WALNUT CREEK.
 The following touching lines entitled "Caesar's Lament" are respectfully dedicated to his "Nibs."
 An editor of Red Cloud
 Was lying, nothing new,
 He wasn't feeling very pert,
 In fact was rather blue;
 A comrade stood beside him,
 And wiped away a tear,
 In hopes the editor would see him,
 And order up the beer.
 The "dizzy" editor faltered,
 As he took that comrade's hand:
 And he said, I never want to see
 My own, my native land.
 Take a message and a token,
 To my friends just take a tale,
 I am out of place in Red Cloud,
 I've lost cast in Inavale.
 Tell my partners and companions,
 When together they all get,
 To hear my mournful story,
 By Hartwell's big whey vat,
 That I fought the battle bravely,
 And when the day was done,
 I found that I was badly scooped,
 By that bloody Man in the Moon.
 He touched me up on every side,
 He jived danced upon my toes,
 But I'd have lived through all of that,
 If he hadn't touched my nose.
 But now it's done and finished,
 My very worst is said,
 His hand is spread, thumb to his nose,
 And I think I'll bag my head.
 Tell Mrs. B. not to weep for me,
 And sob with drooping head,
 When the Man in the Moon comes back again.
 With glad and gallant tread;
 But to look upon him proudly,
 With a calm and steadfast eye;
 Oh, why did I ever shoot at him,
 For me he is too high.
 And if the school board ask her
 Just tell her in my name;
 There's no one there to insult her now
 Or make her cry with shame;
 And to hang this motto on the wall
 In letters long and broad,
 "To that slanderer woman
 Will most surely not see God."
 There's another, not a tid bit,
 I wish I was in Guinea.
 When I're in that mash of mine,
 Wicked deceitful Minnie.
 For this earth I thought she was too good,
 For an angle sure I took her,
 It makes my tears run down like rain,
 She played me for a sucker.
 One consolation though I've got,
 I wasn't there for health,
 I just put in experience,
 She got none of my wealth.
 Tell her last night I dreamt of her,
 We were together just once more.
 It was a happy dream to me,
 Add I've dreamt it oft before.
 Another thing dear comrade,
 That I've never told before,
 As I never like to speak of it,
 It makes me rather sore.
 A wondrous tale I did invent,
 It caused a heap of bother,
 I'd surely ne'er had said it though,
 Had I known she had a brother.
 Dear comrade take this word of mine
 To the boys in Inavale,
 Be sure you're right then go ahead,
 In telling such a tale.
 Ah, the whole thing is slowly drying out,
 Why was I such a loon,
 To jump upon that wayward youth,
 That wicked Man in the Moon.
 His voice was getting hoarse and thick,
 He sadly dropped his head,
 Says he, "Let's go across the creek,
 And paint the country red."
 His comrade tried to stop him,
 But he found that he had fled;
 He left a word behind him,
 And this is what he said,
 I have monkeyed with the buzz saw,
 Found it running on full time,
 And I wish I was in Guinea,
 Or at "Bingen on the Rhine."
 The comrade rose up slowly,
 Says he a nice I've smelt,
 I long have thought and now I know,
 Caesar wears the belt.

Incidents of the National Convention
 W. E. C. at Milwaukee.
 Some of the delegates met the headquarters train at Omaha, in which we found Mrs. Morgan the department president of Nebraska with a part of her staff which was increased by our presence. The gentlemanly passenger agent of the C. M. & St. P. R. R. was with us, and Sunday he invited the department president and her staff to take dinner with him in the dining car and set before us the best menu which we all enjoyed immensely. On arriving at Milwaukee we found no arrangements for our entertainment, so each one had to look out for herself. Five of us found a place where we could get three adjoining rooms and we had high times. Milwaukee is a clean, white beautiful city, and it was beautifully decorated. On Tuesday was the great parade, but it was only about half as large as the one at Columbus, Ohio. Wednesday morning business commenced with an open session of the convention. We were addressed by the governor of the state and the mayor of the city and several others of the G. A. R. Also some of our own distinguished members, were presented, and made short speeches among them were Mrs. John A. Logan, and the famous Clara A. Barton. The second day came the interesting time, the election of officers. I have the assurance to believe that I sided materially in electing that grand old army nurse, Mrs. Annie Kittenmeyer for national president. She was elected by only two majority and just as we were going to vote, I found that two of our delegates had their ballots written for the other candidate and I plead with them to change to Mrs. Whittemeyer which they did. For national senior vice-president I am happy to state we elected Mrs. Emma Manchester of Lincoln, Nebraska. How much of that election is due to the delegates from this state. You can imagine for yourselves we succeeded and that is all that is necessary to state. Friday night at twelve o'clock the committee adjourned to meet next year in Boston, Massachusetts. After packing our grips we slept an hour or two and started on an early train for Chicago, where we commenced reluctantly to separate; one going one way and one another until there were only three of us started for home together, and came as far as Marion, Iowa, when I took a train coming to this place, Ottumwa, Iowa, where I am at the present writing. The fruit crop here is the largest it has ever been for years but I have seen no corn like the Nebraska corn. It has been dry here for the past two months till last week there was a little rain. Ottumwa is a beautiful city being situated on nearly as many hills as Rome. But with all its advantages, and it has many, I prefer my own adopted state, Nebraska.

Take in The Fair.
 O, the pumpkins will pump, apple dumplings will dump and pears will joyfully pare, and the people will peep at the beautiful sheep, and farrows will happily fare. Cucumbers will come and girls will chew gum, no matter how people may stare, and beets will turn red, to be pulled out of bed and get on a horrible tear. Tomatoes will mate on that auspicious date, and carrots will have not a care. Riding sulkeys that sulk are forbidden to skulk on the premises everywhere, and chiggers that chig are requested to dig to the prairie so brown and bare. So hasten ye all to come at the call, O, hasten the way to prepare; though laggards may lag get your wagons to wag you along to the Webster county fair.—Adapted.

Republican Caucus.
 The republican electors of Red Cloud township are requested to meet at the court house on Saturday, Sept 14th, at 2:30 p. m. for the purpose of choosing seven delegates to the republican county convention which meets at Red Cloud, September 20th, and for the transaction of any other business that may come before the meeting.
JOSEPH GARBBER,

The Frise of Woman.
 A clear pearly and transparent skin is always a sign of pure blood, and all persons troubled with dark, greasy, yellow or blotched skin rest assured that their blood is out of order. A few doses of Egg's blood purifier and blood maker will remove the cause and the skin will become clear and transparent. Try it and if satisfaction is not given it will cost you nothing. It is fully warranted. C. L. Cotting druggist.

At a meeting of the bar Thursday evening in J. L. Kaley's office they endorsed Hon. J. R. Wilcox, for county judge.
