When I can read my title clear to a well stocked Nebraska farm, then discontent will disappear and life will have some charm. Should chinch bugs by the millions come and drouth my prospects blight, I'll stick still closer to my home and strive with all my might. And next year with a crop of oats, of wheat and corn and rye, I'll lift my mortgages and notes and lay some money by. Then in a peaceful, happy strain, of Nebraska I will sing the sunny land of golden grain, where yellow corn is king.—Stolen

Of course there's money in printers ink, but the man who makes the most intelligent use of it gets the most money out of it. It does not pay to advertise something you have not got, or anything you can not do and do well. The man who advertises a fraud must have a "good" fraud, and he who advertises bargains in goods must be prepared to satisfy his customers. Any advertiser should undertake to present some sort of a claim for patronage.

A strap of paper... It was just an ordinary strap of wrapping paper, but it saved his life. The man who advertises a fraud must have a "good" fraud, and he who advertises bargains in goods must be prepared to satisfy his customers. Any advertiser should undertake to present some sort of a claim for patronage.

Thousands upon thousands of dollars are spent annually by our people in the hope that they may attain this boon, and yet it may be had by all. A Successful Combination.
Rings, pools, trusts, combines, monopolies—all them what you will—they are fast increasing throughout the length and breadth of the country. Legislators do not notice them, and newspapers attack them but still they seem to flourish. It is a great pity, however, to note that there is at least one combination in this country that meets with the approval of the public, especially of farmers: It is composed, not of individuals, but of the following quartet of harvesting machines: Deering Binder, Deering Light Reaper, Deering Giant mower, and New Deering mower.
