CAISSON HORROR.

Calcon taborers Drewned in a Bridge Calcon at Louisville, Ky. Louisville, Ky., Jan. 10.-The most appalling accident known here in many years occurred last evening about six o'clock.

It was near time for work to stop all over the city, and workingmen were expected home by their families, when the report spread rapidly that there was a wreck or accident of some kind at the new bridge, under construction between Louisville and Jeffersonville. It was first reported that a span of the bridge had fallen and a gang of workmen had been thrown into the river, but this was at once discredited, as there was no span in existence. Then came the truth, that a calsson had given way and the workmen em-ployed on it had been drowned or crushed to death by stone and timbers.

The caisson known as No. 1 was 100 yards from the Kentucky shore.

As the workmen of the pumping station were looking for the men in the caisson to put off in their boats, leaving the work for the night, they suddenly saw the dark structure disappear into the foaming white waves and heard, before they could realize what had happened, the roar of the furious maelstrom.

It was soon known that only four of the eighteen who were at the work at Americas Exposition, opened the arguthat time had escaped.

Correct re; orts from the scene of the accident show the following list of killed: Haynes, William E., 214 Clay street, Louisville, Ky.; Knox. John, 28 years; McAdams, James, 26 years, Hyde Park, Pa.; Mahar, Frank, 23 years old, native of New Jersey; Naylor, P., 27 years, Pike; Ash, Thomas, colored, 30 years, Henderson, Ky.; Bowling, Monroe, colored, 30 years, Henderson, Ky.; Johnson, Thomas, colored, 25 years, Henderson, Ky.; Morris, Hamilton, 20 years, Henderson, Ky.; Smith, Thomas, 25 years, Hen-derson, Ky.; Soaper, Frank, colored, 25 years, Henderson, Ky.; Tyler, Rob-

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.-The second bearing on the selection of the site of the quadro-centennial exhibition was held in the ladies' reception room in the Senate wing of the Capitol, when the claims of Washington were presented. There -were present of the committee Senators Hiscock(chairman), Wilson, of Iowa, Colquitt, and Vest.

Mr. Douglas, one of the District Commis ioners, stated the order in which the arguments would be presented

COLUMBUS. and closed his remarks by saying that if it should be concluded to hold the Exposition elsewhere than in the N tional capital, the citizens of the District of Columbia would make every exertion, by money or otherwise, to make it a magnificent success.

Mr. Anderson, secret ry of the Nationa: Hoard of Promotion of the Three ments. He said he represented a committee of citizens from all the States and Territories who, under the name of a board of promo ion, 'had been acting in the matter for the last three or four years. He summarized the provisions of the bills introduced by Senators Gorman and Faulkner and argued that the buildings to be erected for the fair should be permanent and should be under Government control. It should be in the nature of a museum, free of charge and not an exhibit of perishable property. The two leading festures of the Exposition were these: First-To commemorate a great historical even:, the discovery of America by Columbus; and second the commercial idea, which might be called the three Americas trade movement. The details of the plan were to be left to a Government commission. He s mply advocated the general proposition and ides which, he thought, was entertained by the people at large-that the expense of the Exposition should be undertaken by the Nation. It was evi-dent that the whole people were ready and anxious to celebrate the great event and thought that the National capital was the only proper site. The reasons for selecting Washington, the speaker said, were numerous. Washington was the city of the Nation and all the cities of the country, St. Louis, Chicago and New York, by which he meant the people of these cities, had more control in regulating the affairs of the District of Columbia than its own residents had. It was the truly representative American city. It was composed of ir habitants of all charge can be disposed of or destroyed without detriment to the public inter- the Legislature of Massachusetts speaks at Louisville, Ky., on the evening of ley's death was intestinal catarrh in Congress. There would be no waste in having the Exhibition here, because vhatever buildings would be erected for it would be needed for all time. It was evident that the Exposition would have to go to the Government or else the Government would have to go to the Exposition and he thought it more dignified that the Exposition should come to the seat of Government. There was in the heart of the city a park more accessible than any park in any city in the world, extending from the Capitol to the Washington monument. This park included 300 acres and could be increased by 700 acres more from the Potomac flats. Wharves could be established on the Potomac river where exhibits could be landed from all parts of the world. As to hotel accommodations Mr. Anderson said that there was no city in the world so elastic in hotel facilities. The city of Washington was practicaly a boarding house. It was accustomed to be transformed into a boarding house on great occasions. There had never been any difficulty in that respect at inaugural ceremonies or other great conventions or gatherings. At the recent triennial conclave of the Knights Templar 70,000 strangers money from the Topeka Insurwere accommodated, and there were ance from 900 to 1,000 rooms left uncalled for at the bureau of information.

THE CRONIN CASE.

Defendants' Attorneys Pile & Wotton Per a Rew Trial-A Long List of Errora Alleged.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.-Late ye terday afternoon Attorneys Wing, Donahoe and Forrest filed a petition for a new trial in the cases of Coughlin, Martin Burke, P. O'Sullivan and John Kunze, convicted of the murder of Dr. Cronin, in accordance with the order of Judge McConnell, before whom the arguments will be made Monday.

The petition assigns thirty-nine cases of error in the rulings of Judge McConnell during the case. They embrace every point contested by the attorneys for the defense and range from an objection to the court's overruling the motion to quash the indictments up to the assertion that the defense has, since the trial, discovered new evid-nee which entitles them to a new trial. The first error alleged is that the court erred in overruling the motion to quash the indictment made in behalf of each of the defendants. The denial of Coughlin's motion for a separate trial is made the basis of four of the alleged errors, there being a separate count for each of the defendants. The refusal of the court to permit the defense to show that Messrs. Mills, Ingram and Hines of the prosecution were engaged by private parties who were notuated by personal motives and the court's allowing these three lawyers to assist in the prosecution' are said to be errors. Mr. Hines is pade a subject of a special count, he being said to have been moved by a spirit of hostility toward the defendants and not fit to act as prosecuting attorney. The overruling of the challenge for cause preferred by defendants to a long list of veniremen, whose names are given in the motion, is alleged to be an error. Side remarks made by the State's attorney while examining jurors are charged to have been improper. Judge Longenecker's opening statement to the jury is cited as an error and characterized as improper remarks of counsel for the State, which excited the passions and prejudices of the jurors against the defendants. It is charged as an error that the prosecution was permitted to introduce as evidence and exhibit to the jury the clothing, instruments and hair of Dr. Cronin, the false teeth, the trunk and all the material evidence in the case. The introduction of Dr. Cronin's knives after the State had closed its case is said to have been an error. Objection is made to a number of the instructions given to the jury by the court. The verdict is pronounced as contrary to law and not justified by evidence, and finally it is said that "the defendants and each of them have discovered evidence which entitles them to a new trial."
