuing year. If back subscription is not paid by January 1, 1889, we shall collect $1.50 per year for all subscriptions that remain unpaid at that time. A. C. HOSMER, Proprietor.

J. F. Winters has commenced the erection of a new barn.

The Oakes Comedy Sketch Club will appear at the opera house Monday night, December 17, at which time they will dispense to the theatre goers of Red Cloud a program consisting of music, mirth and mimicry. The company is composed of the best talent in the profession and those who attend will pass a pleasant evening.

The Waukesha, Wis. Press says: It has a most select, amusing and delightful entertainment. The company is entirely composed of legitimate and talented artists.

The Winterset, Iowa, Press says: This tiptop company paid their first visit to our city Tuesday. Each one of the company did such noble work that it seems out of place to speak of one and not of the rest.
