Our Offer.

To every subscriber to THE CHIEF, old or new who will call and pay their subscription one year ahead, paying us therefore $1.25, we will give a handsomely bound book containing from five to six hundred pages.

This offer will hold good until January 1, 1890. Remember that THE CHIEF is the oldest and best weekly paper in the county and will always be found in the front ranks of journalism, fighting for what it thinks is right, and never swerving from its course in fighting monopolies and all institutions that are trying to keep down the poorer classes, to enrich their own pockets. THE CHIEF believes that the poor man has rights that the rich man is bound to respect. Now is your chance to secure THE CHIEF and a fine book for $1.25. The regular price of the paper without the book is $1.00.

From the slimy condition of the Republican's advertising columns, and the sickly hue pervading the owner's countenance, we presume the business men have set down on the newspaper which persists in villifying our citizens. The Republican is the only paper that cries out that it is for the soldier, and then at the first opportunity, tries to get an old soldier removed from the office of marshal because he would not vote for the democratic nominee. The Republican's love for an old soldier depends altogether whether the old soldier can be worked by that outfit or not. If he can't be worked they don't like him, and if he can be he is a "hale fellow well met." It is time that the war ceased and the big S should stop their howling.

Mrs. M. J. Rownds adds her name to the large number of CHIEF's readers. THE CHIEF's list is growing rapidly and we expect to have 1500 in the next 60 days. Come in now.

A lady in this city has got to that time in life when spectacles become a necessity after night. By daylight her eyesight is as clear as ever, but when she tries to thread a needle by lamp light she wonders why it is that she cannot find the eyelet as readily as she did before this film came over her eyes. It worries her. She does not want to believe that age has anything to do with her dimmed vision; in fact she scouts the idea, and when spectacles are suggested as a help to her failing sight she feels provoked. Those who have passed through this stage know how it is themselves. The other night the lady undertook to make a new collar for a gown with a green shade and in order to get a pattern that suited her she ripped the collar off a black gown and then cut the one for the green gown exactly like it. When she came to sew the collar on the green gown, not being able to distinguish between colors on account of her failing eyesight, she sewed it on the green gown and did not discover her mistake till next morning when she began to dress for church. Of course she would not even admit that her eyesight had anything to do with the mistake; still she has since been trying on spectacles but she claims they are for a friend. She will wear them in the seclusion of her home for a time, but by-and-by she will get braver.

The editor of the Republican would make a good taxidermist as he is always trying to stuff the "dear people" with some of his bare faced pretensions. The Republican was the first and only paper that has from its first inception villified and slandered our best people, and not content with having done so before election continues, to do so after election. The people are becoming tired of such newspaper journalism, and the paper ought to lose its subscription list for keeping up an unholy warfare on our good people.

Congress will soon meet and THE CHIEF hopes that that distinguished body will try and do something for the benefit and amelioration of the laboring classes who have been suffering for years at the hands of rich corporations and monopolies, that have been sucking the very life's blood out of them. The sole idea of these institutions seems to be for the purpose of squeezing the last dollar out of the poor man's pocket into their own until it has become really a burden for the poor and middle classes to exist. It is a shame that congress in its sovereign capacity should continually work into the hands of rich corporations, and forget entirely those who have made it possible for them to hold their positions of honor in the land. Something must be done, and that at once, to alleviate the great wrongs that the working classes have been subjected to, in the last few years by these iron headed and soulless corporations who are constantly turning down every screw of oppression to make the life of a laboring man less worth living. The people won't stand it much longer.

"I've been redeemed," sang an unfortunate in the treasurer's office the other day when he redeemed a tax title on some property that he owned. The place was sold by the county treasurer for taxes last November. No wonder his soul was filled with joy that he was out of the soup when every month increased the amount of penalty he had to pay the good Samaritan who owned the tax title.

Those people who have not been in to look at the immense stock of clothing at the Golden Eagle will be astonished to find such an assortment and the low prices marked on them in plain figures.

Why didn't the Republican and its co-laborers look out for economy last spring when THE CHIEF was calling loudly for economy in the city affairs, instead of now trying to oust a worthy official on the slimy pretext of economy? THE CHIEF was the only paper in the city that made a war for economy, and for that matter we have been calling for reform in the matter of city finances ever since the inception of the McKeely administration. During that term we called upon the council to cut down the salaries of the city officers one half, the present salaries being principally luxuries. The city needs a peace officer, but does not need a council and mayor, that draw salaries, besides there are other ways that economy can be reached in city affairs, than by using underhanded means. The present council should pass an ordinance cutting down all salaries at least one-half before their terms of office expires. Our city government has been too expensive by half for at least three years past.

The ladies of the Congregational church are arranging for a novel entertainment which will be given some evening during the next few weeks. It will be an old fashioned "deestric skule" in which about twenty-five or thirty of the older citizens will play the part of the scholars. Those who remember the old school-house of forty years ago will have an idea of what the "deestric skule" was, and they will enjoy an hour in living over the old scenes; and those of younger years will be interested in learning how their fathers and mothers were taught in the old days.

The sale of the street railway has been confirmed in the district court and we now presume that Lloyd Crabill will soon be a bloated railroad owner.

Wm. Richardson has purchased the Central Meat Market, and will hereafter run that institution. THE CHIEF welcomes him to the city, and hopes he will meet with much success.

Cattle have been dying somewhat in various parts of the county from being turned into the corn stalks and allowed to remain too long therein. It is dangerous and the farmers should be more careful.

Marshal Shinkle wishes to announce to the editor of the Republican that he voted the straight republican ticket. There's no mugwump in the marshal. He served too many years in the late war for that.

Mr. J. W. Smith, who recently started the Central Meat Market, has sold the same and will enter some other business. During his short ownership he has made many friends who will be sorry to see him out of business.

The Central Meat Market.

I hereby announce to my many friends over this section of country that I have purchased the Central Meat Market of J. W. Smith where I propose to run a first class market on a strictly cash basis, therefore enabling me to sell meat on a very close margin. I shall be pleased to have all my old friends to call on me and as many others as are in need of meats of any kind. I especially solicit the farmers trade. Old stand, first door north of Henry Cook's drug store. Come and see me and I will treat you nicely.
Wm. Richardson.
