The Prisoner Who Will Probably Be Released

Boer, Jan. 24.—State Senator Milton, of Nebraska, who is better prepared than any one else in this section of the country to speak of matters of the kind, has learned from his own residence there and intimate relations there and since with the royal family, says: "King Kalakaua's sister, her Royal Highness, the Princess Lydia Kaimanohua, was appointed a short time after the King came to the throne, and for the purpose of securing a successor as her apparent, and she has been recognized as such for the past sixteen years. She has always taken a prominent part in the receptions at the palace and in the gayeties connected therewith. I doubtless she is a perfect embodiment of public life, and it is an open secret that she has anticipated coming to the throne. During the King's trip around the world, several years since, she was appointed as Regent during his absence, and she has since held the responsible position with acceptability."
